THE Practical Dutch Grammar has had a run of ten years. In that time the author has seen its extended 6th (i.e. 7th) Edition. Its record has all along been so satisfactory and encouraging, that it shall be preserved on the fly-leaf of the book which supersedes it.

The present volume is issued under another name. The disappearance of the word "Practical" from the title, however, does not affect the practical side of the book. On the contrary, this will be found increased to such an extent, as to render comparison between the two a matter of difficulty. The "Practical Grammar" was the writer's first attempt; a further experience of ten years of language teaching in South Africa should to some extent be a warrant for the superiority of the present work above its predecessor.

Not only that,—but Africa's actual wants were not fully revealed to the young author of the "Practical Grammar." While it, however, ran its course, the fairest opportunities were furnished him for using eye and ear,—and the "Commercial Grammar" is issued as the embodiment of hints kindly furnished.

Provision has been made for schools. English children have the "Elementary Dutch Grammar," Dutch children the "Practische Hollandsche Spraakkunst," while one series of Dutch Readers has been issued with English vocabularies annexed. But another class of students must be reached. Young men reading for the Matriculation or the Civil Service examinations, men in business, merchants and agents, those are they for whom this book has been compiled, and to whom the author inscribes it with the fervent hope that they may find it what they need.

THE

CHAPTER I.

I.—THE ALPHABET.

(Het Alfabet.)

1. THE Dutch alphabet consists of the same letters as the English, but the letters c, q, x, and y are not used in words of Dutch origin.

2. The following are the vowels (klinkers) in use: A, pron. like in Eng. ask; E, pron. like in Eng. convey; I (written "ie" for double "i"), pron. like in Eng. knee; O, pron. like in Eng. woe; U, pron. like in French mûr; OE, pron. like in Eng. pool; EU, like in German öde.

NOTE.—For the correct pronunciation of O, OE, U, and EU, it is necessary to bring the lips forward. This done, for the O-sound leave a larger, and for the OE-sound a small round opening; for the EU-sound a broad slit, and for the U-sound a narrow slit between the lips.

3. Five vowels, viz. a, e, i, o, u, have each a double sound. When written with the double sign, aa, ee, ie, oo, uu, or when occurring (whether double or single) at the end of a syllable, or when forming a syllable by themselves, their sound is full, as indicated in § 2; but when single, and enclosed between consonants, their sound becomes imperfect: man (as in Germ. Mann); les (as in Eng. test); lip, pr. like English; hop, pr. like English; rust (slightly less broad than u in Eng. rust).

NOTE.—The e has a third sound, approaching that of the imperfect u. It occurs in the article de; in the flexion endings of the adjective; in the verbal prefixes be, ge, and ver, and suffix en; in the plural ending en of nouns, and in unaccented syllables before m, n, l, p, r, t. The sound of this e is heard in the second syllable of the English word bundle.

4. Of the consonants (medeklinkers), B is pronounced as in Eng. bailiff; D, as in Eng. dainty; K, as in Eng. caprice; P, as in Eng. pale; R, as in Eng. error; T, as in Eng. take; and Z, pron. zett, like in French; F, L, M, N, and S, like in English; H, like English ha! J, like Eng. yea; G, like ch in Scotch nicht and loch; V, like a very soft Eng. f; and W, materially like Eng. v.

NOTE.—G is always a guttural, except when occurring after n, when it sounds like in the English word ring.

5. The English Y, when found in foreign words, used in Dutch, is pronounced like Eng. ee. The Dutch IJ is originally a double i, now written i and j combined. The sound represented by this combination, which is foreign to the English language, lies close to the sound of ay in the Eng. word pay, the teeth, when pronouncing the Dutch word "pij," being less widely apart than for the pronunciation of Eng. pay.

NOTE.—The ij-sound changes into Dutch i in the word bijzonder (particular), and into a toneless u in dikwijls (often), and in the ending lijk (Eng. ly).

6. The letters c, q, and x are only met with in words of foreign origin, and are there pronounced like in English; t, in such words, occurring before the ending ie, is pronounced like s, e.g. natie, nation, pr. na-sie.

7. C occurs in Dutch in combination with H, ch being the representation of a guttural sound, sharper than that of g. SCH, when found at the beginning of a word, or as the initial letters of a stem after a prefix, should be pronounced as a combination of s and the guttural ch; when otherwise found, its sound is s only.

8. TH is pronounced as single t, and PH like f.

NOTE.—The sch is sounded in the suffix schap.

9. The Dutch language has the following diphthongs : Ei, formerly ai (ag), pron. exactly like ij; Au, pron. like in Engl. stout; Ou, pron. softer than au, rather more like o in below; Ui, no equivalent in English, softer than German eu, pronounced in a line with u and eu (see Note, par. 2), but with a wider opening of the mouth; Aai, like ay in Scotch pronunciation of McKay; Ooi, full Dutch o-sound with i-sound attached, like oh-y; Eeu, full sound of Dutch e, ending in the sound of w; Ieu, full sound of Dutch i, ending in that of w.

NOTE.—Many people make no difference between Au and Ou, pronouncing them both like the latter of the two.

II.—SPELLING AND PRONUNCIATION.

(Spelling en Uitspraak.)

Broadly speaking, Dutch should be pronounced as it is spelled. The following are the cases in which pronunciation differs from spelling :

1. The sound of ij sometimes changes to that of i, and at other times to that of u (see I, 5, Note).
2. The sound of sch is sometimes that of a single s (see I, 7).
3. The sound of th is that of a single t (see I, 8).
4. The w is left out in the pronunciation of erwt (Eng. pea). It is pronounced ert.
5. Final t is many times left out before the diminutive ending je, as in nestje (little nest), pronounced nesje.
6. The t before final ie in words of French origin, is pronounced like s (see I, 6).
7. The guttural sound of g is lost whenever n precedes it (see I, 4, Note).
8. Final b, d, and g, are respectively pronounced like p, t, and ch.
9. The initial z of zestig, sixty, and zeventig, seventy, is pronounced like s.

10. The diminutive ending je is colloquially pronounced ie, except when preceded by d or t; e.g. koppie (for kopje), boekie (for boekje); but mannetje, and handje.

11. The pronunciation of the endings de, der, and den, is often je, jer, and jen in colloquial speech. De goede man (the good man), is pronounced de goeie man; likewise does breeder (broader) sound breejer, and sleden (sledges), slejen.

This is the case in:—

(ADJECTIVES) goede, goeie (good), breede, breeje (broad), roode, rooie (red), doode, dooie (dead), kwade, kwaai (angry), &c.; whereas, oude (old), and koude (cold) change their d into a w, ouwe, kouwe.

(NOUNS) laden, laaien (drawers), leden, lejen (members), kleeden, kleejen (carpets), smeden, smejen (smiths), sneden, snejen (slices), &c.

(VERBS) laden, laaien (to load), snijden, snijen (to cut), lijden, lijen (to suffer), leiden, leien (to lead), rijden, rijen (to ride), &c.

12. In loose speech the final n of the ending en of nouns and verbs, and of inflected articles and adjectives, is dropped.

EXERCISE ON PRONUNCIATION.

Pronounce according to the hints in the undermentioned paragraphs of section I.

III.—SYLLABLES.

(Lettergrepen.)

1. The pronunciation of Dutch words is a simple and easy matter, after the sounds have been mastered. On the pronunciation depends the division of words into syllables.

2. This division has no connection with etymology. No matter how a word has been derived, compounded, contracted or abridged, its syllables depend on the way of opening and closing the mouth when it is pronounced.

3. Perfect articulation gives perfect division into syllables. There is no other rule.

4. Foreigners may observe:—

(a) That one consonant found between two vowels goes with the vowel which follows it: hazen = ha-zen, leven = le-ven, ademen = a-de-men.

(b) That of a combination of two or more consonants, one is retained by the first vowel, whereas the remainder go with the vowel following them: dampig = dam-pig, schande = schan-de, korsten = kor-sten, dorschen = dor-schen, —unless such division should stand in the way of pronunciation: ernstig = ern-stig, instead of er-nstig, ambten = amb-ten, and not am-bten.

NOTE 1.—These rules do not include compound words, which naturally keep their parts intact: plaatskaart = plaats-kaart, slagaar = slag-aar. Likewise do the suffixes aard, achtig, and rijk retain their own letters; blauw-achtig, gunst-rijk, laf-aard.

NOTE 2.—The compositions ch, sch, and ng are not divided: lachen = la-chen; ruischen = ruis-schen; angstig = ang-stig; koningin = ko-ning-in.

Syllables—open and closed.

In Dutch a syllable is termed a) open (open), when it ends in a vowel; b) closed (gesloten), when it ends in a consonant.

Examples of a) vre-de, be-te-ren, ga-de-loo-ze.

Examples of b) lan-den, won-der-daad, on-ein-dig-heid.

EXERCISE ON SYLLABLES.

Break the words of the following exercises into syllables, noticing which of the syllables are open, and which closed:—

1.

Laken, monster, paarden, stallen, dochters, zonen, handen, paneel, kapstok, brandwacht, kapoen, vinger, planten, struiken, boomen, pennen, hazen, eenden, vinden, stokpaard, ketting, wartaal, ganzen, spiegel, vragen, denken, klinken, mengen, marktplaats, slokdarm, waschmand.

2.

Bederven, gedenken, ontvangen, stamelen, regeeren, vergelden, hagelen, hergeven, oorlogen, droefenis, latafel, ouderdom, gestorven, sehrijfbureau, schuifgordijn, akelig, inktkoker, plaveien, instrument, onttrekken, uitvinding, overlast, blikslager.

3.

Betooveren, gedachtenis, goedhartigheid, nauwkeurige, bedelende, nadrukkelijk, onloochenbaar, monsterachtig, wellevendheid, anderhalve, onaangenaam, milddadigheid, havelooze, tandenpoeder, horlogekast, overmachtig, voorwereldlijk, ontstentenis, kompagnieën, vergiffenis, dialektiek, professoraat, regulatie, landarbeid, Zaterdag, blijmoedige, bruiloftsdisch, edelmoedigheid.

4.

Keukengereedschap, kousenfabriek, katoenspinnerij, overeenkomstig, houtzaagmolen, koninginnemantel, Israelitisme, spoorwegmaatschappijen, testamentbezorger, filosofieën, genealogie, onderwijzersvereenigingen, horlogemakerswinkel, primitiviteit, invalideninstituut, zeilenmakerswerkplaats.

CHAPTER II.

SPELLING.

(Spelling.)

I. DUTCH spelling compares very favourably with English spelling. In the pronunciation of Dutch words every letter is sounded. (See the exceptions to this rule in Chap. I, Section II.) A word pronounced, therefore, is a word spelled. This holds good but for the choice of a single or double letter for the representation of full-sounded vowels. In this respect there are obvious discrepancies and striking anomalies, which should, as early as possible, be removed. There is a movement on foot aiming at thorough reform. When such reform shall have reached its object, the present chapter will have lost most of its significance. Then every full-sounded a will be written aa; every full-sounded e, ee; every full i, either ii, or ie; o, oo; and u, uu; while either ei or ij will be abolished. That change will render Dutch spelling well-nigh perfect, and remove every difficulty which now remains in it. However, seeing that the said reform is at the present moment little beyond the stage of a strong and healthy wish, and considering how slowly changes in languages are brought about, it is incumbent on the writer to furnish the following rules pro tem.

II. Words without inflexion take their final consonant according to pronunciation: met, zich, noch.

NOTE.—Noch is neither, nog is yet. This difference in spelling is likely to be removed by the new rules spoken of under § I.

III. When the final consonant of a word is a hard one, the last but one should be hard also; likewise is a soft final consonant preceded by a soft one: nacht has ch, because it ends in t; deugd has g, because it ends in d.

NOTE 1.—This rule gives way to etymology, and is therefore not applied in the conjugation of verbs: hij legt keeps its g before the t, seeing the g forms a part of the stem of the verb.

NOTE 2.—Exceptions to the rule are: reeds, already; steeds, always; sinds, since; bereids, already.

IV. Neither words nor syllables can end in double consonants. The English endings ff and ss, and the German tt and nn can, therefore, not be met with at the end of a syllable of any Dutch word.

V. Words or syllables cannot end in either a v or a z. Where such endings would be demanded by derivation, the v is made an f, and the z an s: vreezen, to fear; ik vrees, I fear; sterven, to die; hij stierf, he died.

VI. Touching declinable words, the question whether they end in d or t must be settled by declining them: paard, horse, sounds paart, but is written with d because its plural is paarden. Vraag, question, sounds vraach, but is written with g because the plural is vragen, in which g, not being final (vra-gen), is pronounced soft. So also vreemd, strange, with d, because of vreem-de; groot, large, with t, because of groo-ter.

NOTE.—Further reference to this matter will be found in the chapter on the Plural and that on the Verb.

VII. Rules about single and double a and u.

1. The double sign aa or uu is used—

(a) When the full sound of the vowel opens a syllable: aar, vein; uur, hour.

(b) When the full sound is closed up between consonants: daad, duur.

2. The single a or u is used—

(a) When the full sound constitutes a syllable in itself: a-del, noble; u-ren, hours.

(b) When the full sound is heard in an open syllable : vra-gen, to ask ; du-ren, to last.

(c) Whenever the sound is imperfect : ar-moe-de, poverty ; urn, urn ; dak, roof ; hut, hut.

(d) When the full-sounded u is followed by w : ruw, rough ; sluw, sly.

VIII. Rules about single and double I.

1. The double sign (ie) is used—

(a) When the full sound occurs between consonants : dienst, service ; mier, ant.

(b) In open syllables, when accented, or final : mie-ren, ants ; ver-drie-tig, sorrowful ; foe-lie, mace.

(c) When the full sound constitutes a syllable in itself in purely Dutch words : ie-mand, some one ; ie-der, every one.

2. The single sign (i) is used—

(a) When the sound is imperfect between consonants : dik, thick ; mik-ken, to aim.

(b) In open syllables, unaccented and not final : mu-zi-kant, bandsman ; fa-bri-kant, manufacturer.

(c) In words taken from foreign languages : i-de-aal, ideal ; i-di-oot, idiot ; i-dee, idea.

IX. Rules about single and double e and o.

1. In very many words the question about spelling with double or single e or o is settled by comparison with corresponding words in English, German, or French, a double vowel in these languages pointing to the use of the double sign in Dutch, and a single vowel to the single sign. In some cases comparison is possible between one Dutch word and another.

EXAMPLES OF DOUBLE VOWELS :

Bleeken, to bleach ; scheede, sheath ; breede, broad ;
heelen, to heal.

Gelooven, to believe ; hoopen, heaps ; droomen, to dream ; stroomen, streams ; berooven, to bereave.

EXAMPLES OF SINGLE VOWELS:

Leven, to live; peluw, pillow; schepen, ships; ketel, kettle; degen, dagger.

Blozen, to blush; hopen, to hope; drogen, to dry; goten, gutters.

EXAMPLES OF COMPARING DUTCH WITH DUTCH:

Scheede with scheiden; heelen with heilzaam; breede with verbreiden; wegen with weg; hemel with hemd; schepen with schip; degen with dagge; edel with adel; blozen with blos; oorlogen with oorlog, and this again with uitleggen.

NOTE 1.—When searching for corresponding words, regard should be had to form and not to meaning, which may be different.

EXAMPLES: boom, tree, is compared to Eng. beam though different in meaning. On the contrary no comparison is possible between Dutch vrede and Eng. peace.

NOTE 2.—This rule is difficult of application, because of words now having to be compared to an English cognate, and now to a German one: weken is in Eng. weeks, but in German Wochen, and takes its one e from its German cognate.

2. Words of one syllable ending in the e-sound or o-sound have the double vowels:

Thee, tea; vee, cattle; zee, sea; wee, woe; kwee, quince; twee, two; mee, with; stroo, straw; zoo, so; vloo, flea.

3. In contracted syllables the e-sound and o-sound are represented by the double sign:

Leeg (ledig), empty; veer (veder), feather; weer (weder), weather; preeken (prediken), to preach.

Boom (bodem), bottom; door (dojer), yolk; vroolijk (vrodelijk), merry.

4. The endings eelen, eezen, eesche, and eeren, have the double e; the endings loozen and genooten have the double o:

Houweelen, pick-axes; juweelen, jewels; Portugeezzen, Portuguese (noun); Soendaneezen, Sundanese (noun); Europpeesche, European; Japaneesche, Japanese (adjective); noteeren, to note; braveeren, to brave; hanteeren, to handle.

Boomlooze, treeless; moederlooze, motherless; speelgenooten, playmates; reisgenooten, travelling-companions.

NOTE.—The ending eren forms a number of Dutch verbs from French (Latin) stems. The original Dutch ending eren, which has a single e, is only found in teren, to live on, verteren, to consume, deren, to hurt, beweren, to maintain, ontberen, to lack, verweren, to defend.

X. Rules as to the choice between ei and ij.

1. Like in the case of e and o, a corresponding word in English or German having two vowels, points to the use of ei in Dutch; likewise, if the foreign cognate has one vowel, the ij takes its place in Dutch:

Feilen, failings; fontein, fountain; spreiden, to spread; meid, maid; zeide, said.

Rijst, rice; prijs, price; lijst, list; dozijn, dozen; paradijs, paradise; wijn, wine; rijzen, to rise.

2. When contraction has taken place, ei must be used:

Zeil (zegel), sail; dweil (dwegel), clout; keil (kegel), wedge.

3. Ei is used in the endings heid, teit, and lei:

goedheid, goodness; majesteit, majesty; allerlei, all kinds of.

4. IJ is used in the endings ij, ijn, ijs, and lijk:

Bakkerij, bakery; galerij, gallery; dolfijn, dolphin; radijs, radish; eerlijk, honest.

XI. The meanings of the following words of like pronunciation should be acquired.

Spelling of Compound Nouns.

XII. Most compounds combine their constituent parts without altering the form of either part, and causing them to appear as one word, no hyphens being used: stal en deur form staldeur, stable-door: schroef en draaijer form schroefdraaijer, screw-driver.

In some cases, however, slight changes in the first part of the compound may be noticed :

1. If the first part ends in e, this e is generally dropped ; aarde and appel form aardappel, potato.

2. Principally to facilitate pronunciation, some words drop their final d when compounded : rijtoer, from rijdtoer, drive ; zijraam, from zijdraam, side-window ; leiband, from leidband, leading-strings.

3. Words which take the double plural ending ers or eren (see page 37), drop the additional s or en, and retain their original plural form in er when compounded : hoenderhok, fowl-house ; eiermand, egg-basket.

4. The first part of a compound frequently takes the letter s either a) as a sign of the genitive case, or b) to bring out a plural meaning, or c) for the sake of euphony.

EXAMPLES :

- a*) Timmermansgereedschap, carpenter's tools ; bruidskleed, bridal dress ; dorpschool, village school.
- b*) Meisjesschool, girls' school ; jongensboek, book for boys.
- c*) Scheidsrechter, arbiter ; schutsheer, protector.

The compound forms which join their two parts together by e or en require more attention. The letter e represents a singular meaning, but changes into en, whenever the second word commences with a vowel or an h. Where this is not the case, en represents a plural. Compounds with the word boom (tree), or the name of any part of a tree, necessarily have e, and not en (as they are not uncommonly spelled), except when the second part begins with a vowel or an h.

EXAMPLES OF SINGULAR FORMS :

Paardestaart, tail of a horse ; lampeglas, lamp-chimney ; speldeknop, pin's head ; pereschil, peel of a pear.

Eikeboom, oak-tree; eiketak, branch of an oak-tree; vijgeblad, fig-leaf; tulpebol, tulip-bulb; rozestruik, rose-bush; but eikenhout, oak-wood; hondenhok, dog's kennel; ganzenei, egg of a goose; brillenhuis, spectacle-case.

EXAMPLES OF PLURAL FORMS:

Boekenkast, book-case; vriendenkring, circle of friends; lampenmagazijn, store for lamps; bijenbrood, bee-bread.

NOTE.—In a few cases en is added to the first part of the word to express: a) a masculine name of an animal; b) a position in society.

EXAMPLES: a) berenpoot, bear's paw; apenkuur, monkey's trick; b) boerenknecht, farm-servant.

CHAPTER III.

PARTS OF SPEECH.

(Rededeelen.)

THERE are ten classes of words, called Rededeelen, Parts of Speech.

They are: 1. Het Zelfstandig Naamwoord, the Noun Substantive; 2. Het Lidwoord, the Article; 3. Het Bijvoegelijk Naamwoord, the Adjective; 4. Het Voornaamwoord, the Pronoun; 5. Het Telwoord, the Numeral Adjective; 6. Het Werkwoord, the Verb; 7. Het Bijwoord, the Adverb; 8. Het Voegwoord, the Conjunction; 9. Het Voorzetsel, the Preposition; 10. Het Tusschenwerpsel, the Interjection.

NOTE.—The above names are for the greater part literally translated from the original Latin.

The Article.

(Het Lidwoord.)

I. The Article, het Lidwoord, is a word which is placed before a Noun to indicate whether the noun has a definite or an indefinite meaning.

NOTE.—English grammars no longer take the article as a separate part of speech, but call it a “distinguishing adjective.” This term, however, is not applicable to the Dutch article, it having a declension which differs from that of the adjective.

II. There are two articles: the definite, het bepalende lidwoord, and the indefinite, het niet-bepalende lidwoord.

FORMS OF THE ARTICLE.

III. The definite article is: for the Singular Number of the Masculine Gender, “de”; for the Singular Number of the Feminine Gender, “de”; for the Singular Number of the Neuter Gender, “het”; for the Plural Number of every Gender, “de.”

The indefinite article is: for the Masculine Singular, “een”; for the Feminine Singular, “eene”; for the Neuter Singular, “een.”

IV. Articles can never be used without a noun which they qualify. They are declined as follows:—

MASCULINE.		Mannelijk.
SINGULAR.		PLURAL.
(Enkelvoud.)		(Meervoud.)
Nom. de man , the man.		Nom. de mannen , the men.
Gen. des mans (or van den man), of the man.		Gen. der mannen (van de mannen), of the men.
Dat. den man (or aan den man), to the man.		Dat. den mannen (aan de mannen), to the men.
Acc. den man , the man.		Acc. de mannen , the men.

Gen. eens kinds (van een kind), of a child.		Gen. van kinderen , of children.
Dat. een kind (aan een kind), to a child.		Dat. aan kinderen , to children.
Acc. een kind , a child.		Acc. kinderen , children.

V. Nouns may reject the article, when such omission causes no ambiguity: De koeien, paarden en schapen zijn alle verkocht, the cows, horses, and sheep have all been sold.

OBSERVATION 1.—The article may never be omitted when its form is not exactly like that of the article expressed. It is wrong to write: Ik heb den vader en moeder van onze meid gezien, I saw the father and mother of our servant-girl; since the masculine form den becomes de before the feminine moeder.

OBS. 2.—The article must always be left out before the second of two nouns which refer to one and the same person; Hij werd de vriend en verzorger dier arme kinderen, He became the friend and guardian of those poor children.

OBS. 3.—The definite article is left out after the words alle, all, and beide, both: Alle menschen moeten sterven, all men must die; Beide vogels zijn ontsnapt, both the birds have escaped.

OBS. 4.—It is customary to repeat the article, though its form be like that of the first article: (1) if one noun is singular and the other plural: De moeder en de dochters zijn heden aangekomen, the mother and the daughters have arrived to-day; (2) in emphatic expressions: Beide de goeden en de kwaden zullen er onder lijden, both the good and the bad will suffer by it.

OBS. 5.—The article is omitted before the names of professions: The boy wants to be a carpenter, de jongen wil timmerman worden.

NOTE.—Poets often make use of the abbreviated form d' for de and even for den.

VI. The article is required in Dutch where it is not used in English:

1. With Nouns representing a class:—

Man is mortal, de mensch is sterfelijk.

The language of animals, de taal der dieren.

2. Before the names of:—

Meals:—We were at breakfast, wij zaten aan het ontbijt.

Diseases:—He has had small-pox, hij heeft de pokken gehad.

Seasons:—Spring is a happy time, de lente is een vroolijke tijd.

Streets:—He lives in Burg street, hij woont in de Burgstraat.

Mountains:—We ascended Table Mountain, wij klommen den Tafelberg op.

Religious sects:—He was converted to Christianity, hij werd tot het Christendom bekeed.

Arts and sciences:—He studies history, hij bestudeert de geschiedenis.

3. Before proper nouns preceded by adjectives:—

Little Charles is ill, de kleine Karel is ziek.

4. Before abstract nouns when taken in their whole extent:—

Youth, de jeugd; old age, de ouderdom; life, het leven; death, de dood; eternity, de eeuwigheid; nature, de natuur; creation, de schepping.

EXERCISES FOR TRANSLATION.—Vertaal oefeningen.

NOTE 1.—The gender of the nouns used in the exercises is indicated by m. for the masculine, v. for the feminine, and o. for the neuter gender.

NOTE 2.—After prepositions use the Accusative (Objective) case.

NOTE 3.—The sentences of the Exercises for Translation are meant to be committed to memory after correction.

CHAPTER IV.
FORMATION OF THE PLURAL.

(Meervoudsvorming.)

I. THE endings of the plural in Dutch are, s, 's, en, n, ers, eren.

II. In s ends—

1. The plural of all diminutives : huisjes, small houses ; boompjes, small trees ; deurtjes, small doors.

2. The plural of words ending in el, em, en, er, aar, ier, and aard : eikels, acorns ; bezems, brooms ; varkens, pigs ; blakers, candlesticks ; handelaars, merchants ; winkeliers, shopkeepers ; dronkaards, drunkards.

3. The plural of foreign words used in Dutch, except when they end in a, o, or u : bals, balls (dances) ; datums, dates ; dames, ladies ; horloges, watches ; tantes, aunts.

NOTE.—Those words are regarded as foreign which have not either through long use, or through change of spelling, actually been taken up in the language as Dutch words.

III. In 's end the plural forms of all foreign words which have their original spelling, and end in a, o, or u ; massa, mass, massa's ; echo, echo, echo's ; paraplu, umbrella, paraplu's.

IV. In en ends the plural of—

1. All Dutch monosyllables, with the exception of the following :

ra, pl. raas, ^{yard or ship} ~~not~~ yard ; vla, pl. vlaas, custard ; kok, pl. koks, male cook ; oom, pl. ooms, uncle ; maat, pl. maats, comrade; man, pl. mans or mannen, man; knecht, pl. knechts or knechten, male servant; zoon, pl. zoons or zonen, son. See § IX.

2. Most of the words taken from foreign languages, but Dutchified through long use, which do not end in a vowel :

Avonturen, adventures; advokaten, advocates; presenten, presents; figuren, figures; rivieren, rivers.

3. All other words, except those which fall under the rules below.

V. In n ends the plural of—

1. All Dutch words ending in e ^{marked} ~~mute~~: gedaante, shape, gedaanten; ziekte, illness, ziekten.

VI. Either in s or en ends the plural of some words in el, er, en, em, and of many derivatives in aar, or, eur, and those in ier which express the names of persons.

EXAMPLES: vogels, birds; bezems, brooms; dienaars, servants; directeurs, directors; officiers, officers; professor, professors; or vogelen, bezemen, etc.

NOTE 1.—Of words which allow of both endings, only the form in s is colloquial: Drie vogels vliegen boven ons huis, three birds are flying above our house; De vogelen des hemels hebben nesten, the fowls of the air have nests. The latter expression is still in language.

NOTE 2.—Mark that professional names which end in or take the accent on the last syllable but one, both in the singular and the plural: professor, plural professoren, professoren.

VII. Words ending in ie require special attention. Those which have the accent on the last syllable but one, form their plural in n or sometimes s: natie, nations, natiën, or naties; lilie, lily, lilieën, or lilies; provincie, province, provinciën; kanarie, canary, kanaries.

The following, however, which have the accent on the final ie, take en:

knie ,	knee,	knieën .
drie ,	three,	drieën .
copie ,	copy,	copieën .
theorie ,	theory,	theorieën .

melodie,	melody,	melodieën.
harmonie,	harmony,	harmonieën.
menagerie,	menagery,	menagerieën.
profetie,	prophecy,	profetieën.
philosophie,	philosophy,	philosophieën.
photographie,	photography,	photographieën.
galanterie,	fancy article,	galanterieën.

Mark the diæresis on the last e, which these words have in common with those ending in ee: zee, sea, zeeën; wee, woe, weeën.

VIII. The double plural ending ers or eren, is adopted by the following nouns of the neuter gender:

blad,	leaf,	bladen or bladeren.	See § IX.
ei,	egg,	eiers or eieren.
gelid,	rank,	gelederen.
gemoed,	mind,	gemoederen.
goed,	goods,	goederen.
hoen,	fowl,	hoenders.
kalf,	calf,	kalvers or kalveren.
kind,	child,	kinders or kinderen.
lam,	lamb,	lammers or lammeren.
lied,	song,	liederen.
rad,	wheel,	raderen.
rund,	cow or ox,	runders or runderen.
spaan,	chip,	spaanders.
volk,	nation,	volken or volkeren.

NOTE.—This double ending is not an original one. As in German, so also in Dutch, the plural of neuter nouns was formerly formed by er. To this plural ending it has become customary to add the endings used for the other genders, viz., s and en, which custom has created the double forms ers and eren now in use. In compound words the old ending er still expresses a real plural: kinderkamer, nursery; hoenderhok, fowl-house; eiermand, egg-basket.

The old plural is used with a singular meaning in spaander, chip, and in the Cape Dutch forms een hoender, een eier.

IX. Some homonymous words bring out their different meanings in the plural. Such are—

SINGULAR.	FIRST PLURAL.	MEANING.	SECOND PLURAL.	MEANING.
been,	beenen,	legs.	beenderen,	bones.
blad,	bladen,	leaves of books.	bladeren,	leaves of trees.
deken,	dekens,	blankets.	dekenen,	deacons.
heiden,	heidens,	gipsies.	heidenen,	heathen.
hemel,	hemels,	canopies.	hemelen,	heavens.
kleet,	kleeden,	carpets.	kleederen,	clothes.

SINGULAR.	FIRST PLURAL.	MEANING.	SECOND PLURAL.	MEANING.
knecht ,	knechts ,	men-servants.	knechten ,*	slaves.
letter ,	letters ,	letters.	letteren ,	literature.
man ,	mans ,	husbands.	mannen ,	men.
middel ,	middels ,	waists.	middelen ,	means.
reden ,	redens ,	ratios.	redenen ,	reasons,
spel ,	spellen ,	booths.	spelen ,	games.
studie ,	studies ,	sketches.	studiën ,	studies.
tafel ,	tafels ,	tables.	tafelen ,	tables (of the law)
vader ,	vaders ,	fathers.	vaderen ,	ancestors.
teeken ,	teekens ,	signs.	teekenen ,	miracles.
wortel ,	wortels ,	roots.	wortelen ,	carrots.
zoon ,	zoons ,	children of one family.	zonen ,	natives of the same country.

* NOTE.—In composition knechten only should be used: krijgsknechten, soldiers; diensknachten, male servants,

X. A few words have an irregular plural form :

smid ,	smith,	smeden .	lid ,	limb and member,	leden .
split ,	slit,	spleten .	schip ,	ship,	schepen .
stad ,	town,	steden .	koe ,	cow,	koeien .
vloo ,	fica,	vlooien .	zoo ,	sod,	zooien .
rede ,	speech,	redenen .	vleesch ,	meat, flesh,	vleezen ,
				(old Dutch vlees , vleys .)

NOTE 1.—Smids, smiths, and zoden, sods, are likewise used.

NOTE 2.—The i in the plural forms of koe and vloo is the h of their German cognates.

2. Words ending in heid (old D. hede) take heden: waarheid, waarheden, truth; zaligheid, zaligheden, bliss.

NOTE.—This ending corresponds to the old English head: Godhead, Godheid; and the modern hood: childhood, kindsheid.

3. Words compounded with man commonly take the plural lieden, the colloquial form of which is lui: timmerman, carpenter, timmerlieden (timmerlui); jonkman, bachelor, jongelieden (lui). The plural mans or mannen, is, however, used as well. Engelschman, Englishman, has Engelschen; likewise Franschman, Frenchman, Franschen. Buurman, neighbour, takes buren.

4. The plural of armvol, armful, and handvol, handful, is armvullen and handvullen. The English "spoonful" has no equivalent in Dutch: two spoonfuls = twee lepels vol.

The words asch, ashes, leven, life, and bod, bid, are always used in the singular: He has had two bids for his house, hij heeft tweemaal een bod voor zijn huis gehad.

Notice also: They have lost their lives in it, zij hebben er het leven bij verloren.

NOTE.—Observe, however—It has cost many lives, Het heeft veel menschenlevens gekost

XI. The following words have no plural form:

1. PROPER NOUNS, except when they designate different individuals of the same family names: de Hugo's, members of the Hugo family.

2. NAMES OF MATERIALS, except when they express particular kinds, or certain specified quantities or pieces: wateren, rivers or seas; brooden, loaves; zouten, chemicals; wijnen, wines.

3. ABSTRACT NOUNS, except when they express a variety: deugden, virtues; schoonheden, beauties; bevalligheden, graces.

4. The following, which, having no plural form of their own, borrow that of synonymous words:

WORDS.	SYNONYMS.	MEANINGS.	PLURAL FORMS.
aanbod ,	aanbieding ,	offer,	aanbiedingen .
bedrog ,	bedriegerij ,	deceit,	bedriegerijen .
beleg ,	belegering ,	siege,	belegeringen .
doel ,	doeleinde ,	purpose,	doeleinden .
genot ,	genieting ,	pleasure,	genietingen .
gevoel ,	gevoelen ,	feeling,	gevoelens .
hoop ,	verwachting ,	hope,	verwachtingen .
inleg ,	inlage ,	deposit,	inlagen .
kunde ,	kundigheid ,	knowledge,	kundigheden .
leer ,	leering ,	doctrine,	leeringen .
oordeel ,	oordeelveling ,	judgment,	oordeelvelingen .
raad ,	raadgeving ,	advice,	raadgevingen .
roof ,	rooverij ,	robbery,	rooverijen .
troost ,	vertroosting ,	consolation,	vertroostingen .
twijfel ,	twijfeling ,	doubt,	twijfelingen .
verdriet ,	verdrietelijkheid ,	sorrow,	verdrietelijkheden .
zege ,	zegepraal ,	victory,	zegepralen .
zegen ,	zegening ,	blessing,	zegeningen .

XII. The following words have no singular :

gebroeders ,	brothers (in a commercial firm).	manieren ,	manners.
hersenen ,	brains.	mazelen ,	measles.
inkomsten ,	revenue.	onkosten ,	expense.
kolen ,	coal.	ouders ,	parents.
kosten ,	cost.	pokken ,	small-pox.
ledematen ,	limbs (of the body).	toebereidselen ,	preparations.
lieden ,	people.	voorouders ,	ancestors.
manen ,	mane.	zeden ,	customs.

And the names of several mountain ranges and groups of islands :

de Pyreneeën, the Pyrenees; de Apennijnen, the Apennines.

NOTE.—There are in Dutch no such combinations as “a pair of scissors,” “a pair of compasses,” by which one object only is meant. A “pair of scissors” is simply eene schaar, plural scharen. A “pair of spectacles” is ecne bril, plural brillen. Naturally, “a pair of boots” is een paar schoenen.

XIII. Of some words the singular form is used with a plural meaning :

(a) To express measure, weight or number :

de voet ,	the foot ;	vier voet lang ,	four feet long.
het pond ,	the pound ;	vijftig pond zwaar ,	weighing fifty pounds.
het paar ,	the pair ;	twee paar schoenen ,	two pairs of shoes.
het dozijn ,	the dozen ;	tien dozijn pennen ,	ten dozen nibs.

(b) In the following idioms :

op de been (for beenen) brengen ,	to raise (of an army).
onder de voet (for voeten) geraken ,	to be trampled over.
slaag (for slagen) krijgen ,	to be thrashed.

OBS.—The following should be noticed : drie guldens, three florins, means three coins, each a florin—whereas drie gulden means any number of coins which together represent the value of three florins; vijf ellen laken, five yards of cloth, means five different pieces of cloth each measuring one yard—whereas vijf el laken means one piece of cloth measuring five yards.

XIV.—Final Consonants with regard to the Formation of the Plural.

Rules for changing final f and s into v and z.

1. A final consonant, occurring after a full vowel or a diphthong, is not doubled before a plural ending: boek, book, boeken; ruit, pane, ruiten.

The same rule applies when an imperfect vowel becomes full in the plural, as in the following 27 :

bad ,	bath,	baden .	verdrag ,	treaty,	verdragen .
blad ,	leaf,	bladen .	bevel ,	command,	bevelen .
dag ,	day,	dagen .	gebed ,	prayer,	gebeden .
dak ,	roof,	daken .	gebrek ,	fault,	gebreken .
dal ,	valley,	dalen .	spel ,	game,	spelen .
gat ,	hole,	gaten .	tred ,	step,	treden .
glas ,	glass,	glazen .	weg ,	way,	wegen .
graf ,	grave,	graven .	god ,	god,	goden .
pad ,	path,	paden .	hof ,	court,	hoven .
rad ,	wheel,	raderen .	hol ,	den,	holen .
slag ,	blow,	slagen .	lot ,	lot,	loten .
staf ,	staff,	staven .	oorlog ,	war,	oorlogen .
va' ,	larrel,	vaten .	schot ,	shot,	schoten .

2. Nouns ending in a consonant, preceded by a short vowel, which retains its imperfect sound in the plural, double their final consonant: bok, goat, bokken; hak, heel, hakken; blok, block, blokken; kat, cat, katten. This doubling of the consonant serves to close the first syllable and to open the second, thereby preserving the imperfect vowel-sound.

EXCEPTIONS :

1. Ch (final) is never doubled, and sch only doubles its s: glimlach, smile, glimlachen; musch, sparrow, musschen.
2. When the final consonant is preceded by an unaccented i or e, it is not doubled, so as not to change the accent: périk, peach, périkken (not perzikken); monnik, monk, monnikken (not monnikken); dréumes, dwarf, dréumesen (not dreumessen); havik, hawk, havikken (not havikken).

The ending is, however, does not fall under this rule: secretáris, secretary, secretáriszen; vónnis, sentence, vonnissen.

Obs.—Rules 1 and 2 apply to the formation of the infinitive forms of verbs, whose stem has a short vowel: bakken, to bake (stem bak); als) to the flexion-forms of adjectives: dom, stupid, domme.

3. Nouns ending in f or s, change f and s into v and z:

(a) When preceded either by a diphthong, a full vowel, or one which becomes full in the plural, e.g. duif, pigeon, duiven; haas, hare, hazen. Except—philosofen, philosophers, photografen, photographers, kousen, stockings, kruisen, crosses, struisen, ostriches, pausen, popes, spiesen, spears.

(b) When preceded by a consonant, f changes into v, except in the two foreign words triumfen, triumphs, and nimfen, nymphs.

The s only changes into z when preceded by l, m, and r:
halzen, necks; gemzen, chamois; laarzen, boots;—and in the following words in ns:

Bonzen, bounces; ganzen, geese; trenzen, snaffles; grenzen, boundaries; grijnzen, grins; eijnzen, tributes; donzen, downs (feathers); likewise the verb glanzen, to shine.

Walsen, walses; polsen, pulses; kaarsen, candles; kersen, cherries; koersen, courses; persen, presses; schorsen, barks (of trees); floersen, veils (figurative), are exceptions.

NOTE.—The cause of this change of final letters must be found in the original form of these words. They formerly ended in ve and ze but dropped their final e: duive, roze (the plural of which was naturally duiven, rozen), became duiv, rooz, and afterwards duif, roos, the hardening of final v and z tending to facilitate the pronunciation.

CHAPTER V.

THE GENDER OF SUBSTANTIVES.

(Het Geslacht der Zelfstandige Naamwoorden.)

I. THE gender of a noun is the way in which it is declined. There being three different ways of declining a noun, there are accordingly three genders, called the Masculine, the Feminine, and the Neuter gender (het Mannelijk, Vrouwelijk en Onzijdig geslacht). It should be apparent from this definition, that the names of inanimate objects must be treated like the names of persons and animals, and are therefore not Neuter on account of things having no sex, but are Masculine, Feminine, or Neuter, according as they are declined.

NOTE TO THE STUDENT.—To foreigners there is perhaps nothing more difficult in the Dutch language than the genders. Even to born Dutchmen they are a great drawback to correct writing. In speaking only two genders are observed, Neuter nouns being by instinct felt to be neuter, while all other substantives, even those that are most obviously feminine, are used with the masculine gender. The rules below are indispensable for correct writing. However, after having acquired them, the student will find that he is by no means able to determine the gender of every Dutch word. More rules might be added, but the difficulty would remain. The only way to acquire the genders is to make it a practice to observe them with the nouns as often as they occur. A good reliable dictionary, besides, is indispensable for reference.

II. RULES TO ASCERTAIN THE GENDER OF NOUNS.

1. Names of male persons and male animals are Masculine, as: koning, king; broeder, brother; leeuw, lion; stier, bull.

2. Names of female persons and female animals are Feminine, as: keizerin, empress; waschvrouw, washer-woman; berin, she-bear; koe, cow.

EXCEPTIONS: het wijf, the woman (term of contempt), is Neut.
Het arme mensch, the poor creature, is heard of women, though mensch is Masc.

3. When the male and the female animal have only one name, that name is Masculine for the larger animals, and Feminine for the smaller, as (Masculine): struis, ostrich; kameel, camel; and (Feminine): kat, cat; muis, mouse.

EXCEPTIONS: mol, mole; spreeuw, starling; nachtegaal, nightingale; vink, finch; kikvorsch, frog, are Masc. Giraffe, giraffe, is Fem.

4. When the male and the female animal have each a separate name, but there is a third name for the two together, this third name is Neuter, as: ram, ram, Masculine; ooi, ewe, Feminine; schaap, sheep, Neuter; Haan, cock, Masculine; hen, hen, Feminine; and hoen, fowl, Neuter.

EXCEPTION: hond, dog, is Masc., though it has reu for the male and teef for the female animal.

5. Names of trees are Masculine, as: eik, oak; wilg, willow.

EXCEPTIONS: linde, lime-tree, tamarisk, and tamarinde, tamarind-tree, are Fem.

6. Names of shrubs, plants, and flowers are Feminine, as: jasmijn, jessamine; geranium, geranium; rogge, rye; perzik, peach; peer, pear.

The word struik, shrub, is Masculine.

EXCEPTIONS: The names of plants and fruits ending in oen, ier, ing, er, and el are Masc.: meloen, melon; anjelier, pink; zuring, sorrel; eikel, (aker), acorn; koukommer, cucumber; mispel, medlar; klaver, clover.

EXCEPTION: kaneel, cinnamon, is Fem.

III. RULES FOR THE COMMON GENDER.—Words which according to their signification, may either be Masculine or Feminine, are said to have a common gender (Gemeen geslacht). They are :

1. Names of persons and animals ending in ling : lieveling, darling; vreemdeling, stranger; nesteling, nestling.
2. Names of persons ending in noot or genoot : echtgenoot, consort; landgenoot, fellow-countryman; speelgenoot, playfellow.
3. The following words : bode, messenger; dienstbode, servant; gids, guide; getuige, witness; wees, orphan; lidmaat, member of a congregation; erfgenaam, heir.

Besides these names of persons, a few other words have a double gender. They are :

1. Words, metaphorically used to indicate persons ; ondeugd, Fem. with the meaning "vice" ; Masc. with the meaning "a naughty boy" ; and Fem. again, with the meaning "a naughty girl" : bloed, Neut., means "blood," Masc. "wretch."
2. Names of fruits which apply also to trees producing the fruit. In that case the word is Fem. when it indicates the fruit, and Masc. when it is used for the tree : kers, Fem. cherry, kers, Masc. cherry-tree.
3. Names of materials which at the same time may indicate a separate piece. When the word is used for the material as such, it is either Neut. or Fem. ; when it indicates a piece, it is either Masc. or Fem. :

Diamant, diamond, may be either Neut. or Masc. ;

Turf, peat, is Fem. or Masc. ;

Kurk, cork, is Neut. or Fem.

In like manner visch, fish, is Masc. and Fem. : Ik heb eenen visch (Masc.) gevangen, I caught a fish ; and Wij zullen visch (Fem.) voor ons middagmaal hebben, we shall have fish for dinner.

IV. RULES FOR THE GENDER OF COMPOUND NOUNS.—All compound nouns follow the gender of their last part. Examples : huis is Neut., and deur is Fem., therefore huisdeur Fem. ; tafel is Fem., and kleed is Neut., therefore tafelkleed Neuter.

There are a few words, however, whose gender changes in composition : blik is Masc., but oogenblik, moment, is Neut. ; stip is Fem., but tijdstip, date, is Neut. ; kant is Masc., but vierkant, square, is Neut. ; hof is Masc., but kerkhof, churchyard, is Neut.

V. WORDS WHICH HAVE CHANGED THEIR GENDER.—Tijd is now Masc.; nacht is now Masc.; feest is now Neut.; oog is now Neut.; hart is now Neut.; oor is now Neut., whereas all these words were once Feminine.

VI. Mark the following list of words :

Bal , ball, globe, Masc.	Bal , dance, ball, Neut.
Blik , look, Masc.	Blik , tin, Neut.
Das , badger, Masc.	Das , neck-tie, Fem.
Deken , deacon, Masc.	Deken , blanket, Fem.
Gang , passage, Fem.	Gang , gait, Masc.
Graaf , count, Masc.	Graaf , spade, Fem.
Hof , court, Neut.	Hof , garden, Masc.
Hoop , heap, Masc.	Hoop , hope, Fem.

Maal , time, Fem.	Maal , meal, Neut.
Morgen , acre, Neut.	Morgen , morning, Masc.
Palm , palm-tree, Masc.	Palm , palm of the hand, Fem.
Patroon , cartridge, Fem.	Patroon , pattern, Neut.
Post , post-office, Fem.	Post , situation, Masc.
Punt , subject, Neut.	Punt , point and full-stop, Fem.
Slag , blow, Masc.	Slag , trap and kind, Neut.
Stof , material, Fem.	Stof , dust, Neut.
Traan , tear, Masc.	Traan , whale-oil, Fem.
Trap , kick, Masc.	Trap , staircase, Fem.
Val , fall, Masc.	Val , trap, Fem.
Vlek , stain, Fem.	Vlek , hamlet, Neut.
Vorst , prince, Masc.	Vorst , frost and roof-ridge, Fem.
Zucht , sigh, Masc.	Zucht , strong desire, or disease, Fem.

VII. NATURAL GENDER. — Natuurlijk Geslacht. — The Natural Gender of persons and animals is indicated by their names.

The ending es makes Feminine names of persons of Masculine ones: dichter, poet; dichteres, poetess; zanger, singer; zangeres, lady singer; dienaar, servant; dienares, (female) servant.

The ending in does the same: koning, king; koningin, queen; keizer, emperor; keizerin, empress; gemaal, consort, (Fem.) gemalin.

It also derives names of female animals from those of male: leeuw, lion, leeuwin; wolf, wolf, wolfin; beer, bear, berin.

The ending ster makes Feminine names of the stems of verbs, where the male appellation is er: bakker, baker, bakster; naaister, needle-woman; schoonmaakster, char-woman.

The same ending ster is added to male appellations ending in aar: toovenaar, magician, toovenaarster; bedelaar, beggar, bedelaarster. The Feminine of dief, thief, is dievegge.

Notice further the following distinctions:

Hebt ,	have (ye).	Weest, zijt ,	be (ye).
Laat hen hebben ,	let them have.	Laat hen zijn ,	let them be.

HOW TO TRANSLATE THE SECOND PERSON.

In correspondence and public speaking "gij hebt, gij zijt," etc., are used with both singular and plural meaning.

In prayer, also, "gij hebt, gij zijt," etc., are the only forms in vogue.

In conversation "u heeft, u is," etc., should be used, though the forms "u hebt, u zijt," etc., are heard as well, especially when a plural meaning is to be conveyed.

In loose and familiar talk “je hebt, je zijt” are the singular, and “jullie hebt, jullie zijt,” the plural forms in use.

Parents to children, close friends to friends, children to children, masters to servants, use the pronoun “je” and “jullie.”

Foreigners should use “u” throughout, except when speaking to small children, or servants.

NOTE.—These observations apply to the conjugation of all verbs.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES.*—Vertaal oefeningen.

EXERCISE XIX.

FIRST RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—When in a principal sentence the verb consists of two parts (auxiliary and past participle), the auxiliary is retained in the position occupied by the English verb, and the past participle forms the last word of the sentence.

This rule may only be broken when various extensions, or a subordinate sentence intervening, the distance between the two parts of the verb is rendered greater than is consistent with clearness.

NOTE.—For the words of these and all the following translation exercises the student is referred to the English-Dutch Vocabulary.

I have a friend. I have [had] a friend (had). I had a friend. I had [had] a friend (had). I shall [have] a friend (have). I shall [have had] a friend (have had). You are my friend. You have [been] my friend (been). You were my friend. You had [been] my friend (been). You will [be] my friend (be). You will [have been] my friend (have been). Let us [be] friends (be). Be (sing.) my friend. Be (plur.) my friends. Let him [have] a book (have). Let me [have] a hat (have). Let us [have] courage (have). Thou hadst [had] a sister (had). You had [been] to (naar) Cape-Town (been). They will

* In these and all further translation exercises words given in square [] brackets are meant to be left out, whereas those in common () brackets are supplied for translation.

[have] the pleasure (have). She had [had] a message from her uncle (had). My aunt had [been] to Wynberg (been). Be quiet, children.

EXERCISE XX.

SECOND RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—In infinitive phrases the verb stands last.

[To be] young (to be). [To have] parents (to have). [To have been] in the street (been to have). [To have had] a horse (had to have). To be obedient, is good. It is good [to be] obedient (to be). To have brothers, is pleasant. It is pleasant [to have] brothers (to have). To be obedient is to be good. To have parents is to be rich. To have a friend is to have a treasure. To have been rich is to have had friends. To be sickly is to be much at home. To have been ill was painful to (voor) him. To have health and to be diligent is to be rich. It was difficult for the boy to be obedient. It was good of you to be in the street. It was kind of him to have bread and tea for us.

EXERCISE XXI.

THIRD RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—In subordinate sentences the verb stands last. When such a sentence has a lengthy extension, the verb may be placed in front of it, but may never be in front of the direct object.

The child is happy, because it [is] obedient (is). One (Men) has friends, if one [is] rich (is). I asked (vroeg) the girl why she [had] so little work (had). The boy would (zou) work in the garden, if he [had] a spade (had). I am rich, because I [have] parents (have). The girl was poor, because she [had been] ill (had been). I should have gone out (uitgegaan zijn), if I [had had] a horse (had had). He would be tired, if he [had been] at (op) school (had been). I asked the man where he was going (heen ging). He answered (antwoordde) me that he [was going] to Cape Town (was going = ging). The harvest is small, as the weather [has been] bad (has been). Ask (Vraag) the boy, whether he [had] a ₂horse ₁yesterday (had). She told (zeide) me that she [was] ₂very (erg) tired ₁last night (was). I told my brother that the cows [were] very thin (were). He asked me if I [had had] a message from my uncle (had had). She told me that she [had been] ₂sickly ₁[for] a long time (had been). My brother told me that the poor man [could] not work (could = kon), because he [had] no (geen) tools (had).

HOW TO TRANSLATE THE INTERROGATIVE, NEGATIVE, AND NEGATIVE-INTERROGATIVE FORMS.

No auxiliary being used for the rendering of these forms, they are for all verbs as simple, as in English they are with the verb "to be."

Do I have?	= have I?	= heb ik?
I do not have	= I have not	= ik heb niet.
Do I not have?	= have I not?	= heb ik niet?
Are you?	= zijt gij?	or, is u?
You are not	= gij zijt niet,	or, u is niet.
Are you not?	= zijt gij niet?	or, is u niet?

The same rule applies to all verbs.

NOTE.—The Interrogative 'did' followed by an infinitive is frequently translated by the perfect tense; e.g., Did you see him? = have you seen him? See p. 177, OBSERVATIONS.

EXERCISE XXII.

Have you an uncle? Yes, I have two uncles and two aunts. Are you young, my boy? Yes, sir, quite young. How old are you? I am twelve. Are you not older, John? No, sir, I am just twelve. Have you had breakfast afterwards? Did you have a horse yesterday? No, I had a bicycle. Were you not tired last night? A little, yes, but not much (erg). Did his uncle have (the) fever? His uncle had (the) fever, and his aunt too. Will he not (yet) have had a (not a=geen) message [yet]? He will not have had a message before twelve o'clock. Did she not have much pain? No, not very much. Are you obedient to your parents? I am always obedient to my parents and teachers. Will you be in school to-morrow? I shall be in school at nine o'clock.

CHAPTER VI.

DECLENSION.

(Verbuiging.)

I. THE changes of form to which Articles, Nouns, Adjectives and Pronouns are subject, are together called their declension.

Declension expresses gender, geslacht; number, getal; and case, naamval.

There are three genders: masculine, mannelijk; feminine, vrouwelijk; and neuter, onzijdig.

There are two numbers: singular, enkelvoud, and plural, meervoud.

There are four cases: nominative, nominatief; genitive, genitief; dative, datief; and accusative, accusatief—more commonly called: eerste, tweede, derde, en vierde naamval, first, second, third, and fourth case.

II. NOMINATIVE CASE.

1. The subject of a sentence is in the nominative case:

De hond blaft, the dog barks.

2. The name of a person or thing addressed, de aangesproken persoon—Latin vocative—is in the nominative case:

Jongens, let op! Boys, pay attention!

3. The verbs zijn, to be, worden, to become, heeten, to be called, blijven, to remain, schijnen, to seem, lijken, to seem, and blijken, to appear to be, take the nominative case before and after them.

Hij is mijn vriend=he is my friend.

Hij lijkt een vreemdeling=he seems a stranger.

Hij wordt soldaat=he becomes a soldier.

NOTE.—The student should notice that the subject and the person named by the predicate of which these verbs form part, are the very same.

4. A noun in apposition to a Nominative case is likewise in the Nominative case: Jakob, de oude tuinier, is gekomen, Jacob, the old gardener, has come; Hij woont bij mij als vriend, he lives in my house as a friend.

III. GENITIVE CASE.

The genitive case expresses possession, relation, descent, or part of some whole.

EXAMPLE:—

Possession: Mijns vaders huis, my father's house.

Relation: De stralen der zon, the sun's rays.

Descent: De kinderen onzer tante, our aunt's children.

Part of a whole: Eene bete broods, a bit of bread.

IV. DATIVE CASE.

1. The person or thing profiting or losing by an action, is in the dative case: Geef mij dat mes, give me that knife; Gij doet mij verdriet aan, you cause me grief.

2. The personal pronoun when used instead of a possessive pronoun, is in the dative case: Hij wast zich de handen, he washes his hands, for: hij wast zijne handen.

V. ACCUSATIVE CASE.

1. The direct object of a transitive verb is in the accusative case: De metselaar bouwde een huis, the mason built a house.

2. The verbs: noemen, to call, heeten (trans.), to call, schelden, to call (names), maken, to make, prijzen, to praise, bevinden, to find to be, achten, to consider, zich betoonen, to show one's self, zich gevoelen, to feel one's self, zich teekenen, to sign one's self, are followed by two accusative cases. Ik teeken mij uwen dienaar, I sign myself your servant; Hij noemt mij zijnen vriend, he calls me his friend.

NOTE.—Observe that the personal pronoun and the following noun are in apposition.

3. Every noun governed by any preposition is in the Accusative case.

Obs.—In old Dutch some prepositions governed the genitive and others the dative case. This fact is traceable in the following expressions:—

Genitive: binnenshuis, inside the house, buitentijds, unseasonably;

Dative: mettertijd (met der tijd), in time.
ter oore komen (te der oore), to come to one's ears, to hear.

4. Nouns expressing time, tijd, weight, gewicht, measure, maat, or value, waarde, are in the Accusative case: De appel kost eenen stuiver, the apple costs a penny. Het pakje weegt een pond, the parcel weighs one pound.

5. A noun in apposition to an Accusative case is likewise in the Accusative case: Ik roep Willem, den koetsier, I am calling William, the driver. De naam van Alexander den Grooten, als veroveraar is alom bekend, the name of Alexander the Great, as a conqueror, is universally known.

IMPORTANT OBSERVATIONS ON THE USE OF THE CASES.

1. The Possessive and Dative cases are being discarded more and more. Their places are supplied by the objective (Accusative) case with prepositions. This is indicated in Chapter III., where the first forms of declension are shown. Thus:

Of the father, des vaders, is now van den vader.

To the father, den vader, is now aan den vader, or voor den vader.

The reason why the Possessive and Dative cases are retained, is, because they are met with in books. In correspondence, however, they are becoming rare, so that the student, while writing correct Dutch, may dispense with them, though for reading purposes he must be acquainted with them.

2. In speaking there is practically no case but the first (Nominative). Conversationally, the declensions of p. 26 would be: de man, the man; van de man, of the man; aan de man, to the man; de man, the man. And again, een man, a man; van een man, of a man; aan een man, to a man; een man, a man;—and so on through the three genders.

3. The student will have noticed before this, and will here observe again the disparity which exists between Dutch spoken and Dutch written. The reason may be looked for in the gradual wearing away of grammatical forms, which by some is hailed as the only natural compromise between the speech of the learned and that of the uneducated, while others deplore it as tending to rob the language of its beauty. It is almost needless to say that the absence of declension-forms in the Cape patois makes it desirable to have as few in the correct medium-Dutch of South Africa as is consistent with the elements of grammar generally, which, as far as the subject of the present chapter is concerned, means, that the Possessive and Dative cases should only be used where they are found to be unavoidable. See here p. 82, IX.

VI. The Demonstrative Pronouns deze (Neuter dit), this, and die (Neuter dat) that, and the Possessive Pronoun onze (Neuter ons), our, follow the declension of the definite article de (Neuter het), the.

The Attributive Adjective is declined according to the changes in the word by which it is preceded. The following examples will indicate these changes:

1 nv.	—, mijne, uwe, zijne, hare, hunne oude huizen, enz.	Nom.	—, my, your, his, her, their old houses, etc.

Exactly like the plural forms of par. VI.

Obs.—When two or more attributive adjectives are joined to a noun, each one is declined separately like the first (as shown above). Such adjectives should be separated by commas :

- 1 nv. Deze oude, trouwe hond, this old and faithful dog.
- 2 nv. Dezes ouden, trouwen honds—and so on.

When, however, the adjectives together convey one idea only the last one alone is declined :

Eene rood, wit en blauwe vlag, a red, white, and blue flag ;
plural—rood, wit en blauwe vlaggen, red, white, and blue flags.

VIII. The Adjective has no e (i.e. it is not declined) in the Neuter gender, Singular number, when preceded by one of the following eight words:—een, a (an); geen, no; eenig, some; elk, each; ieder, every; zeker, a certain; menig, many a; welk, which.

NOTE.—This is likewise the case after the Numeral Adjective veel, wat, and sommig.

EXAMPLE.

- | | | |
|-------|--|--|
| 1 nv. | Een, geen, elk, ieder, menig, welk klein kind, enz. | Nom. A, no, each, every, many a, which small child, etc. |
| 1 nv. | Wat frisch water. | Some fresh water. |

IX. The following observations may be a guide to correct declension.

1. The Masculine Singular is distinguished by an n in three cases out of four. Besides, the 4th case is like the 3rd.
2. The distinguishing letter of the Feminine Singular is e; the 1st case is like the 4th; the 2nd case like the 3rd; it bears great resemblance to the plural.
3. The Neuter Singular has no declension of its own; its 1st, 3rd, and 4th cases are equal, and its 2nd case is a borrowed Masculine Genitive.
4. The distinguishing letter of the Plural is e again; its 1st case is like the 4th.
5. In Plural forms there is no distinction of gender; all Plural forms are equal.
6. When the Article or other first word ends in e or r, the Adjective must end in e; when the first word ends in s or en, the Adjective must end in en.
7. For correspondence purposes, discarding the 2nd and 3rd cases, we may note:—

that the Masculine Obj. has n;
that in the Feminine Singular there are no changes;
that in the Neuter Singular there are no changes;
that in the Plural forms there are no changes.

8. The Adjective, whenever placed before a noun, ends in e, whether it be used in the Masculine, Feminine or Neuter gender, Singular or Plural; the only case of absence of this e being in the Neuter Singular, after the words enumerated in § VIII.
9. Nouns take s in the 2nd case Masculine and Neuter Singular. It should be observed that no apostrophe may there be used. The only use of the apostrophe in Dutch is in the Plural forms of a few words (see p. 35, § III.) and for indicating the Possessive case of proper nouns ending in s, e.g., Paulus' zendbrieven, St. Paul's Epistles.
10. When Masculine and Neuter Nouns end in s or sch, their 2nd case is expressed by means of the Preposition van, of: e.g., de os, the ox, van den os (not des osses); de wensch, the wish, van den wensch (not des wensches); het glas, the glass, van het glas (not des glasses). The Possessive cases of huis, house (des huizes), and vleesch, flesh (des vleesches), are occasionally met with.

X. Nouns may take an adjective which is not preceded by any defining word. In this case the adjective, being the first word, should take the declension of the article. The following examples will show that this does take place, but in a modified form.

XII. By far the most Masculine and Neuter nouns take s as a sign of the Possessive (Genitive) case, as asserted above. These are said to belong to the Strong Declension (Sterke Verbuiging). Of some few, however, the Possessive case ends in en. Such are:—

1. The masculine words: mensch, man; heer, gentleman; vorst, sovereign; graaf, count; prins, prince; hertog, duke; profeet, prophet; and nar, clown.

2. The Neuter word: hart, heart.

3. All Adjectives, and Adjective Pronouns, when used as Nouns: de wijze, the wise man; de goede, the good man; de mijne, mine.

Other words—like de anderen, the others; sommigen, some; eenigen, some; dezen, these; genen, the others; veelen, many; weinig, few, etc.—take n when they refer to persons, and drop it whenever they refer to things.

De mijnen, de uwen, etc., are used in the peculiar sense of my (your) people (or family).

XIII. Compound Pronouns (i.e. pronouns, the first part of which is the definite article) likewise follow the weak declension. They are: degene, he, or whoever; dezelfde, the same; dezulke, such an one. Example:—

The hard, drog- stammen d- boomen zijn met frisch-, week-, groen- dry trunks of the trees are with fresh, soft, green mos (o) bedekt. Zal ik u opnoemen, wat ik op moss covered. Shall I for you enumerate what I on di- lang- reis (v) gezien heb? Groot- steden, prachtig- that long journey seen have? Large towns, beautiful dorpen, veel- wild- dieren (o) opgesloten in eng- kooien (v), villages, many wild animals locked up in narrow cages, breed-, snel stroomend- rivieren, waar rijk versierd- broad, rapidly flowing rivers, where richly decorated bootjes op ronddreven, talloos- groen- weivelden (o), boats on floated about, numberless green meadows, heerlijk schoon- kerken, ee- stalen brug (v) van meer delightfully beautiful churches, a steel bridge of more dan ee- mijl (v) lang, en meer dergelijk- wonderlijk- dingen (o), than a mile long, and more such wonderful things, waarvan men zoo menig- verhaal in d- schoolboeken (o) of which one so many an account in the schoolbooks leest. reads.

The student is recommended to study the following examples:—

English . . .	The water of the river trickles through the hard ground.
Book Dutch . . .	Het water der rivier zijpelt door den harden grond.
Corresp. Dutch . . .	Het water van de rivier zijpelt door den harden grond.
Colloq. Dutch . . .	Het water van de rivier zijpelt door de harde grond.
English . . .	No one has ever trodden the bottom of this terrible abyss.
Book Dutch . . .	Nicmand heeft ooit den bodem dezes vreeselijken afgronds betreden.

Corresp. Dutch . . .	Niemand heeft ooit den bodem van dezen vreese- lijken afgrond betreden.
Colloq. Dutch . . .	Niemand heeft ooit de bodem van deze vreese- lijke afgrond betreden.
English . . .	Have you considered the action of the sun's heat on the leaves of this tree?
Book Dutch . . .	Hebt gij de werking der zonnearmte op de bladeren dezes booms nagegaan?
Corresp. Dutch . . .	Hebt gij de werking van de zonnearmte op de bladeren van dezen boom nagegaan?
Colloq. Dutch . . .	Heeft u de werking van de zonnearmte op de blaren van deze boom nagegaan?
English . . .	I have intimated the king's pleasure to your old father.
Book Dutch . . .	Ik heb uwen ouden vader den wil des konings bekend gemaakt.
Corresp. Dutch . . .	Ik heb den wil van den koning aan uwen ouden vader bekend gemaakt.
Colloq. Dutch . . .	Ik heb uw oude vader de wil van de koning bekend gemaakt.

NOTE 1.—The last example will show that the dative case is in colloquial language indicated not by endings, but by position, which is more effective, and corresponds to the way in which the dative case of the personal pronoun is used.

NOTE 2.—The indication of differences between Correspondence and Colloquial Dutch should not lead the student to suppose that the exercises of this book might be translated into the latter. Colloquial Dutch serves merely for speaking purposes, and should not be made a written language of, seeing that even the easiest and loosest correspondence between educated people adheres to grammatical forms on the lines of the present chapter.

Like "leeren" conjugate the weak verbs: spelen, speelde, gespeeld, to play; deelen, deelde, gedeeld, to divide, to share; leven, leefde, geleefd, to live; bouwen, bouwde, gebouwd, to build; vertellen, vertelde, verteld, to tell; vragen, vraagde, gevraagd, to ask.

Like “stelen” conjugate the strong verbs: slapen, sliep, geslapen, to sleep; nemen, nam, genomen, to take; roepen, riep, geroepen, to call; geven, gaf, gegeven, to give; meten, mat, gemeten, to measure; wegen, woog, gewogen, to weigh.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES.—Vertaal oefeningen.

EXERCISE XXVII.

FOURTH RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—When a subordinate sentence precedes the principal one, the construction of the latter is inverted, i.e., the verb is placed before its subject. If the verb consists of two parts, the auxiliary only precedes the subject, and the principal verb closes the sentence (see First Rule).

Notice here the need of the comma, for separating two verbs which belong to different sentences.

If you [have learned] that long lesson (have learned), (can=kan) you [can] go. If he had a book, (would) he [would] learn the alphabet. When I asked your uncle to tell that story, (said) he [said] that he had told it (ze) already. When dogs [are] young (are), (are) they [are] lively. If the man has stolen the money, (is) he [is] a thief. After (nadat) he weighed the parcel, (gave) he [gave] it to the boy. If my sister has no pain, (sleeps) she [sleeps] very well. Because the man was ill and poor, (was) he [was] miserable. When I was rich, (had) I [had] many friends. As I had no horse, (could=kon) I [could] not go. If I had had a garden behind the house, (would) I [would] [have been] glad (blij) (have been). As the boy had a spade, (worked) he [worked] in the garden. When my uncle's horses (the horses of my uncle) had much grass, (were) they [were] fat. If the child had been at (op) school, (would) it [would] have been tired (have been). If he asks for (om) the inkpot, (will) my mother [will] give it (him) (give). When the child has played [for] an hour, (will) it will [be] satisfied (be).

EXERCISE XXVIII.

TRANSLATION OF PRESENT PARTICIPLE.—Present participles are rarely used. They are translated in various ways. The following rendering should be noted first :

Having a book, the boy is happy = as the boy has a book, he is happy = daar de jongen een boek heeft, is hij gelukkig.

Being ill, the child was at home = as the child was ill, it was at home = daar het kind ziek was, was het thuis.

Having parents, (is) the child [is] happy. Having books, (was) the boy [was] contented. Being small, the girl had little work. Having a spade, the boy worked (werkte) in the garden. Being obedient, the child was happy. Having been ill (as he had been sick), the man was poor. The poor man being ill, was (he) miserable. The boy, having tools, was (he) happy. The child having been (as the child had been) at (op) school, was (it) tired. The weather having been bad, the harvest was small. Having had rain, the trees had leaves. Having no bread, the children were hungry. The cat having had milk, was (she) contented. My horses were fat, having had much grass. Your cows were thin, having had no forage.

EXERCISE XXIX.

Let us build three houses here. Why three? There is room for four. There is no room for four houses on this small bit of ground. Would he have stolen the old horse if there (er) had been a young [one]? If you tell me this, I shall not ask you again. What will he ask me? He will ask you to give up the key which he gave (has given) you. This is the little bird that built its pretty nest among the green twigs. How long did the dog live? It (he) lived five years, I had a horse once which was twenty years old. If your uncle built (has built) on the new piece of ground, I will build on the old [one]. He has not built yet; but he will build on the large now piece of ground next to the old inn. Because he wanted to (wilde) play in the afternoon, he learned his lessons in the morning. You have had the money in your pocket; why did you play (played you) with it (ermee)?

EXERCISE XXX.

NOTE.—“To like to,” and “to want to,” are both rendered by “willen, wilde, gewild.”

The boy wants to learn those difficult words. Yes, but he does not want to (wil . . . niet) [learn] his lesson for his teacher (not learn). I should like to (zou . . . willen) ask you for (om) the paper. The old man did not want to ask for money. Would you like to have a large house and a pretty garden? I should like to have many good books. He wants to give all his money to the poor. Give me those roses! No, I do [not] want to (wil . . . niet) [give] you those roses (not give); they are too pretty and too fresh. Do you want to have more ink? Who would not [like to be] rich and happy (like to be)? I should not [like to build] in this street (like to build); there are already too many large houses. He wanted to call his father, but he was not in his room. The carpenter wants to measure the table. Let him first measure the height of the door.

EXERCISE XXXI.

Observe :

Hij hoopt te zullen slapen = he hopes that he will sleep.

Hij verwacht te zullen bouwen = he expects that he will build.

Hij denkt te zullen komen = he thinks that he will come.

Hij gelooft morgen beter te zullen zijn = he believes that he will be better to-morrow.

Hij zegt om één uur daar geweest te zullen zijn = he says that at one o'clock he will have been there.

Hij belooft zijne lessen dan geleerd te zullen hebben = he promises that then he will have learned his lessons.

NOTE.—The latter part of these sentences may also be literally translated from the English.

She hopes that she will live. I expect that I shall call you. They think that they will come to-morrow. He promises that he will have given the money. She believes that she will be ill to-morrow. Having slept, the child was much better. Let the bird live, boys! Having built a strong castle, the king was safe. John and Henry, share the marbles! Let them also share the money! Let us tell the story of that fearful fire to our parents. The carpenter expects that he will build three large houses. The girl believes that she [will] once [be] very rich (will be). Let us measure these sticks; they are long and strong. Do not always play, children! Let them play now; they will (the next hour) learn their spelling (spelles, v.) [the next hour]. Charles, call the servant, I want to [ask] him something (ask). Yes, father, I shall call him.

THE PROGRESSIVE FORM.

The Dutch language has no Progressive Form. Phrases in that form are therefore expressed in the corresponding tense of the verb, without indicating continuance of action.

He is writing a letter = He writes a letter = Hij schrijft eenen brief.

He was reading the paper = He read the paper = Hij las de courant.

I shall be going to-morrow = I shall go to-morrow = Ik zal morgen gaan.

When it is necessary to give prominence to the continuous character of an action, another kind of expression is used :

He is always writing = Hij is altijd aan het schrijven.

Do not speak to him, he is reading = Spreek niet tot hem, hij is aan het lezen.

EXERCISE XXXII.

The woman is weighing the meat. He was calling his father. The child was sleeping all (the whole) day. He was telling me about (van) his mother, who [is] dead (is). We have been learning our spelling, and we have been playing in the room. The thief has been stealing again. The good dog was still living. Did you call me? No, I was calling your brother. How long did your sister sleep? She slept [for] three hours. She is always sleeping when (als) I want to go out (uitgaan). Will you be measuring the carpet? I have measured it already, but I shall measure it again. Was the mason building the house? He has been building two houses on the main road, and [now] he is building (now) a third. Were you telling him about that crow with the large wings? Tell me that too. I shall tell you by and by.

EXERCISE XXXIII.

NOTE.—The word “when” is translated by “toen,” when an action is expressed in the Past Tense, purporting to name a fact which has occurred once.

In sentences, the verb of which is in the Present or Future Tense, or in the Past Tense, when a habit or regularly occurring event is expressed, the word “when” is rendered by “wanneer,” or “als.”

You were sleeping when (toen) I called. My father was measuring the door when (toen) I gave him the letter. You play when (wanneer) you must learn (must = moet). He had the letter in his hand when (toen) he was playing. When (wanneer) will you call the cat? I called the cat when I was in the passage. When you divide the marbles, you must (moet) call me. When the postman had weighed the book, he gave it to me. Were you building the wall when I [saw] you (saw, zag)? Yes, I was building the wall when you called me to (om te) measure the door. When did the thief steal the money? He stole the money at (om) 5 o'clock. Were you sleeping when he stole it? He took it when we were in [the] house, but we were all sleeping. Was he dividing the marbles when you asked him to play? He always gives me his books when he plays.

CHAPTER VII.

THE ADJECTIVE.

(Het Bijvoegelijke Naamwoord.)

I. ADJECTIVES denote distinguishing attributes or qualities of persons and things: De trouwe vriend, the faithful friend; Het witte papier, the white paper.

II. Adjectives may be used attributively and predicatively. An adjective used attributively, Attributief Bijvoegelijk naamwoord, is connected directly with its Noun: de warme koffie, the warm coffee.

An adjective used predicatively, Predicatief Bijvoegelijk naamwoord, is connected with its noun by means of some form of one of the Copulative Verbs: zijn, to be; worden, to become; blijven, to remain; heeten, to be called; schijnen, to seem; blijken, to appear: Hij is goed, he is good; Zij blijft trouw, she appears faithful; Dat heet mooi, that is called pretty.

Obs. 1.—The adjective, when used predicatively, is not declined, but it may be inflected to express the degrees of comparison: Die boom is hoog, maar deze is hooger, that tree is high, but this one is higher.

Obs. 2.—Other verbs besides those mentioned above may be accompanied by an adjective used predicatively, when, namely, such adjective refers to a noun, and not to the action expressed by the verb: e.g., De deur is bruin geschilderd, the door has been painted brown. Here obviously, “brown” does not refer to the action of painting, but qualifies “door”; it is therefore, not an adverb, but an adjective.

III. The Attributive Adjective agrees with the noun to which it is attached in gender, number, and case. (See Chapter on Declension.)

In a few particular cases, however, it remains unaltered :

Case 1.—When it follows its noun directly, instead of directly preceding it. This was often the case in older Dutch, but rarely occurs now. Vaderlief = dear father ; kindlief = dear child ; Staten-Generaal = General States (House of Assembly), are surviving examples.

Case 2.—When the Indefinite Article “een” stands between the noun and its adjective : Hoe wijs een man, how wise a man ; Te groot een verlies, too great a loss ; Zoo vroom eene vrouw, so pious a woman.

IV. After the words een, a ; geen, no ; eenig, any ; elk, every ; ieder, each ; menig, many ; zeker, certain, and welk, when, occurring before the name of a male person, the adjective, by its being either declined or retaining its original form, applies the same quality with a different meaning to the person, to whose name it is attached.

The uninflected adjective in such a case refers to those qualities which pertain to the state or title of the person ; the inflected adjective refers to his inner qualities as a man, irrespective of the name he bears : een goed koning, a good king ; een goede koning, a good-hearted king ; een knap schoenmaker, an able shoemaker ; een knappe schoenmaker, a good-looking shoemaker ; een groot koopman, a merchant who has a large business ; een groote koopman, a tall merchant ; een oud soldaat, a soldier who has been long in the service ; een oude soldaat, an old man who is a soldier.

NOTE.—Een oudsoldaat means a former soldier ; likewise does een oudleerling mean a former pupil.

V. The following kinds of Attributive Adjectives are not declined :

1. Adjectives denoting a material, and which end in en ; e.g. eene zijden japon, a silk dress ; gouden horloges, gold watches.

2. Adjectives of three or more syllables, when they end in en; e.g. eene afgelegen plaats, a lonely place.

3. Adjectives which by means of the ending er are derived from the names of places, villages or towns; e.g. de Kamper boot, a steamer plying between Kampen and some other town; de Rotterdammer markt, the market of Rotterdam.

NOTE.—The ending er is not the usual ending for Adjectives derived from names of places. The common ending is sch: Beaufortsche schapen, Beaufort sheep; Wellingtonsche wijn, Wellington wine.

4. The comparative degree of adjectives, because in it they take the ending er: Nooit had ik schooner kans, I never had a better chance; Ik heb meer bloemen dan gij, I have more flowers than you.

5. Adjectives which end in lei or hande: allerlei vee, all kinds of cattle; allerhande boeken, all kinds of books.

7. The adjective “eigen,” when it is taken in the meaning of dezelfde, the same: Hij stierf op den eigen dag, waarop zijn broeder geboren werd, he died on the same day on which his brother was born.

NOTE.—If eigen is taken in the usual meaning of “own,” it is declined in the ordinary way: mijne eigene zuster, my own sister.

NOTE 2.—If two or more adjectives are attached to one noun, together expressing but one quality, the last of these adjectives is declined and the others remain unchanged: Holland heeft eene rood, wit en blauwe vlag, Holland has a red, white and blue flag.

OBS.—Adjectives ending in sch may for the greater part be used as adverbs, but then they drop the ch: Ik zie hem dagelijks, I see him daily; Voorwaarts komen, to come to the front. There are a few adjectives, however, which claim special attention, because though ending in a hissing sound, they simply take s and not sch. These are: dwaars, across; wars, averse; bits, tart; flets, faded; paars, violet; sits, chintz; vuns, musty; vies, dirty; dras, marshy; voos, spongy; spits, pointed; kras, strong; los, loose; bros, brittle; ros, ruddy; wis, sure, and gewis, certain. Examples: een gewiese dood, a certain death; een drasse grond, a marshy ground; vooze radijs, spongy radishes; rasse schreden, quick steps.

VI. DEGREES OF COMPARISON (Trappen van Vergelijking).

Objects may possess a quality absolutely or comparatively. Absolute possession is expressed by the Positive degree, Stellende trap, i.e., the unchanged form of the adjective: Mijne les is lang, my lesson is long.

Comparative possession, i.e., possession in comparison with other objects having the same quality, is expressed in two ways:

1. By the Comparative degree, Vergrootende trap, which indicates that an object possesses the like quality with another, only in a higher degree: Het paard is grooter dan de koe, the horse is taller than the cow.

2. By the Superlative degree, Overtreffende trap, which indicates that one object possesses some quality in a higher degree than any other object to which it is compared; Onder alle bloemen is deze de mooiste, among all flowers this is the prettiest one.

The Comparative degree is formed by adding er to the unchanged form of the adjective: groot, grooter, great, greater.

The Superlative degree is formed by adding st to the unchanged form of the adjective: groot, grootst, great, greatest.

NOTE.—In forming the comparative of adjectives ending in f or s, take note of the rules for the formation of the plural of nouns ending in those letters.

OBS. 1.—Adjectives ending in r form their comparative by adding der, instead of er. The comparative of na, near, is likewise nader, and of moe, tired, moeder.

OBS. 2.—Adjectives in s or sch form their superlative by adding t, instead of st: wijs, wise, wijzer, wijst (not wijsst).

OBS. 3.—Meer, more, and meest, most, may not, as a rule, be used in Dutch for the formation of the degrees of comparison. The endings er and st are added, irrespective of the number of syllables. In one special case, however, the ending st of the superlative stands in the way of easy pronunciation, namely in woestst, most desolate, which should therefore be meest woest.

OBS. 4.—There is a case in which the word meer must invariably be used to indicate the Comparative degree, viz.,

when two qualities attributed to one and the same object are compared, e.g., Deze tafel is meer eenig dan mooi, this table is more unique than pretty; Eene koe is meer nuttig dan gezellig, a cow is more useful than sociable.

NOTE.—Meer and meest must also be employed in the comparison of Past Participles used as predicative adjectives: Zij is meer vermoeid dan haar broeder, she is more tired than her brother; Mijne schoenen zijn het meest versleten van alle, my boots are the most worn-out ones of all.

OBS. 5.—In using superlatives, the student should be careful about the article that precedes the adjective. When we speak of different objects among which one stands prominent, the article must be chosen according to the gender of the noun employed, and the superlative ends in ste: De mooiste stad van den ganschen omtrek, the finest town of the whole neighbourhood; Het nieuwste boek, dat ik bezit, the newest book I possess. When, however, parts of the same thing are compared, the superlative ends in st, and the article preceding it is “het” in all cases: Aan de zuidzijde is de stad het mooiste, the town is prettiest on the south side; De zieke is 's morgens het zwakst, the patient is weakest in the morning.

OBS. 6.—Some adjectives from their nature can have no degrees of comparison. Such are:

- (a) Adjectives which indicate a material: eene zijden japon, a silk dress.
- (b) Adjectives whose meaning is complete in the positive degree: dood, dead; stom, dumb; ledig, empty; luchtdicht, air-tight; splinternieuw, brand-new; gitzwart, jet-black; ontelbaar, innumerable; overalteenwoordig, omnipresent; drieëinig, triune; bloedrood, blood-red; almachtig, almighty; aardsch, earthy; Engelsch, English, Fransch, French, etc.
- (c) Adjectives derived from adverbs: voormalig, former; dadelijksch, daily; trapsgewijze, gradual; schriftelijk, in writing; mondeling, verbal.

OBS. 7.—A few adjectives have an irregular comparison:

POSITIVE.		COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
goed ,*	good,	beter ,	best .
kwaad ,	bad,	erger ,	ergst .
veel ,	much,	meer ,	meest .
weinig ,	little,	minder ,	minst .
vroeg ,	early,	vroeger (eerder) ,	vroegst (eerst) .

*NOTE.—The old positive degree is bet or bat = goed, which is still found in the word Betuwe (bat ouwe, good soil), a part of Gelderland; also in belovergrootvader, grandfather's grandfather, and in betweter, wiseacre.

Obs. 8.—After comparatives “dan,” than, must be used, and never “als,” the latter being a Germanism: Hij is rijker dan ik, he is richer than I.

GRAMMAR EXERCISES.—Taal oefeningen.

EXERCISE XXXVI.

(On § IV.)

The good-looking son of our schoolmaster has become an able carpenter. Louis the Sixteenth of France was a good man, but not a good king. The blacksmith in the village is a former soldier. There is a very old soldier in the hospital. The captain who called (eene visite maakte) last night, is a soldier of long standing. There is not a good doctor in the town. Any good-hearted doctor would have had pity on that poor woman. No bad clerk ever makes a good manager. Many [a] great man is not duly appreciated until (dan) after his death. My uncle Henri is such a tall man that he goes by the name of Goliath. This poor man was a great merchant once, but he failed in business and since then has never been able (heeft . . . kunnen) to get on. Of late years Austria has been a faithful ally to (voor) Germany. This young man is but (nog maar) a young mason.

EXERCISE XXXVII.

(On § VI.)

The soap-manufactory is the highest house in the town. Your brother is more diligent than mine (de mijne). The river was deepest where we attempted to cross it (ze). Colonial coal is not so dear as foreign coal. In many parts of South Africa the scenery is more grand than pretty. The almond-tree blossoms first of all the trees in our garden. This bread is the least palatable which (dat) I have tasted for a long time (in langen tijd). A more faithful dog than mine I have never seen. Your dress looks more worn than your cloak. This young barrister is the most learned of all his colleagues. Our dog barked loudest as (toen) we neared the gorge. King Solomon was the wisest man of his time. The horse is liveliest when it has been in the stable (op stal gestaan heeft) [for] a few days. The wildest (woest) parts of the country are the least fertile (sup. of onvruchtbaar). Figs are among (behooren tot) the most wholesome [of] fruits. Of all these lamps this [one] is the least expensive. [A] cheaper cloth than the one (hetgeen) you have, is no good (deugt niet). A more terrific thunderstorm than yesterday's (die van) I have never witnessed.

Liko "dansen" conjugate the weak verbs: kloppen, klopte, geklopt, to knock; straffen, strafte, gestraft, to punish; gissen, giste, gegist, to guess; blaffen, blafte, geblaft, to bark; hakken, hakte, gehakt, to chop; missen, miste, gemist, to miss, to spare.

Like "lezen" conjugate the strong Verbs: wijzen, wees, gewezen, to show, to point out; verliezen, verloor, verloren, to lose; genezen, genas, genezen, to cure; prijzen, prees, geprezen, to praise; vriezen, vrouw, gevroren, to freeze; rijzen, rees, gerezen, to rise.

EXERCISE XXXVIII.

NOTE.—Translate "if" by "indien," or "als," the shorter word being sometimes preferred.

Can you spare [me] one of these new pencils? Yes, I shall give you one (er . . . een), because you ask me for it (er . . . om). If these girls dance in their room, they will be punished. Did you call (Have . . . called) your own dog or (the) mine? I have called mine three times, but he does not hear, for he is barking at (tegen) another dog. If you lose your books, will the teacher punish you? He praised the little boy when he had learned that long verse. If the man had chopped the wood, I should have asked him nothing. Can you guess why he called me? Would she lose all these plants if it should freeze (froze)? Read, children, and tell me what is (staat) in the letter. Let us knock at (aan) the door. If you give me the medicine, it (she) will cure me. If they had shown the money, the thief would have stolen it. If you had guessed the contents of the letter, would you have read (voorgelezen) it to your friend? Do not bark so, old dog, your voice is hoarse with it (er van).

EXERCISE XXXIX.

NOTE.—"Then" is translated by "dan," when introducing a conclusive sentence, following a conditional one:

If he goes, then I must stay, als hij gaat, dan moet ik blijven.

Suppose he had said so, then you would have answered, veronderstel dat hij dit gezegd had, dan zoudt gij geantwoord hebben.

“Then,” when an adverb of time, is translated by “dan” for the Present and Future tenses, and by “toen” for the Past tense.

I go to the baker, and then to the butcher, ik ga naar den bakker en dan naar den slager.

He will come, and then I shall hear it, hij zal komen, en dan zal ik het hooren.

She ran to her mother and then fainted, zij liep naar hare moeder toe, en viel toen flauw.

In the latter meaning it may usually be translated by “daarna” as well, especially when there is a clear succession of events in point of time.

The boy asked his friends (om) to play with him, and then they ran about in the field. I shall miss you when you are gone (weg), for then I shall have no one to (om . . . te) play with me. Were they all praising the girl that night (avond)? They praised her very [much], and showed me her beautiful prizes. When the shopkeeper weighed the sugar, he found out his mistake. He will measure the ground first, and then he will build a large dwelling-house on it (er op). Were the children sleeping when you called them? No, they were not sleeping any more, they were playing; the girls had dolls, and the boys had marbles. One boy was chopping wood for his mother in the yard, and the eldest boy was sitting reading (te lezen) in a corner of the dining-room. Would you like to go to the post-office first (eerst), and then to the station? I would rather (liever) go to the station first. You want to show me the pictures, my little boy? Having lost her money, the poor woman was in great distress.

EXERCISE XL.

FIFTH RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—When the object (direct or indirect), or an adverbial extension stands first in a principal sentence, the subject is placed after the predicate.

Yesterday (showed) my brother [showed] me the new house. Five pounds (gave) the man [gave] for the old donkey. Him (called) he [called], not you. To dance (Rule 2) [on] that night (avond), would have been [a] shame. (It) to have missed [it], would have been to have lost it. Now that my mother is gone (weg), my all (alles) is gone. The passage (would) you [would] not measure for me, (said) you [said]; why not? (The) life on earth is pleasant to (voor) some people, but miserable to many. In the school I learn, in my bed I sleep; when I am at table, I eat, and when (I am) in the garden, I play. That you must (moet) not ask me, for how can (kan) I tell it you? Would the thief have stolen the money, if you had given him some bread? Work [you] must (you) whether (of) you are rich or (of) poor; all people must work. After the battle the soldiers divided the spoil amongst (onder) them (zich). Behind the house is a large garden with many precious fruit-trees.

VII. THE NUMERAL ADJECTIVE.—Het Telwoord.

NUMERAL ADJECTIVES, though taken in Dutch as a separate part of speech, are real adjectives expressing a quantity. That quantity may be defined or not, hence the distinction between Bepaalde Telwoorden, Definite Numeral Adjectives, and Onbepaalde Telwoorden, Indefinite Numeral Adjectives. Besides expressing a quantity, these Adjectives may also point out the place a certain object takes in a series, hence the distinction between Hoofdgetallen, Cardinal Numbers, and Ranggetallen, Ordinal Numbers. The place or order may again be defined or not. The distinctions are shown in the following table:—

- | | |
|---|------------------------------------|
| 1. Hoofdgetallen
(Cardinals). | a. Bepaalde (definite). |
| | b. Onbepaalde (indefinite). |
| 2. Ranggetallen
(Ordinals). | a. Bepaalde (definite). |
| | b. Onbepaalde (indefinite). |

EXAMPLES :

- a. een, one; twee, two; twintig, twenty; beide, both; etc.

1. b. Veel, much, many; alle, all; eenige, some, any; wat, some; weinig, little, few; sommige, some; geen, no, etc.
2. a. eerste, first; derde, third; vijftigste, fiftieth, etc.
2. b. hoeveelste, which (in the order); zooveelste, such an one (in the order); laatste, last; middelste, the middle one.

Sentences on 1. b.

Deze man heeft eenige huizen te koop, this man has some houses for sale.

Hij heeft veel nieuwe boeken, he has many new books.

Sommige dagen heb ik te veel werk, on some days I have too much work.

Er zijn geene appelen aan den boom, there are no apples on the tree.

Heeft u alle (al de) eieren in die mand? have you got all the eggs in that basket?

NOTE.—If the word alle is followed by the definite article or a demonstrative pronoun, its form is undeclined, i.e. al (not alle), e.g., ik heb al de huizen geteld, I have counted all the houses.

Sentences on 2. b.

De hoeveelste plaats heeft uw broeder in de klas, which place has your brother got in class?

U zegt, dat dit het twintigste boek is? ik wist niet dat het al het zooveelste was, you say that this is the twentieth book? I did not know we had had so many.

Het middelste huis in de straat is het mijne, the middle one of the houses of this street is mine.

Obs.—Num. Adj. both definite and indefinite, like all adjectives, may be used as nouns of the weak declension (see p. 85): Vele eersten zullen de laatsten zijn, many (that are) first shall be last; Sommigen raden dit aan, anderen wat anders, some advise this, others something else.

VIII. Cardinals are not declined except één, one (written with a double accent to distinguish it from the indefinite article een), and beide.

Eén, moreover, is not declined when it occurs in combination with another cardinal: een en twintig jaren, twenty-one years. In this case some write eenentwintig. Eén, used by itself, is declined like the indefinite article, except that it has no form for the genitive case. When preceded by the definite article or a demonstrative pronoun, it is declined like an adjective, and even has a plural: Aan den eenen kant zou ik er wel lust in hebben, on the one hand I should rather like it; De eenen zeggen dit, de anderen dat, some say this and others that.

NOTE.—All Cardinals have a plural form when used as the names of arithmetical figures: Schrijf vier vijven op uwe lei, put down four fives on your slate.

OBS.—Honderden and duizenden, real substantives, though treated as adjectives, never change their form: Honderden uren ver, hundreds of hours distant.

Beide, meaning “both,” has of course only a plural form, and is declined: beide, beider, beiden, beide. Used by itself and referring to persons, the nom. and acc. case of it is beiden: Ik heb van beiden evenveel vriendelijkheid ondervonden, I have experienced equal kindness from both. But when referring to things, or when used to qualify a noun, these cases (not the dative) are beide: Licht en duisternis zijn mij beide even welkom op hunne beurt, light and darkness are both equally welcome to me in their turn; Mijne beide broeders zijn dood, both my brothers are dead.

IX. The indefinite Cardinals, as well as the definite and indefinite Ordinals, are all declined like common adjectives. When used separately, and referring to persons, they all take n in every case of the plural, like nouns of the weak declension, but they drop this n, when they refer to things.

Veel and weinig, when occurring before plural nouns, convey the idea of quantity, whereas vele and weinig mean different kinds:

Mijn vriend heeft veel boeken, en ik heb er weinig, my friend has many books, and I have few.

Er groeien vele appelen in onzen tuin, hoewel het getal onzer boomen niet groot is, we have many kinds of apples growing in our garden, though the number of trees is not large.

NOTE.—Usually the word soorten, kinds, is added, to facilitate comprehension.

X. Notice the following idiomatic renderings:—

(a) Of the word "Some."

1. Before names of materials, or collective nouns: some tea, wat thee; some fuel, wat brandhout; some money, wat geld;—likewise before plural nouns (in colloquial style): some apples, wat appelen.

NOTE.—Een beetje, literally "a little bit," is likewise used before materials: some (a little) water, een beetje water; some cake, een beetje koek;—and een paar, a few, or een stuk of wat, before plurals: some (a few) stones, een stuk of wat steenen.

2. Before plural words: some houses, eenige (een paar) huizen; some cows, eenige (een paar) koeien.
3. With the meaning of "a little": May I give you some (a little) of this? mag ik u hiervan iets (wat) geven?
4. With the meaning of "a few": Some (a few) of these birds are green, enkele van deze vogels zijn groen.
5. To bring out "kind" or "sort": Some flour is good, and some is not, sommig meel is goed en ander niet; Some (kinds of) people can do that, and others not, sommige menschen kunnen dat, en anderen niet.

NOTE.—The principal idea of eenige is number, and of sommige, various kinds.

6. Signifying "several": We tarried there some days, wij vertoefden daar verscheidene dagen.
7. In its most indefinite signification: I should like to give him some (kind of) reward, ik zou hem graag de eene of andere belooning geven; Some day I hope to see you again, den eenen of anderen dag hoop ik u weer te zien.

(b) Of the word "Any."

1. In questions: Have you any books? heeft u ook boeken? Are there any children in the lane? zijn er ook kinderen in de laan?
2. In negations: Have you got these pears? No, not any, Heeft u die peren? Neen, geen enkele; He had not any money with him, hij had volstrekt geen geld bij zich.
3. With emphasis, before a singular noun: You must come in any case, gij moet in elk geval komen.

With emphasis, before a plural noun: I expect you under any circumstances, ik zal u onder alle omstandigheden verwachten; the safe is proof against any attacks by thieves, de brandkast is bestand tegen alle aanvallen van dieven.

4. In a general sense: He did as well as any boy could have done, hij deed het zoo goed als een jongen het maar kan.
5. Before an Adjective: Any other horse would have kicked, ieder ander paard zou geschopt hebben.

XI. Mark further the following expressions:

1. At one o'clock, om één uur.
2. At half-past two, om half-drie (remember the hyphen).
3. At about five o'clock, omstreeks vijf uur.
4. Some six pounds, een pond of zes (een unaccented).
5. Some twenty years, een jaar of twintig (this way of expression is not customary for sums higher than twenty).
6. Some hundred books, een honderd boeken.
7. Some few sheep, een schaap of wat.
8. Some fifteen young trees, een stuk of vijftien jonge boomen.
(Use "ongeveer" before large quantities.)
9. About a fortnight, een veertien dagen (een dag of veertien).
10. About four weeks, een vier weken (eene week of vier).
11. About fifty bags of rice, een vijftig zakken rijst.
12. Some eight days, een acht dagen (een dag of acht).
13. Chapter fourth, hoofdstuk vier, or het vierde hoofdstuk.
14. The tenth verse, vers tien, or het tiende vers.
15. London, the twelfth of May, Londen, twaalf Mei (no other form is used).
16. Manchester, December 31st, 1821, Manchester, 31 December, 1821.
17. William the Third, Willem de Derde (no other form is used).
18. This paper is sold at ten shillings a ream, dit papier wordt verkocht tegen tien shillings per (or den) riem.
19. Pens for sale, four a penny, pennen te koop, vier voor een stuiver.
20. The two of us, wij tweeën.
21. The whole of us, wij allen.
22. I saw all four of them, ik zag hen alle vier.
23. Only the three of them are going, zij gaan maar met hen drieën.
24. We four were alone, wij vieren waren alleen.
25. Twenty of them will climb the mountain, zij gaan met hen twintigen den berg op.

XII. Common adjectives are formed from Cardinal Numbers by the addition of voudig or vuldig, meaning "fold." Such adjectives are called Verdubbelgetallen (multiplicatives): tweevoudig, twofold; viervoudig, fourfold; menigvuldig, manifold; veelvoudig, manifold. They are declined like ordinary adjectives.

XIII. By means of the endings lei and hande (both obsolete Dutch words, meaning "kind" or "sort"), Adjectives are formed from Cardinal Numbers; these, however, are indeclinable. On account of their meaning they are called Soortgetallen (variatives): eenerlei, of the same kind; velerlei, of various kinds; allerlei, all sorts of; tweerlei, of two kinds; zesderlei, of six different kinds; honderderlei, duizenderlei, etc.

Obs.—Since the endings lei and hande mean "kind" or "sort," it is obviously incorrect to speak of velerlei soorten (literally many kinds of kinds). Every grammar warns against this pleonasm, but colloquial language defies grammar in not only sometimes adding the word soort to a soortgetal, but even making it a rule to do so.

XIV. There are also a few Adverbs derived from Cardinal Numbers by means of the endings maal, werf, and keer, all meaning "time" or "turn." In Dutch they are called Herhalingsgetallen; in English, Adverbs of Number: driemaal, driewerf, driekeer, three times; eenmaal, once, etc.

NOTE 1.—Maal and keer are also used as Substantives: Ik zie hem drie malen op één dag, I see him three times in one day; Ik heb hem voor den derden keer gewaarschuwd, I have warned him for the third time.

NOTE 2.—Like maal and keer, the word reis was formerly used to express time or turn. It is very seldom heard now but in one contraction, which the student must needs be acquainted with, viz., ereis, pronounced erus, a contraction of een reis, once. It is often heard in children's tales.

XV. "One and a half" is translated anderhalf (not, as in Cape Dutch, een en een half). The meaning of this is "one whole (not expressed) and the other half." In the same manner derdehalf, two and a half; vierdehalf, three and a half; vijfdehalf, four and a half; and zesdehalf, five and a half, are made use of, though seldom.

CARDINALS.	MEANING.	ORDINALS.
duizend,	a thousand,	de or het duizendste.
duizend en een,	a thousand and one,	„ „ duizend en eerste.
duizend en twee,	a thousand and two,	„ „ duizend en tweede.
duizend en tien,	a thousand and ten,	„ „ duizende en tiende.
duizend één hon- derd,	one thousand one hun- dred,	„ „ duizend één hon- derdste.
twee duizend,	two thousand,	„ „ twee duizendste.
tien duizend,	ten thousand,	„ „ tien duizendste.
een millioen,	a million,	„ „ millioenste.

NOTE 1.—Millioen is a noun of the neuter gender: een millioen sterren, a million of stars.

NOTE 2.—Be careful not to write achttien with one t. Its composition demands a double t.

NOTE 3.—Mark acht, achttien, and tachtig. The t in this latter word is prefixed.

NOTE 4.—A (or one) hundred, and a (or one) thousand should simply be translated honderd (not een honderd), and duizend (not een duizend).

NOTE 5.—In summing up, translate first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, etc., only by ten eerste, ten tweede, ten derde, ten vierde, ten vijfde, ten zesde.

The Cape custom of writing eerstens, tweedens, derdens, vierdens, etc., is a Germanism, and not to be encouraged.

EXERCISE XLI.

(On Writing out Numbers.)

Write out in words the numbers given below, noticing specially the following points :

Unlike the English :

- (a) Vijfhonderd twee; drie honderd twintig = five hundred and two; three hundred and twenty.
- (b) Vijf en twintig = twenty-five.
- (c) Duizend = one thousand; honderd = one hundred.

Like the English :

- (a) Duizend en één, duizend en twintig = a thousand and one, a thousand and twenty,

- (b) De honderd en eerste, de honderd en twintigste = the one hundred and first, the one hundred and twentieth.
 (c) Een millioen en één = a million and one.

5340; 3003; 525; 1,000,001; 720,540; 4400; 505; 8808; 7,070,070; 6,006,006; 9,900,099; 1,001,100.

EXERCISE XLII.

Some ten of our young rose-trees are frostbitten (doodgerijpt). Give the child some hot milk to drink. The battle of Waterloo was fought on the eighteenth of June, eighteen hundred and fifteen. A party of twenty young men went up the mountain together. Some few sheep among the lot were poor, but all the rest were in splendid condition (zagen er bijzonder goed uit). I would like to give this poor boy some reward for his honesty. The merchant showed me a few samples [of] Java coffee, the best of which (waarvan) is (wordt) sold at (voor) eighteen pence a (the) pound. After we had spent about a fortnight at (aan) the strand, my mother was taken (became) so ill that all of us had to (must) return home (naar huis). I did not have any mistakes in my dictation to-day. The last house in the street is my brother's (that of—). There are two kinds of seed in this bag. This man has received a fourfold reward.

EXERCISE XLIII.

This parcel weighs a pound and a half. The child has been punished twice to-day. There are various kinds of books in our school library. The painter painted the wall three times. For some reason or other the child had not done her work. May I give you some of this meat? Yes, thank you (if you please = als 't u belieft). In less than ten minutes there were hundreds [of] people on the scene of the fire. What day of the month was (it) yesterday? It was the twenty-fifth. The letter was dated: Rotterdam, June 22nd, 1894. Are there any children that have got no pens? Some of the fowls had their wings clipped (worden gekortwiekt). Some of the sugar (which) we have had from that shop has been very bad. I gave the child some cake and sent her home. Some advise me to go by rail (per spoor), others to take the steamer, and being a stranger (as I am —) I do not know what will be best.

EXERCISE XLIV.

SIXTH RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—If a negative sentence contains an object, whether direct or indirect, the adverb “niet” is placed after such object. For the rest the position of “niet” in negative sentences does not materially differ in Dutch from the one it holds in English, and is scarcely definable by rules.

Did he not tell you a story? He did not take the money from my eldest brother. We did not play in the garden, but in the dining-room. Lions do not live longer than elephants. When we travel in the mountains, we do not sleep in tents, but in caves. Did the medicine cure your poor mother? Did the children learn all their lessons in an hour and a half? Did he have any stories to tell? He told (er) some (een paar) but not many. Did you not ask him to weigh the meat? The boys did not play (with) marbles, when they were in the field. Did not your grandfather live till (tot) the house was built? The teachers did not praise the children when they had done (gedaan) their work, but they punished them whenever it was not done. I should not have taken the books, if I had not asked him. The dogs would not have barked at (tegen) the boys, if they had not played in the street.

EXERCISE XLV.

TRANSLATION OF PRESENT PARTICIPLE. II.—Present Participles (see Ex. XXVIII., p. 96) are secondly translated by means of the conjunction “terwijl” while:—Take care, she said, laying her hand on his shoulder, pas op, zei zij, terwijl zij hare hand op zijnen schouder legde. (See p. 175, Obs. 3, c.)

Do not make a mistake in telling him (while you tell him) the story. The dog barked at (tegen) me, showing (while he showed) (liet zien) his teeth in between (tussen in). Asking the shop-keeper to show him some boots, he stole the laces. Dividing the apples amongst (onder) her children, the mother lost (er) one. She walked ₂up and down ₁her room, learning her lesson. Coming up to me (naar mij toe), the stranger handed me this letter. Reading over the sentence, I discovered my mistake. Playing with the hatchet, the little boy hurt his hand. Looking for shells on the beach, I found this pretty gold ring. Oh, my brother, she cried (riep) (she), running towards him and embracing him. Taking up her bundle of sticks, the old woman walked off.

EXERCISE XLVI.

An Irishman was in (had once) want of money. He thought he would go [and] steal. Looking about in his house, he found an old rusty pistol. He took the weapon and went to a spot where (the) farmers used to (plachten) pass on [their] way (naar) home from (the) market. Placing himself behind a large tree, he waited (transl. he placed . . . and waited) till someone came past. After half an hour a cart appeared, in which [there] sat an old farmer. The thief jumped [from] out his hiding-place (te voorschijn), and made for (ran towards) the horse. Grasping the reins, he levelled the pistol at the farmer's head, and cried, “Your money or your life!” The farmer replied, “Do not kill me; let us rather make an agreement. I give you my money, and you give me that pistol." Hereupon the thief handed over his weapon, and the farmer handed over his purse. The thief ran off with his prize, but the farmer jumped down from his cart and ran after him (hem achterna). He soon overtook him, and seizing him by his collar, exclaimed (he), "Now my money, or your life!" "Oh," cried the Irishman, "shoot away (schiet maar toe), there is no powder in my pistol!"

CONVERSATIE.

Familiebetrekkingen.

1. Deze oude heer is het hoofd der familie.
2. Leven uwe ouders nog?
3. Mijn vader leeft nog, maar mijne moeder is reeds eenige jaren dood.
4. Heeft u veel familiebetrekkingen?

| 29. Ja, zijne vrouw is verleden jaargestorven, en heeft een dochtertje van vier jaar en een kindje van pas een paar maanden nagelaten. | 29. Yes, his wife died last year, and left one little girl of four years and a baby of only a few months old. |

CHAPTER VIII.

THE PRONOUN.

(Het Voornaamwoord.)

I. A PRONOUN, Voornaamwoord, as the name indicates, stands for a noun, that is, takes the place of a noun.

II. The kinds of Pronouns are—

Persoonlijke (Personal).
Betrekkelijke (Relative).
Vragende (Interrogative).
Onbepaalde (Indefinite).
Bepaling aankondigende (Correlative).
Aanwijzende (Demonstrative).
Bezittelijke (Possessive).

III. PERSONAL PRONOUNS. The Personal Pronouns are—

1st Person.		2nd Person.
Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
Ik , I.	Wij , we.	Gij , jij , thou.	Gij , jullie , you.
3rd Person.
Singular.		Plural.
Hij , zij , het , he, she, it.		Zij , they.

IV. The pronouns of the first and second persons have no distinction of gender, but those of the third person have. Their declension is accordingly as follows:

PERSOON.	GESLACHT.	ENKELVOUD.	MEERVOUD.
Eerste	{ Mann., Vr. or Onz.	1 nv. I, ik .	We, wij .
		2 nv. Mine, mijner , mijn .	Ours, onzer , ons .
		3 nv. Me, mij , me .	Us, ons .
		4 nv. Me, mij , me ,	Us, ons .

PERSON.	GESLACHT.	ENKELVOUD.	MEERVOUD.
Tweede.	{ Mann., Vr. or Onz.	1 nv. Thou, gij, ge ; jij, je.	You, gij, ge ; jullie.
		2 nv. Thine, uwer, uw ; van jou.	Yours, uwer—van jullie.
		3 nv. Thee, u ; jou, je.	You, u ; jullie.
		4 nv. Thee, u ; jou, je.	You, u ; jullie.
Derde.	Mannelijk.	1 nv. He, hij.	They, zij, ze.
		2 nv. His, zijner, zijn.	Theirs, hunner, hun.
		3 nv. Him, hem.	Them, hun, ze.
		4 nv. Him, hem.	Them, hen, ze.
Derde.	Vrouwelijk.	1 nv. She, zij, ze.	Like the Singular.
		2 nv. Hers, harer, haar.
		3 nv. Her, haar, ze.
		4 nv. Her, haar, ze.
Derde.	Onzijdig.	1 nv. It, het.	Like the Masculine Plural.
		2 nv. Its, zijns, zijn.
		3 nv. It, het.
		4 nv. It, het.

OBS. 1.—The old form of the 2nd Person Singular, du (thou), possessive case dijn (thine), is obsolete. The apparent difficulty resulting therefrom has been hinted at before. The following rules should be adopted :—

- (a) In books, correspondence, and public speaking use gij, or ge, singular and plural, with verb in 2nd person ;
- (b) In polite speaking use u, singular and plural, with verb in 3rd person (sometimes the 2nd).
- (c) In familiar talk to children, brothers, sisters, and close friends, use je (with emphasis jij) singular, and jullie plural, with verb in 2nd person. (See p. 65.)

OBS. 2.—Ik is usually pronounced 'k, and often written so. Hij is often pronounced i, especially after words ending in t, but in writing remains hij. Ge, je, and we are soft forms for gij, jij, and wij, and are very commonly used, both in speaking and writing, when no emphasis is required.

OBS. 3.—Personal Pronouns agree with the natural and not with the grammatical gender of the nouns to which they refer : Dat meisje heeft haar (not zijn) boek verloren, that girl has lost her book.

OBS. 4.—Personal Pronouns also agree in number with the nouns for which they stand, and this is the case even with collective nouns: Toen de menigte dit hoorde, ging zij (singular) uiteen, when the crowd heard this, they dispersed.

OBS. 5.—Elkander or elkaar, mekander or mekaar, meaning “each other” or “one another,” are called Reciprocal Pronouns, wederkeerige persoonlijke voornaamwoorden, because their meaning indicates that the action of the verb with which they stand passes continually from one person to another: Zij slaan elkander, they beat each other; Zij bedriegen elkander, they deceive one another.

NOTE.—When used as above, these pronouns have neither nominative nor possessive case. They may, however, be used as adjective pronouns indicating possession, in which case they take a genitive form: Wij verheugen ons in elkanders gezelschap, we are glad of each other's company.

OBS. 6.—Zich, one's self, is the Reflexive Pronoun, terugwerkend voornaamwoord, of the 3rd person, masculine, feminine, and neuter, only used in the 3rd and 4th cases, while for the Reflexive Pronouns of the 1st and 2nd persons the objective cases of these pronouns are used.

EXAMPLES:

Ik . . .	With verb in between.	. . .	mij , I myself.
Gij	u , you yourself.
Hij	zich , he himself.
Zij	zich , she herself.
Het	zich , it itself.
Men	zich , one oneself.
Wij	ons , we ourselves.
Gij	u , you yourselves.
Zij	zich , they themselves.

NOTE 1.—Notice particularly that “I myself” is translated by ik zelf, and not ik mijzelf, e.g. I go myself, ik ga zelf; She will do it herself, zij zal het zelve doen. The addition of the pronoun zelf serves only to accentuate the meaning, so that in the use of reflexive verbs it should only be added where emphasis is required. “Must I go and wash myself?” should therefore be rendered, Moet ik mij gaan wasschen? unless there is question of ‘not washing some one else,’ in which case alone it should be: Moet ik mijzelf gaan wasschen?

NOTE 2.—When the reflexive pronoun forms the preposition-object of the verb, the Dutch expression corresponds with the English one:

He said to himself, hij zeide bij zichzelf;
I thought to myself, ik dacht bij mijzelf.

OBS. 7.—Declension of the Personal Pronoun with the word “zelf”:

	Mannelijk.	Vrouwelijk.
1 nv.	Ik, gij, hij zelf, I myself, etc.	Ik, gij, zij zelve.
2 nv.	Van mijzelven, or mijzelf, etc.	Van mijzelve, etc.
3 nv.	Mijzelven, uzelven, hemzelven,	Mijzelve, uzelve, haarzelve.
	or or or
4 nv.	Mijzelf, uzelf, hemzelf.	Mijzelve, uzelve, haarzelve.

Onzijdig.

1 nv.	Ik, gij, hetzelf.
2 nv.	Van mijzelf, van hetzelf, etc.
3 nv.	Mijzelven, uzelven, hetzelf.
	or or or
4 nv.	Mijzelf, uzelf, hetzelf.

Meervoud voor de drie Geslachten.

1 nv.	Wij, gij, zijzelven (of persons)—zizelve (of things).
2 nv.	Van onszelven, etc.
3 nv.	Ons, u, hunzelven, „ „ —zelve.
4 nv.	Ons, u, henzelven, „ „ —zelve.

Not only personal pronouns, but also nouns may take this word zelf to render their meaning more emphatic:

	Mannelijk.	Vrouwelijk.	Onzijdig.
1 nv.	De broeder zelf,	De zuster zelve,	Het kind zelf.
2 nv.	Des broeders zelven,	Der zuster zelve,	Des kinds zelven.
3 nv.	Den broeder zelven,	Der (of de) zuster	Het kind zelf. or	zelve.
4 nv.	Den broeder zelf.	De zuster zelve.	Het kind zelf.

Meervoud voor de drie Geslachten.

1 nv.	De broeders, zusters, kinderen zelven,	zelve.
2 nv.	Der broeders, zusters, kinderen zelven,	zelve,
3 nv.	Den broeders, zusters, kinderen zelven,	zelve,
4 nv.	De broeders, zusters, kinderen zelven,	zelve.

NOTE.—Mark the difference between this word and the word zels, meaning “even,” which is often confused with it.

OBS. 8.—The Possessive case of personal pronouns is now rarely used, but is met with in some time-established expressions (geijkte termen), such as: gedenk mijner, think of me; erbarm u zijner, have pity on him; de meesten hunner, most of them; velen uwer, weinigen uwer, many of you, few of you.

Sometimes the Possessive case of personal pronouns is found compounded with another word, so as to form an Adverbial phrase: Ik doe het uwentwege, om uwentwil, uwenthalve, I do it for your sake. The t in these compositions is inserted for the sake of facilitating pronunciation.

NOTE.—Write: Ik ben u beider vriend, I am a friend of both of you, (not—uwer beider vriend, nor—uw beider vriend): Hun aller broeder, a brother of them all (not: hunner aller broeder).

NOTE 2.—The English double possessive is not used in Dutch. "A friend of mine" is translated een vriend van mij, or een mijner vrienden.

"At my aunt's" should be rendered: bij mijne tante aan huis.

V. POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS, Bezittelijke Voornaamwoorden.—For the possessive case of personal pronouns, two different forms have been given (see IV). The second of those forms is that of the possessive pronoun, with a slight modification in the ending of ons (1st pers. plur.). Hence we have:

Possessive Pronoun of the First Person before a—

	Masc. N.	Fem. N.	Neut. N.
Singular (of ik)	mijn ,	mijne ,	mijn .
Plural (of wij)	onze ,	onze ,	ons .

Possessive Pronoun of the Second Person:

Singular (of gij)	uw ,	uwe ,	uw .
Singular (of gij)	uw ,	uwe ,	uw .
Plural (of jij)	jouw ,	jouwe ,	jouw .
Plural (of jullie)	jullie ,	jullie ,	jullie .

Possessive Pronoun of the third Person, Masc. and Neut.:

Singular (of hij and het)	zijn ,	zijne ,	zijn .
Plural (of zij)	hun ,	hunne ,	hun .

Possessive Pronoun of the third Person, Fem.:

Singular (of zij)	haar ,	hare ,	haar .
Plural (of zij)	haar ,	hare ,	haar .

NOTE 1.—For the declension of the possessive pronouns, see p. 78, and following.

NOTE 2.—The possessive pronouns may be used as nouns, and then follow the weak declension (see pp. 85, 86.) When so used they take the definite article: de mijne, mine; de uwe, yours; de zijne, his.

OBS. 1.—Possessive Pronouns may be used as adverbial phrases of place in connection with the preposition te (ten): Zal ik u ten mijnent of ten uwent ontmoeten? shall I meet you at my house or at yours?

NOTE.—Considering that the preposition here mentioned is a contraction of te den, and that this den is the old 3rd case, neut. gen., of the definite article, it is obvious that in expressions like the above the possessive pronouns were once used as nouns of the neuter gender. These expressions are not used in colloquial language.

OBS. 2.—Possessive Pronouns referring to more than one person, must be in the plural: Mijn broeder en mijne zuster doen hun jaarlijksch reisje, my brother and sister are making their yearly trip; Gij en ik hebben ons werk klaar, you and I have finished our work. Gij en hij hebt beiden uw zin, you and he have both what you wanted.

It will be seen from these examples that in such cases the 1st person is preferred before the 2nd, and the 2nd before the 3rd; likewise the masculine gender over the feminine.

VI. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS, Vragende Voornaamwoorden.

—These are: wie, wat, welk, hoedanig een, wat voor een.

Wie, who, enquires after persons;

Wat, what, enquires after things;

Welk, translates ‘which’ in the expression “which of”;

Welk, which, or what, is an Adjective Pronoun enquiring into the nature of its noun;

Hoedanig een, (plur. hoedanige) and wat voor een (plur. wat voor) translate “what kind of,” “what sort of.”

EXAMPLES:

Wie is daar? who is there?

Wat valt daar? what falls there?

Welk van de boeken wil u hebben? which of the books will you have?

Welke boomen worden omgehakt? which trees are being cut down?

Wat voor een (hoedanig een) mensch is hij? what kind of a man is he?

OBS. 1.—DECLENSION OF INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS:—

3 nv. aan wat voor eenen man,	3 nv. aan wat voor mannen.
4 nv. wat voor eenen man,	4 nv. wat voor mannen.

OBS. 2.—Notice that het (Pers.), dit and dat (Demon.), and wat (Interr.) can never be used after Prepositions. New compositions are therefore formed as follows:

With het, the word becomes er and the Preposition annexed: erin, eruit, etc.

With dit, the word becomes hier and the Preposition annexed: hierin, hieruit, etc.

Likewise those with dat become daarin, daaruit, etc.

And those with wat become waarin, waaruit, etc.

Whenever things, and even animals, are referred to, these compound forms are used rather than the separate pronouns, as: Het paard, waarover, etc. (not over hetwelk) ik sprak, the horse of which I spoke; De bloemen, waarvan (not van welke) ik zooveel houd, the flowers, of which I am so fond.

VI. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS, Onbepaalde Voornamwoorden.—

Indefinite Pronouns give a name to what is either unknown or too little defined to receive any special name. They refer to persons as well as to things, to names of objects as well as to names of materials. Most of them stand alone, and one requires a noun after it. To the former belong: men, one, iemand, somebody, niemand, nobody, sommigen, some people, iets, anything, niets, nothing, een, one, someone, geen, no one, alwie, any one, and, alwat, anything;—the latter is zeker, a certain. Notice also the following:

- Deze en gene*, one and another (some people);
Deze of gene, some one or other;
De een of ander, some one or other;
De een of de ander, one or the other;
Het een of ander, something or other;
Het een of het ander, (the) one thing or the other (another);
Het een en ander, some things.

In the following examples, the different translations of “men” should be specially noticed:

- Men moet daar altijd lang wachten*, one has always to wait a long time there;
Men moet oppassen voor natte voeten, you should beware of damp feet;
Men spreekt gewoonlijk te veel, people usually speak too much;
Men zegt wel eens, dat oorlog goed is, they say sometimes that war is a good thing;
Men heeft mij tweemaal bedrogen, I have been twice deceived;
Men zegt, it is said.

OBS. 1.—The pronoun “men” can only be used in the nom. case, and is consequently the subject of the sentence in which it is found. Being a pronoun of the 3rd person, the Possessive and Reflexive Pronouns referring to it must be those of the same person, as:

Door zich te veel aan koude en nattigheid bloot te stellen, benadeelt men zijne gezondheid, by exposing oneself too much to cold and damp weather, one injures one’s health.

OBS. 2.—Notice that the pronoun one, occurring after an adjective, is not translated :

I have a dog, and a good one, ik heb een hond, en een goeden ;

Here are two books, both new ones, hier zijn twee boeken, beide nieuw.

OBS. 3.—“Whoever” and “whatever” are translated by wie ook and wat ook, likewise “which(so)ever” by welke ook, “how(so)ever” by hoe ook, and “where(so)ever” by waar ook, the place of the word “ook” being after the subject and object of the sentence :

Wat hij ook doet, whatever he does ;

Wie hem dat ook zegt, whoever tells him that.

OBS. 4.—The Indefinite Pronouns iemand, niemand, iets, niets, and wat, together with the Adjectives weinig, veel, eenig, geen, and heel wat, when followed by an adjective of quality, cause this adjective to end in s (genitive), as :

Iemand vreemds, any strangers ?

Niemand vreemds, no strangers ;

Iets goeds, anything good ?

Niets bijzonders, nothing particular ;

Weinig nieuws, little news ;

Veel kwaads, much evil ;

Eenig nieuws, anything new ?

Geen goeds, nothing good ;

Heel wat slechts, a good deal of bad (things).

VIII. CORRELATIVE PRONOUNS, Bepaling aankondigende Voornaamwoorden, which are distinguished from all other pronouns by the necessity of their being followed by a complement in the form of an Adjective Sentence, in order to render their meaning complete.

1. They are collected from among the Personal, Indefinite, and Demonstrative Pronouns, but applied to perform a distinctly different function.

Hij, die tevreden is, is gelukkig, he, who is content, is happy. Here the person represented by the pronoun hij only becomes known to the hearer, after the adjective sentence defining that person has been added. Hij is here no Personal, but a Correlative Pronoun.

The pronouns belonging to this class are : hij, die, deze, dat, degene, hetgene, diegene, datgene, dezelfde, hetzelfde, zulken and zoodanigen (the latter two are only used in the plural).

EXAMPLES :

Degenen, die schuldig bevonden werden, zijn allen gestraft, those that were found guilty, have all been punished.

Dezelfden, die we gisteren ontmoetten, zijn daareven voorbij gekomen, the same people whom we met yesterday, have just come past.

Laat degenen onder u, die zien willen, achter blijven, let those among you, who wish to see, stay behind.

Die kunnen allen rustig zijn, die er geen deel aan genomen hebben, all those may feel at ease, who have taken no part in it.

Dezen zijn het, die ons verleid hebben, these are they who have seduced us.

OBS.—Declension of the pronouns degene and dezelfde :

1 nv. degenen, dezelfde.
2 nv. dergenen, derzelfde.
3 nv. dengenen, denzelfde.
4 nv. degenen, dezelfde.

NOTE.—Degene (sing. & plur.) is only used for persons. Dezelfden (plur.) loses its n when used for things.

IX. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS, Aanwijzende Voornaamwoorden. These define the place of persons and objects spoken about, indicating whether the distance between them and the speaker is greater or smaller. They are: deze, (neut.) dit, this; die, (neut.) dat, that; gene, (also) gindsche, (neut.) gindsch, yonder.

OBS. 1.—For the declension of these Pronouns, see pp. 78, 79.

OBS. 2.—In the Genitive singular, masculine and neuter of die, an n is inserted. This was formerly not the case, the 2nd case being dies, as may be seen from the expression “wat dies meer zij” (what there be more of it) for “et cetera.”

OBS. 3.—There are other old forms of the second case singular of die, in the masculine and feminine, viz., des and der, which are now principally found in compound words: een deskundige, a person knowing about it (an expert); desgelijks, likewise; deswege, on account of; desniettemin, yet; desnietteenstaande, notwithstanding; derhalve, therefore; dergelijke, such.

OBS. 4.—Both of these forms (des and der) may occur as separate words: Wij zijn des gewis, we are certain of it; Hoeveel uwer kinderen hebt gij verloren? Wij hebben er (der) reeds vier verloren, How many of your children have you lost? We have already lost four (of them). This er (uneducated people will make it der) stands for a noun understood after a numeral adjective.

NOTE.—On the use of er:

Er (pronoun) takes the place of the logical subject in sentences which have an intransitive verb, thereby rendering such sentences more fluent: Er gebeurde heel wat dien avond, many things happened that evening.

It occurs before numerals, when the noun by which they should be followed is understood: Heeft u veel boeken? Ik heb er tien. Have you many books? I have ten (books).

As an adverb of place, it is the translation of Eng. “there”: Is u in de kerk geweest? Ja, ik ben er geweest. Have you been in church? Yes, I have been there. When emphasis is necessary, this “there” is translated by daar.

Er is used in the verb er uitzien, to look, and in expressions like the following:

Er is mij gezegd, I have been told;

Er wordt geschoten, there is shooting going on;

Er wordt daar goed gewerkt, there is some good work done there.

- Obs. 5.—The 2nd case of deze occurs in two expressions: schrijver dezes, the author (of this); brenger dezes, the bearer (of this).
- Obs. 6.—The 'old 3rd case of die and deze, neuter gender (i.e., of dat and dit) is found before many nouns of the neuter gender governed by those prepositions which in old Dutch required the dative: te dien opzichte, in that respect; van dezen huize, of this family; te dien einde, to that end (for that reason); uit dien hoofde, on that account.
- Obs. 7.—The dative case of die and deze, feminine gender, is found in: te dier (dezer) ure, at that (this) time; in dier voege, after that fashion.
- Obs. 8.—Whenever the demonstrative pronouns and the personal pronoun of the 3rd person, used as such, are not immediately followed by their noun, but separated from it by one of the Copulative Verbs (zijn, worden, heeten, blijven, schijnen, lijken, blijken), they take the form of the neuter gender singular, irrespective of the gender and number of the noun they point out: That was a pleasant meeting, dat (not die) was eene aangename vergadering; This is my own father, dit (not die) is mijn eigen vader; Those were hard words, dat (not die) waren harde woorden; They were bad trees, het waren slechte boomen.
- This rule applies equally in the inverted construction: Are these all the books, zijn dit (not deze) alle boeken?
The Cape language overlooks this important rule.

X. RELATIVE PRONOUNS, Betrekkelijke Voornaamwoorden.—Adjective sentences which define or extend the meaning of nouns or pronouns, are introduced by pronouns, which, because they refer to a noun or pronoun already mentioned in the principal sentence, are called Relative Pronouns.

They are: wie, wat, welke, hetwelk, and hetgeen.

- Obs. 1.—Touching the declension of the relative pronouns, it must be remarked that none of them has its forms of declension complete, but that one helps to complete the cases of the other. The following is the declension:

ENKELVOUD.

Mannelijk.	Vrouwelijk.
1 nv. die, welke,	die, welke.
2 nv. wiens,	wier, welker.
3 nv. wien, welken,	(aan wie, aan welke).
4 nv. dien (wien), welken,	die (wie), welke.

ENKELVOUD.

Onzijdig.

- 1 nv. dat, wat, hetwelk,
- 2 nv. — waarvan, welks,

- 4 nv. dat, wat, hetwelk,

MEERVOUD.

Voor alle Geslachten.

- die, welke.*
wier, welker,
wien, welken.
die (wie), welke.

Obs. 2.—Die and welke (neuter, dat and hetwelk) are used indiscriminately for persons and things, though die (dat) is most commonly used.

Wie is used to make up the missing case of die, and after prepositions.

Wie likewise translates "he who."

Wat is used as a relative after alles and al, and in compounds with prepositions (see p. 136, Obs. 2).

Wat also translates "what" (that which), which, however, may likewise be rendered by hetgeen.

The specific use of hetgeen is to translate the relative pronoun "which," referring back to a sentence, and not to a noun.

Notice the following examples :

1. Hij, die dat gedaan heeft, is een kwade jongen, he who has done this thing, is a bad boy.
2. De boomen, welke in dat bosch groeien, zijn alle hoog, the trees which grow in that forest, are all of them high.
3. De man, wiens vrouw onlangs overleden is, the man whose wife died a short while ago.
4. Elk dier (neut.) welks hoeven gespleten zijn, herkauwt, every animal whose hoofs are divided, ruminates.
5. Dat is eene lamp (fem.), wier licht u de oogen bederven zal, that is a lamp whose light will spoil your eyes.
6. Toon mij den man, wien zij die belediging hebben aangedaan, show me the man, whom they have insulted in that manner.
7. Mijne jongste zuster is het, aan wie ik dat geschenk gegeven heb, it is my youngest sister, to whom I have given that present.
8. Breng mij naar het plekje (neut.) waaraan zooveel herinneringen verbonden zijn, take me to the spot, to which so many memories cling.
9. Hier is de jongen, naar wien gij gevraagd hebt, here is the boy for whom you have enquired.
10. Zij is eene vrouw, die men vertrouwen kan, she is a woman whom one can trust.
11. Was het een oud schaap, dat (hetwelk) de slager vandaag geslacht heeft? was it an old sheep the butcher killed to-day.
12. Wie steelt, is een dief, he who steals is a thief.
13. Dit is alles (or al) wat ik te zeggen heb, this is all I have to say.

14. Denk aan de zaak, waarvan ik gesproken heb, think of the matter I spoke of.
15. Gij behoort niet te aarzelen om te zeggen wat (hetgeen) waar is, you should not hesitate to say what (that which) is true.
16. Zij zijn niet gekomen, hetgeen beteekent dat zij ziek zijn, they have not come, which means that they must be ill.

OBS. 3. Relative Pronouns must be used, whether expressed or not in English: This is the man he spoke of, dit is de man, van wien hij sprak; There stands the house I want, daar staat het huis, dat ik hebben wil.

OBS. 4. The Relative Pronoun must agree with its antecedent both in number and gender (not in case). In number it always does agree, but with regard to gender, the Pronoun follows the natural and not the grammatical one: Mijn arm nichtje, wier (not welks) arm gebroken is, my poor little niece whose arm is broken.

GRAMMAR EXERCISES.—Taal oefeningen.

EXERCISE XLVII.

In the following sentences substitute pronouns of the third person for those of the first.

Toen ik jong was, nam mijn vader mij dikwijls mede, als hij uit rijden ging. In het gras onder het raam mijner kamer heb ik dezen steen gevonden. Waarom heb ik niet naar den raad mijner ouders geluisterd. Had ik het gedaan, dan bevond ik mij nu niet in deze moeielijkheid. Ik kan mij niet herinneren, dat ik dezen man ooit gezien heb. Ik ben mij niet bewust deze uitdrukking gebruikt te hebben. Ik maak mij zeer bekommerd over den toestand van mijnen vader. Ik heb mijne bezigheid verkocht en wil mijne laatste dagen nu stil op mijn landgoed gaan doorbrengen. Ik ben van morgen mijne plaats rondgereden om te zien, of mijne veewachters mijn bevel nagekomen zijn. Mijn vader antwoordde mij, dat ik mij niet verbeelden moest, dat ik mijzelf rechtvaardigen kon. Ik ben er van overtuigd, dat mijn vriend zich mijner ontfermen zal, als ik mij in mijnen nood tot hem wend.

EXERCISE XLVIII.

In the above change the pronouns of the first person singular into (1) the first person plural, and (2) the third person plural.

EXERCISE LI.

Translate into English (no reference to vocabulary).

Hij heeft mij het een en ander gezegd.

Hij heeft mij een en ander laten zien.

Gij zult wel (you are sure to) den een of ander vinden.

Zal u niet het een of ander gebruiken (take)?

De een of de ander moet vertrekken.

Het een of het ander moet waar zijn.

Deze en gene heeft mij opgezocht (come to see.)

Deze of gene zal zich wel over het kind ontfermen (to have pity on).

Er wordt in dit land veel geroookt (rooken=to smoke).

Men vermoedt (vermoeden=to suppose) dat de man gek (insane) is.

Deze koeien zien er beter uit dan de mijne.

Dergelijke zaken komen altijd aan het licht (to light).

Waarom dacht u, toen ik u stoorde (disturbed)?

Een deskundige zou nooit zulk eenen raad gegeven hebben.

De beide meisjes zijn met hare gouvernante (governess) gaan wandelen.

Welken weg ik ook insloeg (turned into), ik kon geenen uitweg (way out) vinden.

Al wat mijn vriend onderneemt (undertakes), gelukt hem (he is successful in).

TRANSLATION EXERCISES.—Vertaal oefeningen.

EXERCISE LII.

This young girl has her hat full [of] fresh roses. Those that have told you so (dit), have misled you. These are the books which I returned to you last night. Which of the two sisters is to sing (zal . . .) to-night? What kind of a flower is this? It is a flower that grows wild (in het wild) in the Tulbagh (Tulbagsche) district, but of which I do not know the name. That must be the same gentleman I met at my uncle's this (van) morning. (About) what were these ladies talking [about]? They were talking about what had been discussed at the meeting. These men are always sober and at their work, it is (zijn) such that never lack employment (zonder werk zijn). These pears are the same (which) I have had at Mrs. Johnson's (bij Mevrouw J.). We met an old friend of ours yesterday, and asked him to have dinner with us (bij ons te komen dineeren) this (van) evening. Some one or other must have used my scissors. Either the one or the other must go. Please, give bearer the parcel I left at your house (bij u). Your father and yourself have both been mistaken. If you will call this evening, I will tell you some things that will interest you.

EXERCISE LIII.

Being afraid (see Ex. XXVIII, p. 96) to be late (te laat) for breakfast, I dressed myself ₂ in a quarter of an hour ₁ this morning. Not having a nurse, my little nieces are accustomed to dress themselves. Being ashamed of his dirty hands, the boy would not come in. It is said that (er) a ₃ railway accident (has) occurred in the Hex River Pass ₂ early ₁ this morning. Any one hearing (hears) my case will say that I am right (gelijk heb). Whoever comes this way (hierheen) must beware of the dogs; they are very fierce [ones]. Whatever you do, you will never get (er toe krijgen) that child to apologise (excuus te vragen). As long as one is not faultless oneself, one should (behoorde) not find fault with one's neighbour. How many fowls do you have? I have twenty-five, and some of them are very good [ones]. There was a good deal of heavy betting at the races yesterday. My vines look so sickly that I will have to (moeten) consult an expert about them. I myself told the man that unless he applied himself (zich aanpakken) better, I would dismiss him.

EXERCISE LIV.

"May" and "might" are translated by "mogen," and its past tense "mocht" when they imply permission.

You may come to me now, U mag nu bij mij komen.

You said, I might go with you, U zeide, dat ik met u meegaan mocht.

If they imply possibility, they are translated by "kunnen" and its past form "zou kunnen (kon)"; or by the colloquial phrases: "het kan (zou kunnen) dat," it may (might be) that, especially to bring out the idea of probability, as:

He might have done the work, if etc., hij had het werk kunnen doen (zou . . . hebben kunnen doen) als, etc.

He may come yet, hij mag nog komen, or het mag zijn, dat hij nog komt.

They might see you from there, zij zouden u van daar kunnen zien.

The rain may have come down, het kan zijn dat de regen neergekomen is, or de regen mag neergekomen zijn.

1. "Should" is translated by "zou" if futurity is implied.
2. "Should" „ „ „ "zou" if dependent on a condition.
3. "Should" „ „ „ "behoorde" or "moest" if equivalent to "ought to."
4. "Should" „ „ „ "mocht" (had moeten), if equivalent to "might."

1. I told him that I should go into town, ik zeide hem, dat ik naar de stad zou gaan.

2. I should go to see her, if she were at home, ik zou haar gaan zien, als zij thuis was.

3. You should have learned your lessons, gij hadt uwe lessen moeten (behooren te) leeren.
4. If you should meet the man, tell him, etc., als gij den man ontmoeten mocht, zeg hem, enz.

May I go out when my work is finished? I cannot give you permission, you should have asked your father, before he went out. The boy might finish his lessons in time, if he would only come in (binnen) earlier. My uncle told me this morning that I might buy that fine dog. That accident might have been prevented, if the driver had been more careful. I may have seen that man before, but I do not recollect his face. If there were a doctor at hand, the child's life might be saved. I was always of opinion that they might have shown that young man some kindness. These plants should be planted before the sun gets hot. Should you see my brother when he comes home, tell him we may (permission) go to the concert this evening. You might have saved yourself all this trouble if you had heeded your uncle's warnings. We should not have left our friend alone, if we had known he was in trouble. My aunt felt sure (was er zeker van) that I should not like those people (would not please me); she may have been right, at all events I am glad she told me I should not accept the situation. You should have taken better care of the little girl, could you not see she was ill? If Mr. B. should call while I am gone, ask him to wait till my return (I return), I shall not be long (be = uitblijven). These children should be (do) more careful [about] their work, every one of these words might have been translated correctly, if they had turned to the vocabulary (if they had looked them up in, etc.).

EXERCISE LV.

“Will” and “would” are frequently used in English by way of idiom. In sentences as “Boys will always do mischief,” and “The bird would sometimes come and eat from her hand,” the forms “will” and “would” express neither futurity, nor determination. When thus used, they are not translated, but the tenses of the principal Verbs, which they help to express, are used instead. "Boys will always do mischief," becomes, "Boys always do mischief," jongens doen (maar) altijd kattenkwaad; and "The bird would sometimes come and eat from her hand," De vogel kwam somtijds uit hare hand eten.

A little girl had a bird that she kept locked up (opgesloten hield) in a cage. Now and then, however, she would let it out. It would then fly about, and would sit on her shoulder. How is (komt) it, that this child will always take so much? The boy would say, Basket, Tiny (naar je mand, Tiny), and then the little lap-dog would steal away to her basket (with the) tail between her hind legs. This horse will always put his nose into one's (iemands) face, if one (men) goes near him. You may (kunt) do what you like, these children will always boast.

"Will" and "would," expressing wish, are translated by the verb willen, wilde, gewild.

Will you help me, Charles? Yes, certainly. He would (wanted to) say something, but he could (kon) not get it out. Will you come (meekomen) with me? This way (kant), please. The boy said (that) he would not do it. Did he say that he would not (geene) have [any] milk in his coffee? He said (that) he wanted (would) no sugar (have). Does he not want to (will) answer you, or can (kan) he not answer you? The girl said positively that she did not want to (would not) come. And what did you answer? I said "Very well (heel goed), if you do not want to (will not) come, you may (can) stay away."

"Will" and "would," expressing futurity or determination, are translated by the future tenses (Ind. and Subj.) of the verb, (see Conjugation).

He won't go, unless you speak to (met) him. The girl would have read it, if her eyes had been good. Will he meet you at the office? He would meet me, if he knew that I would be there. I shan't take the medicine, said the naughty boy.

EXERCISE LVI.

The conjunction "if," when equivalent to "whether," is translated by "of," and not by "indien" or "als."

Tell me, if you will write. He asked if his father would come. He doubted (het) whether it would not be in vain. If you have the courage for it (er...toe), it is still the question if you have the required ability. If a man should come with a revolver in his hand, would you open the door to (voor) him?

"As if" is rendered by "als of," or sometimes "of."

He looked as if he was hungry (had hunger). He spoke to me as if he were (was) my master. The lion licked Androcles' hands as if to thank him (as if he would thank him). The robber did as if he wanted to kill me. If you want the doctor to cure (that the doctor cures) you, you must not speak as if you were quite well. The boy knelt down, as if he were going to (would go) pray. The sun rose (kwam op) with such splendour, as if there had never been a storm. If the boy had not thrown (gegooid) the stone with so much force, as if he wanted to kill the pig, I should ask his father if he would not forgive him this time.

EXERCISE LVII.

The verb "to know" is translated by weten and kennen. Weten implies the being aware of a fact. Kennen implies acquaintance with, or knowledge as the result of learning.

Examples: I know when he came, ik weet, wanneer hij kwam.

He did not know, that I was ill, hij wist niet, da ik ziek was.

Do you know that man? Kent gij dien man?

I know my tables by heart, ik ken mijne tafels van buiten.

Whither I go, you know, and the way you know. We do not even know the man; how should we know his whereabouts (where he lives)? It is a thing (iets) (that) we all know, that winter is the cold, and summer the hot time of the year. When do you think you will know the result[s] of your examination? We shall know them in a fortnight, I believe. There is a difference between knowing (te kennen) the road, and knowing something about (van) the road. Have you learned your poetry, Charles? Yes, sir, but I cannot say that I know it. How long will it be before you know French, John? Oh, father, a long time yet. My teacher says I am beginning to know something about it, but that is not knowing it. Did your sister know that you were here? Whether you have heard it or not, you must know it. The soldiers knew that the enemy was behind the hill. Know yourself, I said to someone, but he could (kon) not, for he was nobody. To know oneself (zich) leads to great humility. If I had only (maar) known that you had done the work, I should (it) have let (laten) him know. I knew yesterday that he would not live. The last fortnight the boy has known all his lessons.

EXERCISE LVIII.

“Used to” followed by an Infinitive Verb, is either translated by “was (were) accustomed to,” or by the Past Tense of the following verb, strengthened by an adverb of time.

Examples: The boy used to sit there, de jongen was gewoon daar te zitten, or, de jongen zat gewoonlijk, or altijd, or dikwijls daar.

The man always used to say that he was very poor, He used to go round to (bij) his friends, and tell them of his misery. We used to see him often, but he does not visit us any (in het geheel niet) more now. The old man used to tell me about this daughter, when I took (deed) a walk with him. When we were in Paris, we used to go to a concert nearly every night. If the boy were used to speak the truth, he would not have said this. Why not? Because this is decidedly a falsehood. And he knew that!

“To be used to” is translated by “gewoon zijn aan.”

I am used to his bad temper. She is used to being ill (aan ziek zijn). Are you used to that kind of treatment? I have been used to hard words all my (my whole) life. The donkey is used to drawing (het trekken van) that heavy load, Poor beast! and to beating (slaan) too.

EXERCISE LIX.

SEVENTH RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Amongst the extensions of the predicate, that of time takes the first place in the sentence, as: I saw him with his sister in church yesterday, ik zag hem gisteren met zijne zuster in de kerk.

When you were in London yesterday you (have) missed Mr. Bran, did you not (niet waar)? Yes, I missed him, that is to (wil) say, I did not wait for him. I should have (had. . . moeten) seen him at (aan) his house last night, but I was afraid to go out in the cold so late. I received a letter from my father yesterday. Where is he now? He was at Paris two days ago, and must now be at Lyons according to (naar) what he writes. Has there been any (nog een) great war in Europe since the year eighteen hundred and seventy? No, there have been rumours of wars many times, but it has never come to an open breach of the peace. He was (is) born at Baarn, a village in the province [of] Utrecht, Holland, on the sixth of March, eighteen hundred and fifty one. At Smithfield in the Orange Free State, a rumbling noise underground frightened some of the inhabitants yesterday. There was (has been) an explosion in the mine last week, whereby twenty-six workmen lost their lives (het leven). It is not so easy to be faithful to one's (zijn) duty, whatever (wat ook) happens, and at all times (te allen tijde).

CONVERSATIE.

CHAPTER IX.

THE VERB.

(Het Werkwood.)

I. DEFINITION:—An action may be expressed in two different ways: 1. By a real Verb; 2. By a Verbal Noun.

EXAMPLES:—

1. I saw the enemy besiege the fort, ik zag den vijand de stad belegeren.
2. I read about the siege of the city, ik las over het beleg (de belegering, het belegeren) der stad. The verbal Noun belegeren has the very same form as the Infinitive Present of the Verb belegeren. Hence the necessity arises of marking how the action is expressed, before a correct translation can be given.

II. STEM:—The Infinitive form of Dutch verbs ends in en (in six cases n). These six are the irregular monosyllabic verbs: doen, gaan, slaan, staan, zien, and zijn.

The stem of a verb is found by removing this ending en. To determine the stem is a matter of importance, as will be seen from the conjugation-form in the next paragraph. Many times the stem, so found, is different from what may be termed the working-stem, the latter receiving its shape (spelling) from pronunciation. To determine this spelling, the following rules should be observed.

1. Of the six monosyllabic verbs mentioned above, the stems are respectively doe, ga, sla, sta, zie, and zij (or wees).

2. If the ending en is preceded by a single consonant, before which there occurs a single vowel, this vowel is doubled so as to preserve its full sound: huren, stem huur, to hire.

3. If the ending en is preceded by a double consonant, the stem takes a single consonant: straffen, stem straf, to punish.

4. If the ending en is preceded by v or z, the stem takes f or s: leven, stem leef, to live; vreezen, stem vrees, to fear.

NOTE.—This f of the stem changes back into the v of the Inf. form, and likewise s into z, whenever the stem takes one of the endings e, et, or en in the course of the conjugation, in which cases also the double vowel assumed under Rule 2, is changed back into the single one of the Infinitive.

III. CONJUGATION, WEAK AND STRONG:—Two different ways of conjugation are distinguished:

(a) The WEAK CONJUGATION, marked by

1. Unchanged vowel-sound throughout;
2. Formation of past tense by adding to the stem te, when the last letter of such stem is one of the sharp consonants t, k, f, s, ch, and p (all of which are found in the composition, 't kofschip'), and de in all other cases;
3. Formation of the past participle by prefixing ge to the stem, and adding t or d to it according to the particulars of No. 2.

(b.) The STRONG CONJUGATION, marked by

1. Change of vowel-sound in Past Tense, or sometimes there and in Past Participle;
2. Formation of Past Participle by prefixing ge to the stem (original or modified), and adding en.

The full list of Strong Verbs is given on p. 191.

NOTE.—In (a) 2 and 3, the letters f and s of the working stems, which are v and z in the Infinitive forms, are followed by de and d, and not by te and t.

IV. AUXILIARIES. USE OF "HEBBEN" AND "ZIJN":—All verbs require the aid of auxiliary verbs to complete their conjugation.

Auxiliaries (hulpwerkwoorden) are of three different kinds:

1. Of Tense: hebben, to have, zijn, to be, zullen, shall or will.

2. Of Voice: worden, to become, used for Eng. "to be" as auxiliary of the Passive Voice.

3. Of Mood: kunnen, can; moeten, must; laten, let; mogen, may; willen, to be willing to; durven, to dare to.

The Auxiliaries of Tense (Hulpwerkwoorden van den Tijd), help to form the Perfect, Pluperfect, and Future Perfect tenses in the various moods.

In Dutch a verb is conjugated with "zijn," "to be":

1. When Intransitive, and indicating change of place or condition:

De kat is van het dak gevallen, the cat has fallen from the roof.

De sneeuw is gesmolten, the snow has melted.

2. The following verbs: zijn, to be; blijven, to remain; worden, to become; ontstaan, to originate; gebeuren, to happen, geschieden, to happen; voorvallen, to take place.

NOTE ON (1).—Some intransitive verbs may or may not indicate an actual change. If they do not, they take the auxiliary hebben:

Ik ben de kamer uitgelopen, I have walked out of the room (change of place).

Ik heb in de kamer rondgelopen, I have walked about in the room (motion confined to the space of a room—no actual change).

NOTE ON (2).—It is worthy of note that the verbs bestaan, to exist; plaats hebben, to take place; and plaats vinden, to take place, are conjugated with hebben.

IX. VOICE:—The Dutch verb, like the English one, has two voices, the Active Voice (Actieve or Bedrijvende Vorm), and the Passive Voice (Passieve or Lijdende Vorm). The form of the Passive Voice is more pronounced, for the reason that its Auxiliary verb is “worden,” to become, and not “zijn,” to be, like in English.

X. COMPARISON between the ACTIVE and PASSIVE VOICES of the verb “bijten,” to bite.

X. A. Notice carefully the following examples :

Het paard wordt vandaag verkocht, the horse is being sold to-day.

Het paard is vandaag verkocht, the horse has been sold to-day.

De bloemen werden gisteren geplant, the flowers were planted yesterday.

De bloemen waren gisteren geplant, the flowers had been planted yesterday.

De schapen zullen morgen geschoren worden, the sheep will be shorn to-morrow.

De schapen zullen morgen geschoren zijn, the sheep will have been shorn to-morrow.

De kamers zouden veranderd worden, the rooms would be altered.

De kamers zouden veranderd zijn, the rooms would have been altered.

X. B. COMPARISON between the same forms of the verb "zijn" used as a COPULATIVE and as an AUXILIARY of the PASSIVE VOICE.

COP. Het brood is gaar gebakken, the bread is thoroughly baked.

PAS. Het brood is gisteren niet gebakken maar vandaag, the bread has not been baked yesterday but to-day.

PAS. & COP. De tuin was wel aangelegd, maar was geheel verwilderd, the garden had been laid out, but had grown completely wild.

COP. Ik ben verwonderd geweest over uw antwoord, I have been surprised at your answer.

PAS. Ik ben bedrogen (geworden) door mijnen tuinman, I have been deceived by my gardener.

COP. De sneeuw zal gauw gesmolten zijn, the snow will soon be melted.

PAS. Het orgel zal goed bespeeld worden, the organ will be played well.

COP. Het water zou bevroren geweest zijn, als, enz., the water would have been frozen over, if, etc.

PAS. Het geheele bosch zou verbrand (geworden) zijn, als, enz., the whole wood would have been burned down, if, etc.

COP. Deze oefening was verbeterd, toen ik ze terugkreeg, this exercise was corrected when I got it back.

PAS. De oefeningen waren door den onderwijzer verbeterd, the exercises had been corrected by the teacher.

X. C. OBSERVATIONS ON THE ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICES.

The fact that in English the verb "to be" is used both as a copulative verb to express "state or condition," and as the aux. verb of the Passive Voice, whereas in Dutch there are two separate verbs, viz., "zijn" as the COPULATIVE, and "worden" as the AUXILIARY of the PASSIVE VOICE, makes it difficult to English students to acquire the use of the correct Passive forms, which should therefore be made a subject of thorough enquiry and practice. The following observations should receive special attention.

1. "Am," "was," "have been," etc., are translated by "ben," "was," "ben geweest," etc., when Copulatives; and by "word," "werd," "ben geworden," etc., when Auxiliaries of the Passive Voice.

2. Where in a Perfect, Pluperfect, or Future Perfect Tense the word "geworden" is given in brackets, it is commonly left out. This omission leads to the following comparison :

Present: Ik word gebeten, I am bitten.

Past: Ik werd gebeten, I was bitten.

Perfect: Ik ben gebeten, I have been bitten.

Pluperfect: Ik was gebeten, I had been bitten.

from which it will be noticed that the Dutch Perfect Tense is like the English Present, and the Dutch Pluperfect like the English Past.

3. It follows, then, that in the Passive Voice the English "is" and "was" are rendered by the Dutch "wordt" and "werd," and the Dutch "is" and "was" are rendered by the English "has been" and "had been."

4. Notice the peculiar use of the Passive form in Dutch in connection with the pronoun er (see Ch. VIII., p. 140).

5. (a.) Transposition of an Active sentence into the Passive Voice is only possible when such Active sentence has a Direct Object.

- (b.) This Direct Object (Active) is taken as the Subject of the Passive sentence; the verb agrees with the new subject, and the Subject of the Active sentence furnishes an Indirect Object to the Passive sentence :

Active: De hond beet den man, the dog bit the man.

Passive: De man werd door den hond gebeten, the man was bitten by the dog.

- (c.) Active sentences, having as their Subject the indefinite pers. pron. "men," lose this pronoun when they are made Passive :

Active: Men heeft mij eene boodschap gebracht, they brought me a message.

Passive: Eene boodschap is mij gebracht (geworden), a message has been brought to me; (or rather) er is mij eene boodschap gebracht (geworden).

- (d.) On the contrary, in bringing back a Passive sentence to its Active form, the Indirect Object (Passive) becomes the Active Subject, and the Passive Subject the Direct Object (Active):

Passive: De vos is door den boer gevangen (geworden), the fox was caught by the farmer.

Active: De boer heeft den vos gevangen, the farmer has caught the fox.

- (e.) In Passive sentences, where the action is not assigned to any particular agent, and consequently no Indirect Object is expressed, the indefinite pers. pron. "men" becomes the Subject of the Active sentence:

Passive: Het boek is gisteren gevonden (geworden), the book was found yesterday.

Active: Men heeft gisteren het boek gevonden, they found the book yesterday.

- (f.) The same rule holds for sentences as referred to in Obs. 4:

Passive: Er is mij gezegd, I have been told.

Active: Men heeft mij gezegd, they have told me.

Passive: Er wordt hier geschoten, there is shooting going on here.

Active: Men schiet hier, they are shooting here.

XI. CONJUGATION of the AUXILIARY VERBS of MOOD "mogen," may, "kunnen," can, "moeten," must, "laten," let, "durven," to dare, "willen," to be willing to.

AANTOONENDE WIJS. INDICATIVE MOOD.

Onvolmaakt Tegenw. Tijd. Present Tense.

Ik mag, kan, moet, laat, durf, wil, I may, can, must, let, dare, will.

Gij moogt, kunt, moet, laat, durft, wilt, thou mayest, canst, must, etc.

Hij mag, kan, moet, laat, durft, wil, he may, can, must, etc.

Wij mogen, kunnen, moeten, laten, durven, willen.

Gij moogt, kunt, moet, laat, durft, wilt.

Zij mogen, kunnen, moeten, laten, durven, willen.

Volmaakt Tegenw. Tijd. Perfect Tense.

Ik heb —, I have been allowed to.

Gij hebt gekund, thou hast been able to.

Hij heeft gemoeten, he has been obliged to.

Wij hebben —, we have let (allowed).

Gij hebt gedurfd, you have dared.

Zij hebben gewild, they have been willing to.

Onvolmaakt Verleden Tijd. Imperfect Tense.

Ik mocht, kon, moest, liet, dorst, wou, I might, could, had to, let, dared, wanted to.

Gij mocht, kondt, moest, liet, dorst, woudt, thou mightest, couldst, hadst to, etc.

Hij mocht, kon, moest, liet, dorst, wou.

Wij mochten, konden, moesten, lieten, dorsten, wilden.

Gij mocht, kondt, moest, liet, dorst, woudt.

Zij mochten, konden, moesten, lieten, dorsten, wilden.

Volmaakt Verleden Tijd. Pluperfect Tense.

Ik had —, gekund, ontmoeten, —, gedurfd, gewild, enz., I had been allowed to, had been able to, etc.

(See Perfect Tense.)

Onvolmaakt Toekomende Tijd. Simple Future Tense.

Ik zal mogen, I shall be allowed to.

Gij zult kunnen, thou wilt be able to.

Hij zal moeten, he will be obliged to.

Wij zullen laten, we shall let (allow).

Gij zult durven, you will dare.

Zij zullen willen, they will be willing to.

Volmaakt Toekomende Tijd. Future Tense.

Ik zal hebben —, gekund, ontmoeten, —, gedurfd, gewild, enz., I shall have been allowed to, been able to, been obliged to, etc.

OBS.—The above verbs, it will be seen, are to a far larger degree complete than their English equivalents. The use, however, of their compound tenses in the above form is limited to the cases in which they are not followed by an Infinitive verb. Example:

Ik heb het niet gedurfd, I did not have the courage (to do) it

Zij hebben niet gewild, they have not been willing.

Hij zal niet kunnen, he won't be able to.

In most cases an Infinitive verb is made to follow, and then the Past Participles of these verbs themselves assume the Infinitive form, as:

Zij hebben niet willen hooren, they did not want to hear.

Hij heeft niet kunnen komen, he has not been able to come.

Zij heeft niet mogen gaan, she was not allowed to go.

Wij hebben hem niet laten spelen, we have not let him play.

XII. MOOD.—Mood is the form of a verb by which is expressed in what manner the action is done.

There are four moods: a. Indicative, Aantoonende wijs; b. Subjunctive, Aanvoegende wijs; c. Imperative, Gebiedende wijs; d. Infinitive, Onbepaalde wijs.

(a.) The Indicative Mood represents an action as a fact, a reality, a truth. The use of it is alike in English and Dutch. Examples: Dit papier is wit, this paper is white; De aarde wentelt om hare as, the earth rotates round its axis.

(b.) The Subjunctive Mood represents an action as a wish, a possibility, or as depending on something else: Kwame hij slechts, if he would only come; Haddet gij uwen plicht gedaan, gij, enz., if you had only done your duty, you, etc.

NOTE.—The use of the Subjunctive Mood is now very limited in the Dutch language. It is never heard of in speaking, and may be taken as confined to pulpit oratory and poetry. A very few time-honoured expressions form exceptions to this rule, as:

Hoe dat zij, however that be.

Het ga zooals het wil, let it go as it may

(c.) The Imperative Mood expresses a command, but at the same time a request or advice.

Command: Jan, breng mij wat water, Waiter, bring me some water.

Request: Kom eens bij mij, do come to me.

Advice: Gedraag u goed, mijn kind, behave yourself, my child.

NOTE.—The form of request here indicated is intensified by the use of the adverb "toch": Kom toch eens bij mij, kleintje, do come to me, little one.

XIII. TRANSLATION of the INFINITIVE MOOD:—The Infinitive Mood does not express any action, but merely gives the name of the verb. For the correct translation of it the following rules should be observed:

RULE 1.—The English Infinitive preceded by "to" is rendered in Dutch in like manner:

Sta mij toe, u te vragen, permit me to ask you;

Zij waren niet in staat te komen, they were unable to come ;

Ik beveel u, het te doen, I order you to do it ;

Denk eraan, het mij te laten zien, remember to let me see it.

RULE 2.—This “te” is strengthened by “om” (Eng. “for”) :

(a.) When “purpose” is expressed :

Ik zond hem om te vragen, I sent him (for) to ask.

(b.) After Nouns or Pronouns naming or indicating an object which serves a purpose :

Hier is een hamer om dien spijker in te slaan, here is a hammer for knocking (to knock) in that nail ;

Geef mij iets om erbij te klimmen, hand me something to reach it.

(c.) After the word “genoeg” (enough) :

Ik heb niet genoeg om te betalen, I have not enough to pay.

(d.) After predicative Nouns and Adjectives, implying fitness :

Heeft hij kracht om dat werk te doen? has he strength to do that work?

Is die melk goed om te drinken? is that milk good for drinking (to drink)?

(e.) After “te” (too) followed by a predicative Adjective :

Hij is te lui om te werken, he is too lazy to work.

RULE 3.—The Dutch Infinitive rejects both “om” and “te” :

(a.) When it forms the subject, object, or predicate of a sentence :

Wandelen is gezond, walking (to walk) is pleasant ;

Niet antwoorden beteekent hem beleedigen, not to answer means to offend him ;

Liegen is bedriegen, to tell lies means to deceive.

(b.) After the Auxiliary Verbs of Mood. (See § IV. 3):

Ik mag u niet alleen laten, I may not leave you alone ;

Ik durf het hem niet vragen, I dare not ask it of him.

(c.) After the verbs : doen (to do), helpen (to help), gaan (to go), hooren (to hear), voelen (to feel), komen (to come), zien (to see), leeren (to learn and to teach) :

Ik leer hem schrijven, I teach him to write ;

Ik kom het huis zien, I come to see the house ;

Hij gaat baden, he goes to bathe.

XIV. TRANSLATION of the GERUND, the PRESENT PARTICIPLE, and the PAST PARTICIPLE :—

Obs. 1.—Besides the Infinitive form pure and simple, the following are taken as forming parts of the Infinitive Mood: the Gerund, the Present Participle, the Past Participle.

Obs. 2.—The English Gerund is in every case translated by the Dutch Infinitive form. It occurs

(a.) As a Noun, when likewise in Dutch it is a noun of the neut. gender :

Riding is pleasant, rijden is prettig ;

The regular bathing did it, het geregeld baden heeft het gedaan ;

That screaming is annoying, dat schreeuwen is vervelend ;

and (b) as a Gerundial Infinitive after a Preposition, when it is rendered by the Dutch Infinitive with “te” :

Bread is good for eating (to eat), brood is goed om te eten.

By working hard, door hard te werken.

OBS. 3.—Present Participles, with a common ending de or d, are of rare occurrence in Dutch. Their frequent and varied use in English renders translation a difficult matter.

(a.) Occurring in an adjectival enlargement it is translated by the rel. pron. with whatever tense of the verb fits in with the context :

Do you know of anyone going that way? Weet u van iemand, die dien kant uitgaat?

I saw a man holding a child by the hand, Ik zag eenen man, die een kind bij de hand hield.

(b.) In sentences like the following, "I saw the king sitting on his throne," where it takes the place of the Infinitive, e.g., Ik zag den koning op zijnen troon zitten.

Of these three forms the first] only is common, the second being antiquated, and the third used in poetical language only.

(c.) In case a finite verb, preceded by "as," "while," or "when," can take the place of the Present Participle, this rendering is preferred to the use of the Pres. Part, as being more colloquial: (See pp. 96, 127.)

Having a garden (as he has a garden), the man is content, daar hij eenen tuin heeft, is de man tevreden;

He got giddy crossing (while he crossed) the bridge, hij werd duizelig, terwijl hij de brug overging;

Seeing (when he saw) his master, the dog ran up to him, toen de hond zijnen meester zag, liep hij naar hem toe.

In other cases (e.g. where "because" is understood) the Pres. Part. is more common :

He spoke about it, thinking I did not know it, hij sprak erover, denkende dat ik het niet wist.

The same custom prevails for short phrases :

Saying this, he left the room, dit zeggende, verliet hij de kamer;

On hearing this, she cried, dit hoorende, schreide zij.

OBS. 4.—The formation of Past Participles is explained on p. 157. In their use, they do not differ from their English equivalents. It should, however, be observed as a rule of great importance, that a Past Participle, followed by an Infinitive, assumes the form of the Infinitive, without altering its nature, as :

He is gone to work in the garden, hij is in den tuin gaan werken ;

He has come to see me, hij is mij komen bezoeken.

(See § XI. OBS.)

XV. TENSES.—Tense is a change in the form of a verb by which time is expressed. †

An action may be represented to be performed in the Present, to have been performed in the Past, or to be going to be performed in the Future. Hence there are three principal tenses: a Present, a Past, and a Future tense. Each of these three may represent the action as complete, done, or as incomplete, still being done, from which it follows that there is :

1. A tense which represents the action as being done at the present time: I read and my brother writes, ik lees en mijn broeder schrijft. This tense is called the Present Tense, de onvolmaakt tegenwoordige tijd.

2. A tense which represents the action as done, completed at the present moment: I have read and my brother has written, ik heb gelezen en mijn broeder heeft geschreven. This tense is called the Perfect Tense, de volmaakt tegenwoordige tijd.

3. A tense which represents the action as being done in a time which is past: When I visited him, he read (was reading), etc., toen ik hem bezocht, las hij, enz. This tense is called the Imperfect (Past) Tense, de onvolmaakt verleden tijd.

4. A tense which represents the action as done, completed before another action took place: He had departed before I arrived, hij was vertrokken vóór ik aankwam. This tense is called the Pluperfect Tense, de volmaakt verleden tijd.

5. A tense which represents an action as going to take place at a future time: The small tree will some time be large, de kleine boom zal eenmaal groot zijn. This tense is called the Future tense, de onvolmaakt toekomstige tijd.

6. A tense which represents the action as completed at a certain future time: When you return, we shall have written our letters, bij uwe terugkomst zullen wij onze brieven geschreven hebben. This tense is called the Future Perfect Tense, de volmaakt toekomstige tijd.

OBSERVATIONS.—The English Imperfect (Past) Tense is translated by the Dutch Imperfect only:

1. When two simultaneous actions or conditions are expressed:

He saw me as soon as I entered the house, hij zag mij, zodra ik het huis inkwam.

He seemed an old man when I was yet young, hij scheen een oude man, toen ik nog jong was.
2. In all narratives and history:

Once there lived a king, er leefde eens een koning.

The Zulus defeated the English at Isandula, but were soon afterwards subjected, de Zulus versloegen de Engelschen bij Isandula, maar werden spoedig daarna onderworpen.
3. In all other cases, and especially in easy colloquial style, it is preferable to translate the English Past Tense by the Dutch Perfect:

This morning I gathered fresh roses, van morgen heb ik verse rozen geplukt.

Last summer we travelled in France, verleden zomer hebben wij in Frankrijk gereisd.
4. The Present Tense is idiomatically used for the Future Tense:

Over eenigen tijd zien wij elkander weer om nooit weer te scheiden, after some time we shall meet again never to part any more.

5. In describing an event, when the speaker wants to place the scene vividly before the mind of his hearer, he suddenly changes the Past Tense he was using into the Present :

Toen wij op deze wijze het einde des wouds bereikt hadden, hoorden wij plotseling een luid geraas achter ons. Vóór wij ons konden omkeeren om te onderzoeken wat het was, vliegt er een koningstijger op uit het dichte struikgewas aan onze linkerzijde, grijpt een der paarden bij de keel en werpt het met zijnen ruiter ter aarde. When we had thus come to the end of the forest, all at once we heard a loud noise from behind. Before we could turn round to ascertain what it was, a royal tiger darts out from the dense brush-wood on our left, seizes one of the horses by the throat and flings it to the ground together with its rider.

This change of tenses is very common among the Dutch, who as a rule are more emphatic in their speech than the English.

6. The Perfect Tense, Volmaakt tegenwoordige tijd, represents the action as complete at the present moment :

Ik heb mijnen brief geschreven, laat ons hem nu op de post doen, I have written my letter, now let us post it.

7. In the same way as the Present Tense sometimes takes the place of the Future Tense, so may the Perfect Tense take the place of the Future Perfect Tense :

De volgende week om dezen tijd heb ik het zwaarste al gehad, next week about this time I shall have had the worst (the worst will be over for me).

XVI. NUMBER.—Verbs have two numbers: the Singular, het Enkelvoud, and the Plural, het Meervoud.

A Verb must agree in number with its Nominative. Notice the following differences in idiom :

It is I.	Ik ben het.
It is we.	Wij zijn het.
Is it you?	Zijt gij het? (Is u het?)
The council have decided.	De raad heeft uitgemaakt.
It is the cows that did the mischief.	Het zijn de koeien, die dat kwaad hebben gedaan.

OBS. 1.—After two words joined by “and” the verb must be in the Plural; after two words joined by “or” or “nor” the verb must be in the Singular. Examples:

Gij en ik moeten vaarwel zeggen, you and I must say good-bye.

Gij of ik moet het doen, you or I must do it.

Hij noch ik kan gaan, he nor I can go.

OBS. 2.—When a verb has two subjects in different persons, the verb agrees with the 1st person in preference to the 2nd, and with the 2nd in preference to the 3rd:

Hij of ik heb het gedaan, he or I did it.

Gij en hij kunt beiden gaan, you and he may both go.

XVII. PERSON.—The Dutch verb has three persons, called the first, second, and third person, de eerste, de tweede, de derde persoon, each with a singular and a plural form. The endings which mark them may be seen from the Conjugation Form (p. 158).

XVIII. TRANSITIVE and INTRANSITIVE Verbs.—For completing the meaning of a verb, an Object is often added, such Object indicating the person or thing which is either created or changed by the action of the verb. The sentence, “The man builds,” cannot be regarded as complete, until the object of his building, the creation of it—a house, church, bridge, shed, etc.—has been added. In the complete sentence, “The man builds a house (de man bouwt een huis), “huis” is the Direct Object of the verb “bouwen,” and “bouwen” figures as a Transitive (Overgankelijk, or Transitief) verb.

2. All other verbs, i.e., all those whose meaning is not completed by the addition of a Direct Object, are called Intransitive (Onovergankelijk, or Intransitief).

XIX. 1. REFLEXIVE (TERUGWERKENDE, or REFLEXIEVE) VERBS, whose action returns to the agent, or whose Subject and Direct Object are one and the same person, are manifestly Transitive. In conjugation they take the Reflexive Pronouns, mentioned under Chap. VIII, p. 132.

The particulars of this conjugation are as follows :

Infinitive Present : Zich (te) wonden, to wound oneself.

Infinitive Perfect : Zich gewond (te) hebben, to have wounded oneself.

Indicative Present : Ik wond mij, I wound myself.

Gij wondt u, thou woundest thyself.

Hij wondt zich, he wounds himself.

Wij wonden ons, we wound ourselves.

Gij wondt u, you wound yourselves.

Zij wonden zich, they wound themselves.

2. Reflexive Verbs are subdivided into :

a. Those which are of necessity reflexive, noodwendig terugwerkende werkw. Ex. zich schamen, to be ashamed; zich vergissen, to be mistaken; zich inbeelden, to fancy; zich erbarmen, to have pity. From these the reflex. pron. is inseparable.

b. Those which may be either reflexive or not, toevallig terugwerkende werkw. Ex. zich bezeeren, to hurt oneself; zich wasschen, to wash oneself; zich beproeven, to try oneself. With these the reflex. pron. is only used when required.

3. The following verbs are Reflexive in Dutch, and not so in English :

Zich aanmatigen, Hij matigt zich te veel vrijheid aan, he takes too much liberty.

Zich baden, De jongens baadden zich in de rivier, the boys bathed in the river.

Zich bedenken, Bedenk u wel, consider (the matter) well; Ik heb mij bedacht, I have changed my mind.

Zich storen aan,	Zij stoort zich niet aan de waarschuwingen harer vrienden, she does not mind the warnings of her friends.
Zich verbeelden,	Hij verbeeldt zich heel knap te zijn, he fancies that he is very clever.
Zich verblijden over,	Verblijdt gij u niet over zijn geluk? are you not glad of his good fortune?
Zich vergewissen van,	Hij heeft zich van hare vriendschap vergewist, he has made sure of her friendship.
Zich vergissen,	Vergeef mij, ik heb mij vergist, pardon me, I have made a mistake.
Zich verheugen over,	Wij verheugen ons over die tijding, we rejoice at those tidings.
Zich vermeten,	Wie zou zich vermeten, dien man te beschuldigen, who would be bold enough to accuse that man?
Zich verslikken,	Het kind heeft zich verslikt, daarom hoest het, the child is choking, that's why it coughs.
Zich verspreiden,	De ziekte verspreidt zich over het land, the disease is spreading in the country.
Zich vestigen,	Mijne ouders zullen zich te Kaapstad vestigen, my parents are going to live at Cape Town.
Zich voeden met,	Tijgers voeden zich met vleesch, tigers live on flesh.
Zich voelen,	Hij voelt zich beter van morgen, he feels better this morning.
Zich voorbereiden voor,	Ik bereid mij voor twee examens voor, I am preparing for two examinations.

XX. 1. MIXED VERBS:—Midway between the two kinds of conjugations enumerated under par. III, we find a small number (27) of verbs which half partake of the nature of the Weak conjugation, and half of that of the Strong. These are called Mixed (Gemengd).

2. They are the following:

Infinitive.		Past Tense.	Past Participle.
Bakken,	to bake,	bakte,	gebakken.
Bannen,	to banish,	bande,	gebannen.
Barsten,	to burst,	barstte,	gebarsten.
Braden,	to roast,	braadde,	gebraden.
Brouwen,	to brew,	brouwde,	gebrouwen.
Durven,	to dare,	dorst (durfde),	gedurfd.

Infinitive.		Past tense.	Past Participle.
Heeten,	to be called,	heette,	geheeten.
Jagen,	to hunt,	joeg (jaagde),	gejaagd.
Kunnen,	can (to be able),	kon,	gekund.

Laden,	to load,	laadde,	geladen.
Leggen,	to lay,	lei (legde),	gelegd.
Malen,	to grind,	maalde,	gemalen.
Ontvouwen,	to unfold,	ontvouwde,	{ ontvowd (explained). ontvouwen (proper sense).
Raden,	to advise,	raadde,	geraden.
Scheiden,	to separate,	scheidde,	gescheiden.
Spannen,	to stretch,	spande,	gespannen.
Spouwen,	to split,	spouwde,	gespouwen.
Stooten,	to push,	stootte,	gestooten.
Vouwen,	to fold,	vouwde,	gevouwen.
Vragen,	to ask,	vroeg (vraagde),	gevraagd.
Waaien,	to blow,	woei (waaide),	gewaaid.
Wasschen,	to wash,	(waschte),	gewasschen.
Weven,	to weave,	weefde,	geweven.
Wreken,	to revenge,	wreekte,	gewroken.
Zeggen,	to say,	zei,	gezegd.
Zouten,	to salt,	zoutte,	gezouten.

NOTE.—Of these twenty-seven verbs, twenty have a weak past tense and a strong past participle, whereas seven have a strong past tense and a weak past participle.

XXI. 1. ANOMALOUS VERBS:—Where the irregularity of conjugation extends to the consonants of the stem, a verb becomes out and out Irregular, and hence is no longer called Sterk, but Onregelmatig (Anomalous).

The number of these being small (20), and that of the pure Strong verbs considerable (170), the former will be given here, and the “List of Strong Verbs” at the end of the present chapter.

2. List of Anomalous (Onregelmatige) verbs :

Infinitive.	Past Tense.	Past Part.	Points of Irregularity.
Brengen , to bring,	bracht (old D. brangede),	gebracht .	Syncope of n from stem; t in 3rd Pers. Sing. Past Tense.
Denken , to think,	ducht (old D. dankede),	gedacht .	Syncope of n from stem; t in 3rd Pers. Sing. Past Tense.
Dunken , to seem, to imagine,	docht ,	gedocht .	Syncope of n from stem; t in 3rd Pers. Sing. Past Tense.
Koopen , to buy,	kocht (old D. koopede),	gekocht .	Change of p into ch ; t in 3rd Pers. Sing. Past Tense.
Zoeken , to seek,	zocht (old D. zoekede),	gezocht .	Change k into ch ; 3rd Pers. Sing. Past Tense.
Plegen , to be accustomed.	placht (old D. plag),	(wanting).	Change of g into ch ; t in 3rd Pers. Sing. Past Tense.
Hebben , to have (old D. haven),	had (old D. havede),	gehad (old D. gehaved).	Syncope of v in Past Tense and Past Part.
Weten , to know,	wist (old D. witte, witsde),	geweten .	Change of t into s in Imp. Tense.
Moeten , to be obliged,	moest (old D. moette, moetste),	gemoeten .	Change of t into s ; t in 3rd Pers. Sing. Past Tense.
Houden , to hold,	hield ,	gehouden .	Insertion of l before ending of Past Tense.
Mogen , to be allowed,	mocht (old D. mag),	(wanting).	Change of g into ch ; former Imp. now Pres. (see observ.).
Zullen , shall, will, (old D. zollen),	zou (contr. of zolde) (old D. zal),	(wanting).	Former Imp. now Present (see observ.).
Willen , to be willing (old D. wollen),	wilde , (colloquial wou).	gewild .	Former Pres. Subj. now Pres. Ind. (see observ.).
Doen , to do (old D. daden),	deed ,	gedaan (old D. gedaden).	Irregular form of Inf.; contracted Past Part.
Gaan , to go, (old D. gan-gen),	ging ,	gegaan (old D. gegan-gen).	Contracted Infin. and Past Part.

Infinitive.	Past Tense.	Past Part.	Points of Irregularity.
Staan , to beat, (old D. slagen),	sloeg ,	geslagen .	Contracted form of Inf.
Staan , to stand, (old D. standen),	stond ,	gestaan (old D. gestanden).	Contracted forms of Inf. and Past Part.

Komen , to come, (old D. kwemen),	kwam ,	gekomen (old D. gekwenen).	Altered forms of Inf. and Past Part.
Zijn , or wezen , to be.	was ,	geweest (old D. gewezen and geweesd).	Mixture of different roots (see observ.).

Obs.—Besides the irregularities referred to in these lists, notice that zijn, kunnen, mogen, zullen, en willen omit the t of the third pers. sing. ind. pres.: Hij is, kan, mag, zal, wil.

NOTE.—A few of the above verbs have an incomplete conjugation, and may hence be called Gebrekkige Werkwoorden, Defective Verbs, viz.:

Plegen, kunnen, mogen, zullen have no form for the imperative.

Plegen, zullen have no past participle.

Zijn and wezen, both defective, together make up one complete verb, viz. to be.

XXII. 1. IMPERSONAL VERBS:—Most verbs have their first, second, and third persons sing. as well as plural, complete in every tense, and are called PERSONAL, Persoonlijk; there are a few, however, viz., those which indicate an action that cannot be ascribed to any particular person or thing, which are called IMPERSONAL (Onpersoonlijk), and are only used in the third person singular (of every tense): het regent, sneeuwt, vriest, enz., it rains, snows, freezes, etc.

2. The name "Impersonal" is extended to certain expressions, which are only met with in the third person singular. Such are:

Het is koud, it is cold.

Het was winderig, it was windy.

Het zal drukkend zijn, it will be close.

Bedroeven,	Het bedroeft mij, u zoo te zieh, I am sorry to see you like this.
Behagen,	Het heeft den koning behaagd, it has pleased the king.
Believen,	Geef mij dat boek, als het u blijft, give me that book, if you please.
Berouwen,	Het berouwt hem, dat hij het gezegd heeft, he is sorry that he said so.
Betamen,	Het betaamt u niet zoo te spreken, you have no right to speak like that.
Bevreemden,	Het zal u zeker bevreemden mij hier te zien, you will no doubt be astonished to see me here.
Dunken,	Mij dunkt (het dunkt mij) dat het goed is, I think it is all right.
Heugen,	Het heugt mij niet u tevoren gezien te hebben, I do not recollect having seen you before.
Opvallen,	Het valt mij op, dat hij bleek ziet, it strikes me that he looks pale.
Schelen,*	Het kan mij niet schelen, I don't care.
Smarten,	Het smart hem, u verdriet te doen, it pains him to grieve you.
Spijten,	Het spijt ons, dat gij ziek zijt, we are sorry that you are ill.
Verdrieten,	Laat het u niet verdrieten, dat ik weg moet, don't let it trouble you that I must leave.
Verwonderen,	Het verwondert mij zeer, dat te hooren, I am very much surprised to hear it.
Vrijstaan,	Het staat u vrij, haar uit te noodigen, you are at liberty to invite her.

3. Likewise are brought under this head certain expressions in the Passive Voice, by which an action is ascribed to an agent or agents, whose name is not mentioned (see pp. 140, 169):

Er wordt daar gedanst, they are dancing there;

Er werd goed geschoten, the shooting was good;

Er zal heel wat over gesproken worden, the matter will be much talked about.

* NOTE.—Observe the different meanings of the verb “schelen”:

Niets kan hem schelen, he does not care about anything.

Wat scheelt er aan? what is the matter?

Het scheelde weinig of ik was gevallen, I very nearly fell.

Het scheelt heel wat dat deze weg korter is, this way is shorter by a good deal.

Het zal mij veel schelen als ik een paard heb, it will make a great difference to me, when I have a horse.

In the two latter sentences the idea of “difference” underlies the meaning of the verb “schelen,” and with this meaning it also occurs as a personal verb: Mijn horloge scheelt weinig bij het uwe, my watch differs little from yours.

XXIII. CAUSATIVE VERBS:—Some verbs, derived from existing ones by a change in their radical vowel, indicate that their subject is the cause of an action performed by the object. They are called CAUSATIVE VERBS (Causatieve, Oorzakelijke Werkwoorden). Among them the following are some of the most common :

Original Verbs.	Derivatives.
Drinken , to drink.	Drenken , to cause to drink.
Liggen , to lie.	Leggen , to cause to lie.
Vallen , to fall.	Vellen , to cause to fall.
Waken , to be awake.	Wekken , to cause to wake up.
Zitten , to sit.	Zetten , to cause to sit.

XXIV. FREQUENTATIVE VERBS:—Another kind of Verbs, called FREQUENTATIVE (Frequentatieve, Herhalings-Werkwoorden), because they indicate a constant repetition of the action, are formed from existing ones by adding the ending elen or eren to their verbal stems, with an occasional change of the stem-vowel :

Original Verbs.	Derivatives.
Bidden , to pray, ask.	Bedelen , to ask continually, to beg.
Druipen , to drip.	Droppelen , to drip constantly.
Huppen , to hop.	Huppelen , to continue hopping, to skip.
Wenden , to turn, to move.	Wandelen , to take a walk, to be constantly moving.
Stooten , to dash, to push.	Stotteren to stammer.
Kikken , to utter a sound.	{ Kakelen } to cackle.
	{ Kekkelen }

OBS.—Mark that Verbs in elen and eren belong to the class of Frequentatives only when they indicate a repetition of the action. Many other verbs have the same endings, being derived from nouns which end in el and er :

Grendelen, to bolt (from grendel, a bolt); hameren, to hammer (from hamer, a hammer).

XXV. COMPOUND VERBS (Samengestelde Werkwoorden) are of two kinds—first, those in which the first part is inseparably connected with the verb-stem; second, those whose first part is occasionally separated from the stem. The following rules assist the student in overcoming the apparent difficulty which arises from this fact.

RULE 1.—All Verbs compounded with a Noun are separable: houthakken, to chop wood; leerlooiën, to tan leather; huishouden, to manage a household.

RULE 2.—All Verbs compounded with an Adjective are separable, except those with “vol,” and “mis,” when unaccented: grootspreken, to boast; vrijlaten, to set free; inseparable: volhárden, to endure; voldóen, to satisfy; mishágen, to displease; misdóen, to do wrong.

NOTE.—Vólhouden, to continue, is separable, as are also those verbs in which vol has the meaning of “full,” and has the accent.

RULE 3.—When verbs are compounded with an Adverb or preposition, the pronunciation must decide the case. When the accent lies on their first part, they are separably compounded; when the accent is on their second part, they are inseparably compounded.

EXAMPLES :—

Separable are, áanlachen, to smile at; áchterhouden, to keep back; ómloopen, to take a round-about way; nádenken, to reflect upon.

Inseparable are: overdénken, to consider; aanbidden, to adore; weerkáatsen, to reflect; ontgaán, to escape.

RULE 4.—Verbs derived from existing ones by means of the verbal prefixes, be, ge, er, her, ont, and ver, are inseparable, as: beginnen, to begin; geleiden, to lead; erkennen, to acknowledge; herroepen, to recall; ontvangen, to receive; vergeten, to forget.

OBS.—The difference in conjugation between the inseparably compounded verbs and those separably compounded is so marked that attention should be given to it here.

SEPARABLY COMPOUNDED VERBS, when conjugated, separate themselves from their prefix throughout the entire conjugation, and in their Past Participles insert the prefix "ge" between their two parts.

INSEPARABLY COMPOUNDED VERBS, on the other hand, remain intact, and their Past Participles reject the prefix "ge."

Examples :

- 1. Verbs separably compounded : náloopen, to follow ; Inf. náloopen ; Pres. Part. náloopende ; Past Part. nágelopen, Pres. ik loop na ; Imp. ik liep na ; Perf. ik heb nagelooopen ; Plup. ik had nagelooopen ; Fut. ik zal nalooopen ; Fut. Perf. ik zal nagelooopen hebben ; Imperative, loop na ; Inf. with Prep. na te loopen.
- 2. Verbs inseparably compounded : volhárden, to endure ; Inf. volhárden ; Pres. Part. volhárdende ; Past Part. volhard ; Pres. ik volhard ; Imp. ik volhardde ; Perf. ik heb volhard ; Plup. ik had volhard ; Fut. ik zal volharden ; Fut. Perf. ik zal volhard hebben ; Imperative, volhard ; Inf. with Prep. te volharden.

NOTE 1.—Derived verbs (referred to under Rule 4) having one of the verbal prefixes (be, ge, er, her, ont, or ver) likewise reject the participial prefix ge :

Infinitives : beginnen, geleiden, erkennen, herroepen, ontvangen, vergeten.

Past Participle : begonnen, geleid, erkend, herroepen, ontvangen, vergeten.

NOTE 2.—The verbs antwoorden, to answer ; argwanen, to suspect ; dagvaarden, to summon ; glimlachen, to smile ; handhaven, to maintain ; waarborgen, to guarantee ; zegepralen, to triumph ; beeldhouwen, to sculpture ; zegevieren, to triumph ; evenaren, to equal ; wanhopen, to despair, which are derived from compound nouns, are inseparable, but take the prefix ge in their past participle : geantwoord, gezegepraald.

NOTE 3.—The following verbs change their meaning according to the way their accent is placed :

- | | |
|---------------------|--|
| Dóordringen, | De vijand is in het bosch dóorgedrongen, the enemy has penetrated into the wood. |

EXERCISE LIX.*

1. Determine the stems of the following verbs.

Denken; doen; vragen; blijven; zoeken; leven; zien; hangen; zagen (to saw); liggen; brennen; drogen; voelen; gaan; onderwijzen (to teach); proeven (to taste); lesschen (to quench); visschen; suizen (to rustle); ruischen (to rustle); hakken; schoppen (to kick); dwalen (to wander); pochen (to brag); bogen (to boast); zuchten; lachen; wezen; bedelen (to beg); verblinden (to blind); ontdoen (to strip); rekken (to stretch); tornen (to unpick); naaien; mazen (to darn); breien (to knit); haken (to crochet); zoomen (to hem); stikken (to stitch); bedragen (to amount to); gebeuren; voorrallen (to take place); lezen; vreezen; kussen (to kiss); kuchen (to cough); stoven (to stew); koeren (to coo); kweelen (to warble); tjilpen (to chirp); slaan; piepen; gichelen (to giggle); oorlogen (to wage war); vuren (to fire); schieten; vellen (to fell); villen (to skin); vallen; bespotten (to mock); verbreken (to break); verhuren (to hire out).

2. Write out the singular and the plural form of the Imperative Mood of all the above verbs; and the first person, singular and plural, of the Indicative Present.

EXERCISE LX.

1. Write out the first person, singular, of the Indicative and Subjunctive Present of the following verbs.

Besteden (to spend); vertellen; ergeren (to vex); spitten (to dig); raden (to guess); overreden (to prevail upon); duwen (to push); duren (to last); zetten; plaatsen; missen; fronsen (to frown); heelen (to heal); verhelen (to hide); gedijen (to thrive); ontleden (to analyse); verschepen (to ship); temmen (to tame); laven (to refresh); zalven (to anoint); innten (to vaccinate); mesten (to manure); landen; rusten; planten; dulden (to endure); troosten (to comfort); branden; roosten (to roast); braveeren (to brave); ontberen (to do without); geschieden (to happen); kwaken (to croak); schroeven (to screw); gooien (to throw); schrobben (to scrub); schuren (to scour); beletten (to prevent); draven (to trot); verlaten (to leave); ontzetten (to set free); kruisen (to cross).

2. Of the above verbs write out the stem, the Past Tense (first person, singular) and the Past Participle.

EXERCISE LXI.

In the following exercise write the words in italics in the plural.

Hoe laat is uw broeder aangekomen? Het paard kan den wagen niet trekken; de jongen zal het moeten uitspannen: zulk een dier is veel te zwak voor die vracht. Waarom heeft de man het gat zoo diep gegraven? Ik vertelde hem dat het boek niet gedrukt kon worden; maar hij wilde mij niet gelooven. Kind, kind, wat zal er toch van je groeien? Hoe dikwijls heb ik je niet gewaar-schuw'd! Ik had mij gewasschen vóór ik in de kamer kwam. Wie is vandaag hier geweest? Wanneer wordt uw vriend verwacht? Mijn vader zeide mij, dat ik mij in dien persoon vergist moest hebben. Denk aan wat ik u zoo dikwijls gezegd heb: het is de slechtste perzik niet waaraan de wesp knaagt. De timmerman zaagt het hout. Het jonge meisje bood mij eenen kleinen ruiker aan. Hoe dikwijls baadt hij zich gewoonlijk? De ooievaar kuiert langs de sloot, om te zien of hij er geen kikker uit kan halen, dien hij dan lekker opsmult. De telegraafpaal staat eenzaam in het veld. De adelaar bouwt zijn nest op den top van eenen hoogen berg.

EXERCISE LXII.

Of the following verbs write out the third person, singular and plural, of the Indicative Present.

Binden; delven (to dig); spelen; straffen; beloven (to promise); wasschen; bepalen (to decide); vragen, snijden; onthalen (to treat); lezen; gaan; scheiden (to separate); weven (to weave); schrijven; vreezen; streven (to strive); beseffen (to realise); oorlogen (to wage war); staren (to stare); zaaien; voeden; heeten (to be called); zich herinneren (to remember); bewijzen (to prove); bidden (to pray); antwoorden, slaan.

EXERCISE LXIII.

Of the following sets of verbs write out the Stem, Past Tense (first person, singular), and Past Participle.

1.

Strong verbs (§§ III and XXVI):

Bieden (to offer); blijken (to appear); bergen (to put aside); drinken; eten; genezen (to cure); breken; fluiten (to whistle); kiezen (to choose); vriezen; hangen; glimmen (to gleam); lezen; loopen; nemen; schelden (to call names); meten (to measure); schrijven; sluiten; slijten (to wear out); schenken (to give or pour); stelen; spreken; smelten; vangen; vechten.

2.

Strong, Mixed, and Anomalous verbs (§§ XX, XXI, XXVI):

Houden; sluipen (to steal); raden; zoeken; zeggen; vergeten; plegen; verliezen; lachen; wassen; dunken; wezen; werven (to levy an army); zitten; jagen; bakken; zullen; zweren (to swear); moeten; wasschen; laden; zwijgen; wrijven; koopen; brouwen; weven; zweren (to ulcerate) sterven; wreken; begraven; denken; zien; komen.

3.

Compound and Derivative verbs (§ XXV):

Leerlooien; losmaken; beeldhouwen (to sculpture); liefhebben; volhouden; volharden; volgieten; volbrengen (to accomplish); ontvangen; antwoorden; dagvaarden; óverwerken; ondergaan; herroepen; grootspreken; vrijlaten; náloopen; doorrèizen; zegevieren; wanhopen; mishàgen; mísschieten (to miss aim in shooting); vólloopen (to run full); veroveren (to conquer); onderwèrpen (to subdue); doorblàderen (to peruse); evenaren; vóorkomen; úitloopen (to sprout); ontluiken (to open, of flowers); overdrijven; voorzèggen.

EXERCISE LXIV.

Write out the following exercise, first in the third person, singular; then in the second person, singular; and lastly in the third person, plural, using throughout the tenses as they are given.

Ik sprak met mijnen vader en wees hem den brief, dien ik geschreven had. Ik vertelde mijnen oom wat mij op den weg overkomen was, en hoe ik bijna een ongeluk had gekregen. Op school hoorde ik van mijnen onderwijzer, dat ik de eerste op de lijst stond en dat ik dus eenen prijs zou krijgen. Ik schreef het blad vol, en vouwde toen den brief op, en deed hem in een envelop. Ik riep den postbode toe, dat ik hem zou verklagen, indien ik weer zoo iets merkte. Ik zal het aannemen, als ik mag, maar ik weet niet, of mijn vader het mij zal toelaten. Ik geloof niet, dat ik mijzelf zooveel kwaad doe, als hij mij wijs wil maken. Ik kan het niet helpen, dat ik niet eerder gekomen ben: mijn vader heeft mij om eene boodschap gezonden, en daardoor moest ik wel later komen. Ik ben van morgen vroeg op geweest, maar nu ga ik ook vroeg naar bed. Ik wil het hem niet zeggen, want ik houd er niet van, geheimen te verraden. Het zal mij wezenlijk veel genoeg doen, als ik morgen door dit werk heen kom. Ik behoef mij daarover niet te schamen, dat ik met mijne eigene handen mijn brood verdien. Ik kan ervan zeggen, wat ik wil; gehoorzaamd word ik toch niet. Ik zou wel graag naar de kerk gaan, maar ik ben bang dat ik erg verkouden worden zal. Heb ik mij niet altijd fatsoenlijk gedragen? Heb ik mij ooit aan die familie opgedrongen? Had ik mij niet kunnen verrijken ten koste van mijne vrienden, en heb ik ooit iemand te kort gedaan? Wil ik eens gaan rijden, dan zadel ik zelf mijn paard, want ik houd er niet van den knecht altijd lastig te vallen voor mijn plezier.

EXERCISE LXV.

In the following exercise change the Infinitive form of the verb into the required form of (1st) the Present Tense, (2nd) the Past, and (3rd) the Future of the Indicative Mood.

Mijne tante (geven) les aan vier kinderen; zij (doen) hun best en (maken) goede vorderingen. Er (zijn) eene zware wolk op den berg; het (duren) niet meer lang of het (regenen). De trein (razen) en (rommelen), terwijl hij ons (voorbijvliegen). De mannen (werken) vandaag aan den weg; zij (rusten) en (gebruiken) hun middagmaal. Met welke boot (vertrekken) uw vriend naar Australië? Een jager (loopen) over het veld en (dragen) zijn geweer onder den arm. De kinderen (baden) zich eerst in den dam en (kleeden) zich daarna aan. De zwaluw (zitten) op eenen tak en (fluiten) een vroolijk deuntje terwijl zijn wijfje de eieren (broeden). Waarom (laden) de soldaat zijn geweer? Een hevig onweer (losbreken) over de stad. De zon om zeven uur (ondergaan). De man (graven) diep in den grond. De wind (suizen) door de boomen en (doen) de dorre bladeren ritselen. De generaal (handhaven) de eer der republiek. Het gedrag van mijnen neef (mishagen) onzen rector. Onze tuinman (leiden) water in den tuin. Het koper (versehept worden) te Port Nolloth. De luie kinderen (gestraft worden) door den onderwijzer. Na een uur de pijn óvergaan.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES.—Vertaal oefeningen.

EXERCISE LXXIV.

(On § XIII, the translation of the Infinitive.)

Tell the waiter to bring me a glass of water. Can you lend me some money? I have not got enough with (bij) me to pay this bill. The distance is too long to walk, we will have to (moeten) drive there (er heen). To have told (if one had told) the girl of her friend's death in her present weak state, might (it) have caused a serious relapse. But one man escaped alive to tell the fearful tale. Go and tell Mr. B. that I (bij hem) will call at (op) his office at three o'clock this afternoon. To read good books (see Rule II, p. 67) improves the mind. It would have been pleasant to take a ride before sunrise this morning. Why don't you come to see me oftener? You know it is too cold now for me to go out. To (voor) that poor woman to live would have been to suffer. Since my friends have gone to live in (the) town, I feel very lonely. Why did (are) you not come and tell me that you had no money to pay your tram fare? Can't you teach that boy to speak properly? To try is to succeed.

EXERCISE LXXV.

(On § XV, the use of Tenses, and § IV, the use of the auxiliaries hebben and zijn.)

While I was sweeping the room this morning, I found the lost ring. Did you tell the man not to go to the front door? I wonder (zou wel eens willen weten) what (er) has become of my cousin, who left for America two years ago. When shall I see you again (Present tense). To-day (over) fortnight. The French have gradually extended their power in Madagascar. My brother has just arrived in time for the concert. I have been walking about the whole morning, and feel very tired. Did you walk or drive to the station? I walked, because I found I had plenty of time. To-day week (over eene week) we intend leaving for Natal. How did the fire originate? By the carelessness of a man who lit his pipe in the workshop, and dropped the burning match among the shavings. I have crossed the brook without the least trouble. There have been poor people at all times. How long has this company been in existence (existed)? It was (is) founded in 1886. These girls have grown very much since last I saw them. The accident would not have happened, if the guard had remained at his post. Since the boy's father died he has had to (moeten) provide for himself.

EXERCISE LXXVI.

(On §§ IX, X, A, B, C, the use of the Passive.)

The flowers are being planted by the gardener this morning. Has he been told where to plant them? Yes, I told him (that) they should be planted along the grass border. All these exercises were (have been) corrected by the teacher this morning. This child is (being) punished for the second time to-day. If I had been warned in time, I would not have got into trouble. My room will be papered to-morrow. Did you think the child would be punished for not knowing (because he did not know) his lesson? He certainly ought to (behoorde) have been punished. I was present when the names of the applicants were (being) read out. If the new town-hall had been built of hewn stone, it would look more imposing. If the murderer were found out, he would be hanged. The camel is found in the desert regions of Africa and Asia. Heavy firing was going on when I left the camp. Flowers should (behooren) not be picked while the sun is hot. Is enough wheat raised in this country to meet the demands of consumption? Was the boy told (had — been told) to attend to the horse?

EXERCISE LXXVII.

(On § X, A, B, and c, the use of zijn and worden.)

Translate into English:—

Zou u tevreden geweest zijn, als men u de helft van uw loon (earnings) onthouden (kept back) had? Waarom werd de kerkklok van middag geluid (to ring). Omdat een der oudste bewoners van het dorp, die gestorven is, begraven werd. De boot zou gisteren avond al aangekomen zijn, als de wind niet zoo tegen (contrary) geweest was. De boomen zijn van hunne laatste bladeren beroofd (deprived) door den wind en regen der laatste dagen. De lichten in de kerk waren om zes uur al aangestoken (lit). De kracht van den stoom is op zeer eenvoudige wijze door Sir Isaac Newton ontdekt. Is uw broeder reeds vertrokken? Is uw oom tot magistraat benoemd (appointed)? Is uw vriend bevoegd (qualified) tot het vervullen van zulk eene gewichtige (important) betrekking (post)? Geschiedenis wordt in die school niet uit boeken geleerd, maar alles wordt den kinderen verteld. Zijn al uwe paarden beslagen (shod)? De boomen waren niet omgehakt, toen ik den grond kocht. Ik zou niet zoo angstig geweest zijn, als mij niet verteld was, dat de spoorlijn door de zware regens op verscheidene plaatsen weggespoeld (washed away) was. De haas is door den jager neergeschoten, nadat hij door den hond opgejaagd was (had startled him). Was de man niet ziek geworden, dan zou dit werk al lang klaar zijn.

EXERCISE LXXVIII.

(On § X, A, B, and c, the different renderings of "to be" as a Copulative and an Auxiliary of Voice.)

Do not take the bread out of the oven, it is not sufficiently baked yet. All the cake has been eaten by the children. If there had been time, these boxes would have been labelled. The peculiar properties of the loadstone were known to the Chinese long before the compass was introduced into Europe by the Venetian traveller Marco Polo. If I had been called in time, I would not have been late for breakfast. The dictionary has been carefully revised, so that the new edition will be much improved. The child would have been delighted if she had been asked to take part in the entertainment. During that severe winter all our rivers were frozen over, and there was a good deal of (er werd veel) skating and sledging (schaatsen gereden en gesleed). The poor child was so frightfully burned that his life was despaired of from the first (van het begin af). The poor man would have been satisfied if he had only been told that his child was out of danger. There have been several fires on the mountains round about lately, and it is to be feared (to fear) that the wood about some of the fountains has been destroyed. Would you have believed this man to be (that . . . was) capable of such a vile act?

EXERCISE LXXIX.

(On § XIV, the translation of the Present and Past Part.)

My father is very fond of walking. I saw the man picking up the letter. It is only by working from early morning till late at night, that the poor widow has been able to provide for her children thus far (tot nu toe). Early rising is conducive to (the) health. Thinking the child had gone with his father, the mother was not anxious at not finding him (when she did not find him) on (bij) her return home (thuiskomst). Crossing this bridge at night is very dangerous. Having lost the letter, the boy ran home in great distress. The young people spent the evening (met) dancing and playing games. Travelling in foreign countries is not only pleasant but instructive. Walking up St. John's Street this morning, I met an old college friend of mine (see Chapter VIII, p. 134). Columbus supposed that (he), by sailing due west [he] would reach India. The boy not noticing that he kept making (continually (steeds) made) the same mistake, spent an hour trying to get his sum right. On hearing his father's hard accusation the young man left the house in despair. The boys, not being aware of the depth of the river, were on the point of jumping in, when I called to them. What have you been doing this morning? I have been reading in my room. Have you ever heard Miss B. recite? My mother asks me to tell you that she will come to see you before you leave. As a last resource the poor man has gone to work in the mines.

EXERCISE LXXX.

(On § XII, (b), and Notes, the use of the Subjunctive Mood.)

Translate into Dutch, employing the Subjunctive Mood.

Had you done your duty, you would have been rewarded. However that be, I know that I cannot trust him. Were he in better circumstances, he would not be so sad. If he had done right, he would have no fear. If I were your teacher, I should not allow it. Whatever may happen, I shall remain true to you. Be that as it may, I consider myself free to think as I choose. If he had only had a loving mother he would not have been so reckless. If the doctor had a larger practice, he would be happier. That would never have occurred, had he had you to advise him. If every man were prudent and conscientious there would be very little poverty. (The) Heaven grant that I may see my native country once more! God forbid that you should ever steal. May the king grant our urgent request! May South Africa once be one large united country.

EXERCISE LXXXI.

(On § XIX, and Chap. VIII, p. 132, Obs. 6, Reflexive Verbs and the use of zelf.)

My brother has hurt himself on the knee, while chopping down the old apple-tree at the back of (achter in) the garden. I find I have not been mistaken in the good opinion I had of that young girl. Fancy, when I came home this morning, I heard that my dog had died. Why do you want me to do (that I should do) a thing which you would not do yourself? When we were at the farm, we bathed in the large pond every morning before sunrise. Instead of repenting of his misdeeds, this young fellow boasts of (it) having (that he has) deceived his employer so cleverly. Are you going out this morning? No, I have changed my mind; I shall rather stay at home and prepare for the reading class this evening. You ought to be ashamed of yourself; this is the second time (that) you have failed in the examination. The pioneers who settled in Mashonaland, have had to put up with many hardships. Before going out to a new country, these young people ought to have made sure of what opportunities they would have there of getting on. Don't you remember (that) I told you at the time (that) you should hesitate to accept so much kindness from a mere stranger? I cannot understand why your brother did not complain of the unjust treatment he was undergoing at school (die hem aangedaan werd). He did not do so, because he would rather suffer himself, than bring disgrace to his school-mates.

EXERCISE LXXXII.

(On § XXV, Note 3, Compound Verbs changing their meaning according to the way the accent falls.)

Just (toch eens) weigh this letter over again, I am afraid it is overweight. My brother has been travelling all over Europe (doorreizen); and has brought a fine collection of views and curios from the different countries he has visited. Our gardener predicts (voorspellen) fine weather for to-morrow, and as the old man very rarely makes a mistake, I think we can safely arrange for the picnic. All these years this young girl has provided for her mother. The man seemed so convinced of the truth of my statement that he walked away without uttering a (enkel) word in reply. When I returned to the study, I found that the ink-pot had been upset over my work, and that the ink had penetrated (door . . . heengedrongen) (the) most of my papers, so that I had to write the greater (greatest) part of my work over again. It was quite touching to see the clerk, when my father told him that he would overlook his misdeed, and give him a chance to undo the past; the tears rushed to his eyes (him in the eyes), and he had the greatest difficulty to keep down his emotion. I have carefully considered the contents of this letter, but the (hoe) more I think of it (erover) the more (des te) convinced I feel (myself) that the report is much exaggerated. Many of the railway accidents that have happened in the course of this year might have been prevented, if the responsible persons had simply done their duty. The sun was (aan het) setting as we reached home. The heavy rain-clouds were dispersing; the moon rose stately behind the pine-wood, and threw her soft light over the peaceful earth.

EXERCISE LXXXIII.

(On § XXII, Impersonal Verbs.)

You must have been surprised not to see me at the station, since I made an appointment to meet you there; but as it was very windy and I had a bad cold, I could not venture out. I was very sorry indeed, to miss my last opportunity of seeing you before your departure. It had been raining and blowing all (the whole) night, but in the morning the clouds parted, and the rising sun brought rest to nature and joy to man and beast. I have been instructed (to me is instructed) to inform you that the council have (has) been pleased to accede to your request. It did strike me (insert 'wel'), that your friend did not look well, but I had no idea he was really ill. Of course you are free to do as you please, but it is so misty this evening, that I think it would be very risky for you to go out. I am grieved to hear you speak so disrespectfully of your teachers; even if they should be to blame (schuld hebben) in this matter, you have got no right to speak like that (so). I was overtaken by such a severe thunderstorm on my way to the village, that I had to take shelter in a deserted hut that happened to be near (die zich gelukkig in de nabijheid bevond). I do not recollect ever to have witnessed such thunder and lightning. It struck me that the reading was particularly good at that school; it certainly reflects great credit on the teacher who has got (the) charge of that particular branch of instruction. I do not know what is the matter with this tree, that it will not grow. My watch differs so much from the station-clock, that I very nearly missed the train. It would have made a great difference to me, if I had had some one to show me how to do the work. He does not care if he has got to work hard, as long as he earns enough to support his family.

EXERCISE LXXXIV.

The English verb "to mean" has various equivalents in Dutch.

1. Meenen :

Hij meent het goed, he means well.

Ik wist niet, wat zij meende, I did not know what she meant.

Meent u wat u zegt? do you mean what you say?

2. Bedoelen, with the strength of "bringing out the meaning of some one's words":
Hij bedoelde dat hij zelf wilde gaan, he meant (with what he said) that he wanted to go himself.
U bedoelde het beter dan u het zei, you meant it better than you said it.
3. Beteekenen, with the force of Eng. "to signify":
Het opsteken eener witte vlag beteekent vrede, the flying of a white flag means peace.
Het woord "erkentelijkheid" beteekent "dankbaarheid," the word "gratitude" means "thankfulness."
4. Van plan zijn, with the special meaning of "to intend":
Ik was van plan de courant te gaan lezen, I meant to go and read the paper.
Zij is van plan mij dit present te geven, she means to make me a present of this.
5. A special sense in which the Dutch "meenen" is used, is that of "being of opinion," on account of which it is commonly translated by "to think":
Meent gij, dat het te duur is? do you think it is too expensive?
 The verb "meenen," so used, is always followed by a noun sentence (object).

If he meant all (that) he said, he would not be so kind to me. Do you mean, that you would rather be in the Free State than in Natal? The girls meant that they had not been in your garden, and had therefore not picked your flowers. The woman always meant (it) well with that ungrateful son of hers (of her). Did he really think it was too far for him to walk to Wellington? No, but he meant, I think, that his feet might (would perhaps) get (become) sore. I am sure (er zeker van) (that) he did not mean (that) his brother to (should) read his letters! It was a shame for him to do so (that he did it)! What did you think the word meant? Oh, I thought it meant something wrong, but my brother was of opinion that it had quite a different meaning. You knew, that he meant it, did you not (niet waar)? What he means is that it is not right for you to (that you) go to such a place. I always meant to ask my father for the book, but whenever (wanneer . . . ook) I saw him, I forgot it. It has meant a good deal (heel wat) to him, that his brother would not share the profit with him. You mean, the potatoes are too expensive? You had better ask your mother (vraag het maar eens aan); she knows more about (van) these (die) things than you do.

EXERCISE LXXXV.

A.

Commit to memory the following idiomatic expressions.

I can give it,	Ik kan het geven.
I could give it,	Ik kon het geven.
	Ik zou het kunnen geven.
I can have given it,	Ik heb het kunnen geven.
I could have given it,	Ik had het kunnen geven.
	Ik zou het hebben kunnen geven.
I shall be able to give it,	Ik zal het kunnen geven.
I shall have been able to give it.	Ik zal het hebben kunnen geven.

I could not get the book, even if I wanted (zelfs niet al wou ik). You can get some (wat) apples for me, I hope! You could have got them yesterday, but now they are all gone (weg). I shall not be able to ask my brother to-day because he is not at home. He could send me some money, if he wanted, but I believe (that) he does not want to (het niet wil). They cannot finish that work in a day! they could not finish it in a week! We could have come, if we had known that you were in (the) town.

B.

Likewise the following idiomatic expressions.

Will he give it to me?	Zal hij het mij geven?
	Zal hij het mij willen geven?
Would he give it to me?	Zou hij het mij geven?

Will he have given it?	Zal hij het gegeven hebben?
	Zal hij het hebben willen geven?
Would he have given it?	Zou hij het gegeven hebben?
	Zou hij het hebben willen geven?

Can he give it to me ?	Kan hij het mij geven ?
	Zal hij het mij kunnen geven ?
Could he give it to me ?	Kon hij het mij geven ?
	Zou hij het mij kunnen geven ?
Can he have given it ?	Kan hij het gegeven hebben ?
	Heeft hij het kunnen geven ?
	Zal hij het hebben kunnen geven ?
Could he have given it ?	Kon hij het gegeven hebben ?
	Had hij het kunnen geven ?
	Zou hij het hebben kunnen geven ?

I could not have shown you the picture, if you had not been in the room. Do you think (that) he would give me a shilling, if I asked for it (erom)? Can he help me with my exercise? Yes, he could help you if he would. Would you not bring me a glass of water? Could they not do something for the poor woman. They could no doubt sing that song if they only wanted to (wilden). How can that boy ever have given such a disrespectful answer? How could your sisters have gone to (the) church without you? Would you take this letter to the post for me, my child? Yes, I would, if I only knew where the post-office was. Would your father give you permission, do you think? How could he? I was (have been) out yesterday, and I may never go more than once a week. But, Jane, could you not sew on those buttons? I could even do it myself, I think! Could you? well then try (het eens). I am sure you cannot sew!

EXERCISE LXXXVI.

A.

Learn the following :

He should say so,	(Present) Hij behoorde het te zeggen.
He should have said so,	(Past) Hij behoorde het gezegd te hebben.
	Hij had het behooren te zeggen.

We ought to do as you say. You should not speak in (op) this way. My brother should have gone this morning. The butcher should have called to-day, but he has not done so (het). Should he not state why he has been absent this morning? Should we not have said that we were very sorry that this had occurred? Why do you answer me like this?—you ought to be ashamed of yourself. A teacher ought to be careful about (met) praising his pupils. You should read that book, my friend; that would be better than to idle away your time in this way. Should our neighbours share the expense of building this wall, or have we to bear it all alone? He ought to apply to the government for a situation. You should have laid out your garden as I have laid out mine. She should not have been out on (such) a cold night [like that].

B.

“To have to,” “to be to,” “to be bound to,” synonymous with “must,” are both translated by the verb “moeten.”

Learn the following :

The boy has to (is to) work,	De jongen moet werken.
The boy had to (was to) work,	De jongen moest werken.
The boy has had to work (is to have worked),	De jongen heeft moeten werken.
The boy had had to work (was to have worked),	De jongen had moeten werken.
The boy will have to work,	De jongen zal moeten werken.
The boy will have had to work,	De jongen zal hebben moeten werken.

If I am to do all this work before 12 o'clock, you must leave me at peace. The gardener will have to clear up all the rubbish before he goes. Will the boy have to say his lesson this afternoon, or to-morrow morning? It is hard to have to go [all] this (whole) way alone. Were you to take the letter to the post, or to the man's private house? I should have taken it to his house, but I put a stamp on it and posted it. You will be bound to acknowledge that I have done you no wrong. Would it do (go) to make him stay three nights a (per) week? It would hardly do, for he would have to go home all alone in the dark. You are not to go beyond the church—mind (hoor) what I say. If people were always to be punished for what they do wrong, there would be little pleasure in (the) life. You are to accompany your father to Europe, you said. Yes, but I do not like leaving mother alone. To have to work for one's daily bread is a pleasure to some people and a great hardship (verdriet, o.) to others. It would have done him good to have had to practise strict obedience at the boarding school. Now (that) he is gone, I shall be bound to go as well.

EXERCISE LXXXVII.

A.

Commit to memory the following idiomatic expressions :

We make him say it,	Wij laten het hem zeggen.
We made him say it,	Wij lieten het hem zeggen.
We have made him say it,	Wij hebben het hem laten zeggen.
We had made him say it,	Wij hadden het hem laten zeggen.
We shall make him say it,	Wij zullen het hem laten zeggen.
We shall have made him say it,	Wij zullen het hem hebben laten zeggen.

We made the poor bird sing by whistling to it. Will you make the child write his exercise over again? He makes me laugh when he looks at (naar) me. If you do not lend me your pencil, so that I can put down the name, you will make me forget the message. The sun makes the moon shine by night, and the moon again makes the stars glitter less brightly than they do on (in) clear but dark nights. The wind was so violent that he made the forest trees (trees in the forest) [to] tremble. We shall undoubtedly have made him confess before you come back. To make him go against his will, would be both unpleasant for him and awkward for us. If you do not learn your lessons for to-morrow, my child, I shall make you write them out.

B.

Learn likewise the following idioms :

I have the floor washed,	Ik laat den vloer wasschen.
I had the floor washed,	Ik liet den vloer wasschen.
I have had the floor washed,	Ik heb den vloer laten wasschen.
I had had the floor washed,	Ik had den vloer laten wasschen.
I shall have the floor washed,	Ik zal den vloer laten wasschen.
I shall have had the floor washed,	Ik zal den vloer hebben laten wasschen.

We have had this wall built, because the neighbours annoyed us. I shall have the books taken down and cleaned. You will have the watch seen to, will you not (niet waar)? Yes, I shall have it put right for you. He would have had his hair cut very short, if he had not been afraid of (voor) the cold weather. You had the garden dug up, you said. Yes, and we had the gardener search it well, but no trace of a box was found in the soil anywhere. Several countries, but especially France, used to (plachten) have their political criminals work on galleys in former times. I hear you have found diamonds on your farm? Will you have the ground worked? I shall have a hole drilled, and the ground tested. But would you have a drill decide this matter? If I were you, I should certainly have a large hole dug and the soil washed. Tomorrow about this time we shall have the horses brought in, and start on our trip. I have had the boy saddle the horses; so if you care for a ride, we shall go—if not, I shall have them taken back to the stable.

C.

Learn once more the following idioms :

He likes (doing) it,	Hij heeft er lust in (heeft lust), het te doen.
He does not like doing it,	Hij heeft geen lust, het te doen.
He did not like doing it,	Hij had geen lust, het te doen.
	Hij heeft geen lust gehad, het te doen.
	Hij had geen lust gehad, het te doen.
He won't like doing it,	Hij zal geen lust hebben, het te doen.
He won't have liked doing it,	Hij zal geen lust gehad hebben, het te doen.

mij bevallen is.* 35. I once crossed the Channel in one, but I cannot say that I liked it.

CHAPTER X.
THE ADVERB.
(Het Bijwoord.)

I. WHAT the Adjective is to the Noun, that the Adverb is to the Verb. As Adjectives express attributes and qualities of persons and things, so Adverbs express peculiarities which mark an action. Adverbs are accordingly principally meant for modifying (a) Verbs, yet they may likewise modify (b) Adjectives, (c) Adverbs, and (d) even Nouns in some particular cases.

EXAMPLES :

- (a) Het kind leest goed, the child reads well.
Het paard loopt snel, the horse runs swiftly.
De vogel zit ginds, the bird sits yonder.
Mijne dochter belooft veel, my daughter promises much.
- (b) Dat is bijzonder goed schrift, that is particularly good writing.
Dit pakje schijnt ongemeen zwaar, this parcel seems uncommonly heavy.
Uwe begeerte wordt te sterk, your desire is becoming too strong.
- (c) Ik had het lang te voren gedaan, I had done it long before.
Mijne zuster leest bijzonder mooi, my sister reads particularly well.
De zonnestralen vallen bijna loodrecht, the sunbeams fall almost perpendicularly.

(d) De menschen hierachter zijn zindelijk, the people at the back are cleanly.

Die steilte daar is gevaarlijk, that steep place there is dangerous.

NOTE.—The Cape Dutch, which has only one demonstrative pronoun, die, avails itself of the adverbs hier and daar to indicate that an object is close by or at a distance: Hier die boek en die eene daar; Dutch: Dit boek en dat, this book and that one.

OBS. 1.—The copulative verbs, i.e., those which take a nominative case before and after them (zijn, blijven, worden, heeten, schijnen, gelijken, blijken), are followed by adjectives, and not adverbs: Hij schijnt rijk, he seems to be rich; Hij blijft trouw, he remains faithful. Here the words rich and faithful evidently do not qualify an action, but the doer of the action, and so are adjectives.

OBS. 2.—Other verbs besides the copulative may be followed by an adjective instead of an adverb: De schilder verft het raam groen, the painter paints the window green; Het is die vriend, die hem zoo slecht gemaakt heeft, it is that friend, who has made him so wicked. Here the colour green, and the quality wicked, evidently have nothing to do with the actions painting or making. It is the door which is green, and not the painting; likewise it is he that is wicked, and not the making; so that green and wicked are adjectives, and not adverbs.

II. The following are the Adverbs in use:

1. Bijwoorden van wijze, Adverbs of manner.
2. Bijwoorden van graad, Adverbs of degree.
3. Bijwoorden van getal, Adverbs of number.
4. Bijwoorden van plaats, Adverbs of place.
5. Bijwoorden van tijd, Adverbs of time.
6. Bijwoorden van oorzaak, Adverbs of cause.
7. Voegwoordelijke Bijwoorden, Adverbial Conjunctions.

8. Modale Bijwoorden, Adverbs of mood, divided into :

- (a) Adverbs of affirmation (Bevestiging).
- (b) Adverbs of negation (Ontkenning).
- (c) Adverbs of doubt (Twijfel).
- (d) Optative (Wenschende) Adverbs.

EXAMPLES :

(1) ADVERBS OF MANNER: slecht, badly, schoon, beautifully, langzaam, slowly. "Hoe" is an interrog. adv. of manner. Every adjective denoting a quality may be used as an adverb of manner without any change of form. Those, however, which end in lijksch, lingsch and waartsch drop their ch when used as adverbs: dagelijks, daily (adv.), voorwaarts, onward (adv.).

(2) ADVERBS OF DEGREE: genoeg, enough; witermate, exceedingly; overtollig, excessively; nauwelijks, scarcely; bijna, nearly; bijzonder, especially; zoo, so; te, too, volkomen, quite; zeer, very; vreeselijk, terribly; heelemaal, altogether; erg, very.

(3) ADVERBS OF NUMBER: all the Herhalingsgetallen (see p. 122), and further—ten eerste, ten tweede, ten derde, ten vierde, enz., first, second, third, fourth, etc.; ten laatste, lastly; ten slotte, finally.

(4) ADVERBS OF PLACE: af, down; rond, about; om, round; henen, away; voort, on; heen, towards; daarheen, thither; herwaarts, hither; huiswaarts, home; berg op, uphill; berg af, downhill; noordwaarts, northward; naar boven, upstairs; naar beneden, downstairs; hier, here; in, into; nabij, near; nergens, nowhere; ergens, somewhere; overal, everywhere, ergens anders, elsewhere; boven, above; beneden, beneath; achter, behind; terzijde, aside; aan boord, aboard; aan wal, ashore; vooruit, ahead; ginds, yonder; hier en daar, here and there; heinde en ver, far and wide. Also the interrog. adv. waar, where; waarheen, whither; vanwaar, whence, etc.

NOTE.—A good many of these words may be used as prepositions, but then they invariably take a noun after them: Hij liep den tuin uit en de kamer in (uit and in adverbs), he walked out of the garden and into the room; De vogel zit in den boom (in prep.), the bird is in the tree.

(5) ADVERBS OF TIME :

(a) Time, definite or indefinite: nu, now; dan, then; heden, to-day; morgen, to-morrow; 's daags, per diem; 's nachts, by night; 's jaars, per annum; maandelijks, every month; van avond, this evening; thans, now; gisteren, yesterday; reeds, already; eens, once upon a time; ooit, ever; nooit or nimmer, never; voorheen, formerly; weleer, before; nauwelijks (nauw), scarcely; straks, just now; intusschen, meanwhile.

(b) Duration of time: altijd, always; steeds, constantly; immer, always; voortaan, henceforward; onderwijl, in the meantime; van lieverlede, in course of time; sedert, since.

(c) Repetition of time: dikwijls, often; vaak, often; zelden, seldom; telkens, every now and then; opnieuw, once more; somtijds, sometimes; nu en dan, now and then; gewoonlijk, usually; doorgaans, commonly; weder, again. Wanneer, when, is an interr. adv. of time.

(6) ADVERBS OF CAUSE: daarom, therefore; derhalve, therefore; dienvolgens, on that account; vandaar, for that reason; daartoe, for that purpose, etc.

Interrogative: waarom, why; waartoe, for what purpose; weshalve, on what account, etc.

(7.) ADVERBIAL CONJUNCTIONS: evenwel, however; toch, yet; niettemin, yet; nochtans, yet, nevertheless; desniettegenstaande, notwithstanding; integendeel, on the contrary; bijgevolg, consequently; and the words daarvan, ervan, daarmee, ermee, daarop, erop, daaruit, eruit, etc., called SAMENGETROKKEN BIJWOORDEN (see their formation, p. 136).

(8) ADVERBS OF MOOD:

(a) Affirmation: ja, yes; wel, indeed; voorwaar, verily; immers (see the example); volstrekt (see the example); inderdaad, indeed; zeker, certainly; voorzeker, to be sure; gewis, undoubtedly; stellig, positively. The way in which “wel,” “immers,” and “volstrekt” are used can be best gathered from the following sentences:

1. Hij heeft het wel gedaan, maar niet zoals ik het wilde, he did it indeed, but not as I wanted it.
2. Ik heb u immers trouw gediend, I served you faithfully, did I not?
3. Hij wilde het volstrekt zóó hebben, he was determined to have it so.

(b) Negation: neen, no; niet, not; geenszins, in no wise, not at all; volstrekt niet, not at all.

(c) Probability or doubt: misschien, perhaps; mogelijk, probably; wellicht, perhaps; vermoedelijk, presumably; waarschijnlijk, probably; wel (see example).

Ex. Ik denk wel, dat hij thuis zal zijn, I rather think he will be at home.

Ex. Kom dan, waarom zouden wij wachten, do come, why should we wait? Zeg hem toch, dat hij haast make, please tell him to make haste.

OBS. I.—Adverbs of manner (see par. II, 1) are for the greater part adjectives used as adverbs, without any change of form. The student is requested to note this fact. The adverbial ending lijk (Eng. ly) exists in Dutch, but is now very little used. There are adverbs which take it, not because it makes them adverbs, but because it has been used in the formation of the adjective from a noun or a verb; e.g., moeielijk is an adverb, signifying “with difficulty,” but the adjective “difficult” is translated likewise by moeielijk: De oude man loopt moeielijk, the old man walks with difficulty; Het is een moeielijk geval, it is a difficult case. The student should therefore beware of placing the ending "lijk" after adjectives of manner, in order to make adverbs of them. Formerly it was customary to do so; now it is not admitted in colloquial language, though in high-flown style and in Bible language it is still done, as: Wij hebben goddelooslijk gehandeld, we have done wickedly.

OBS. 2.—Adverbs never change their form. The Adverbs of manner, however, take degrees of comparison, like adjectives. (See on Comparison, p. 105). The Superlative degree is always preceded by the def. article het.

Ex. Mijn zoon werkt het vlijtigst, my son works most diligently (of all).

Uwe dochter leert het best, your daughter learns best (of all).

Mijne borst plaagt mij 's winters het meest, my chest troubles me most in winter.

OBS. 3.—The following are irregular in their forms:

Positive.	Comparative.	Superlative.
Goed , well,	beter ,	het best .
Slecht , badly,	erger ,	het ergst .
Veel , many a time,	meer ,	het meest .
Weinig , a few times,	minder ,	het minst .
Vroeg , early,	eerder ,	het eerst .
Dikwijls , often,	meermalen ,	het meest .
Gaarne , willingly,	liever ,	het liefst .

NOTE.—Het eerst, or eerst, het laatst, or laatst, het best, or best, het liefst, or liefst, are used with different meanings, as follows:

Compare: Ik was het eerst op school, I was the first at school.

Adv. of time: Ik was eerst op school en daarna in het museum, I was first at school, and then at the museum.

Compare: Mijn broeder kwam het laatst boven, my brother was the last to come upstairs.

Adv. of time: Mijn broeder bezocht laatst de mijnen, my brother visited the mines some time ago.

Compare: Dit meisje leert het best, this little girl learns best of all.

Adv. of mood: Deze jongen kan best naar het dorp gaan, this boy can very well go the village.

Compare: De man heeft zijn kind het liefst bij zich, the man prefers having his child with him.

Adv. of degree: Ik zou van avond liefst niet uitgaan, I would rather not go out this evening.

NOTE.—Some Adverbs of manner have been formed from adjectives by the diminutive ending je followed by an adverbial final s: zoet, sweet; zoetjes, nicely, softly; stil, quiet; stilletjes, quietly, etc. Such adverbs do not take any degrees of comparison. The Cape expression: Sla den bal zoetjester, beat the ball more softly,—is absurd.

III. The meaning and use of the following Adverbs require special notice:

1 a. Zelden, rarely (seldom), is only an adverb, and never an adjective: Wij zien onzen broeder zelden, we seldom see our brother.

1 b. Zeldzaam, rare, wrongly used in the place of zelden, is an adjective, and not an adverb: Volkomen zwarte katten zijn zeldzaam, perfectly black cats are rare.

2 a. Heen is an Adverb of place, indicating direction towards an object: Waar gaat gij morgen heen? whither do you go to-morrow? Mijn plan is van middag nergens heen te gaan, my intention is, not to go anywhere this afternoon.

2 b. Henen is an adverb, indicating motion away from a place: Ga niet henen, vóór het donker is, do not go away before dark.

NOTE.—The difference between the words heen and henen is not observed in colloquial Dutch. For either meaning heen is used.

3 a. Immer, ever, and nimmer, never, point to a future time: Zal ik u immer wederzien! Shall I ever see you back? Hij zal ons nimmer beschamen! he will never put us to shame!

3 b. Ooit, ever, refers only to the past: Heb ik ooit in mijn leven zoo iets gezien? did I ever see such a thing in my life?

3 c. Nooit, never, may indicate a past or a future time: Ik heb mij nooit met zoo iets beziggehouden, en ik zal er mij nooit mede bezighouden, I have never occupied myself with such a thing, nor shall I ever occupy myself with it.

4. Wijlen, late, is an Adverb of time taking its place before the name of a person: Wijlen de Graaf van Chambord, the late Count Chambord.

5. Met, a preposition (the adverbial form of which is mede), may be used as an Adverb of time: Met dat hij binnenkwam, hield het geraas op, the moment he came in, the noise stopped.

6. Kwansuis (Cape pronunciation: konsuis), sometimes written kwansuijs, a word found in several of the Saxon languages, means "as it were," or, "pretending." It is commonly used in telling about a trick which has been played on anyone: Omdat de jongen lust had in een der lekkere appelen, liet hij kwansuis het geld vallen, om de aandacht zijner tante af te leiden, because the boy longed for one of the nice apples, he (as it were by mistake) dropped the money, in order to divert his aunt's attention.

7. Averchts (a compound of af, from, and recht, right, with an adverbial s) means in the wrong direction. Zij breit den éénen toer recht, en de anderen averchts, she knits one round plain and the next pearl.

8. Na, after, is an Adverb of time; naar, towards, is a preposition. Hij kwam daar na mij, he came there after me; Ik vertrek naar Engeland, I am leaving for England.

9. Af, down, is an adverb; van, from, is a preposition: Wij klommen den berg af, we came down the mountain; Hij nam het boek van mij weg, he took the book away from me.

10. Toe is an adverb expressing direction; tot is a preposition: Waar gaan wij naar toe, where are we going? Wij zullen maar tot daar gaan, we shall only go till there.

11. The use of the adverbs "af" and "neer," both meaning "down," which are found in composition with many everyday verbs, requires special attention.

1. Use "af" when the "motion from an object" is the prominent idea.
2. Use "neer," when "motion towards an object" is the prominent idea.

EXAMPLES OF 1 :

Hij kwam van zijn paard af, he came down from his horse.

Hij viel van het dak af, he fell from the roof.

De vogel vliegt van den boom af, the bird flies down from the tree.

De jongen trekt de vlieg een poot af, the boy pulls out one of the legs of the fly.

EXAMPLES OF 2 :

Hij kwam op den vloer neer, he came down on the floor.

Hij valt bij den stoel neer, he falls down at the chair.

De jager schoot den bok neer, the hunter shot down the buck.

Ik trek het gordijn neer, I pull the curtain down.

Consequently, when separation is to be indicated, af should be taken: Hij sloeg hem het hoofd af, he cut his head off.

When a directly downward motion must be expressed, "neer" is used: De regen valt uit de wolken neer, the rain falls from the clouds.

Downward motion, along a slope, is expressed by "af": Hij loopt de trap af, he goes down the stairs.

Motion resulting in rest upon an object, is expressed by "neer" only: Ik legde hem op het bed neer, I laid him down on the bed.

EXERCISE XC.

Translate the following (minding especially § II, (1), and Obs. 1, 2, 3, also § III).

All these roses blossom a long time, but that one yonder blossoms longest of all. Notwithstanding the heavy rains, the troops marched courageously onward. I would rather not tell you why he prefers going to-morrow. The seasons are caused by the annual rotation of the earth round the sun. My father visits his old friend daily. They will have to act very cautiously in that matter. Of all the young ladies that sang last night, I liked (beviel mij) your niece's voice best. Whoever comes in last should close the door. When I was in (the) town some time ago, I called on Mrs. B. This girl can very well learn this piece of poetry, but won't recite it best of all. Please, let the curtain down a little, the sun is shining right in my face (me right in the face). The price of wheat has considerably fallen lately. The unfortunate man must have dropped asleep near the edge of the precipice, and must have fallen down in his sleep. Don't jump down from that height; you will hurt yourself. The children amused themselves by (met) running up and down the sand-hills. The bride is a near relative to the late President Brand. I told you, didn't I? that the stamp was a very rare one, and that you should not give it away; you will never get such a one again. I got up half an hour after you, and yet I was downstairs earlier than you. The children ran up to their teacher, and wished him many happy returns of the day (geluk met zijnen verjaardag).

EXERCISE XCI.

NOTE.—“Na,” “after,” is a preposition expressing time, and rank or order.

Zijn broeder is na hem gestorven, his brother died after him.

Na het zingen kwam de preek, on the singing followed the sermon.

“Nadat,” “after,” is an adverbial conjunction, binding two sentences:

Hij kwam nadat zijn broeder vertrokken was, he came after his brother had gone.

Nadat hij dit gezegd had, ging hij zitten, after he had said so, he sat down.

“Daarna” is the Dutch equivalent for “after that (afterwards)”:

Ik vroeg het hem eerst, en antwoordde u daarna, I asked him first, and answered you afterwards.

It may be replaced by “dan,” with the present and future tenses, and “toen” with the past tense:

Ik vraag het hem, en vertel het u dan, I ask him, and then tell you.

Ik zal het hem vragen, en u dan vertellen, I shall ask him, and then tell you.

Ik vroeg het hem eerst, en vertelde het u toen, I asked him first, and then told you.

After I had finished my drawing, I packed my box and went (naar) home. The ship arrived after you had left. His brother died just after his arrival. After this rain we shall have fine weather. I invited my parents first, and afterwards my uncle as well (too). Let me eat first, and then I shall speak to (met) you. He sat down (ging zitten) on that chair there, and shortly after he fainted. I promise to take him in after he is discharged from (wit) (the) prison. Who would first sow, and then plough? Is it not natural, first to plough, and then to sow? You saw him after he had written his letter. After the rain had stopped, we went out for a walk (wandelen). You should not say no, after you have once said yes. He told me of all the pain he had suffered, and then he fell into a quiet sleep. I shall have the boy wash the floor after he comes back from the butcher's (butcher). After my father had started for Europe, my mother got very ill. He came to East London shortly after the third Kafir war. After you, please, madam! After a day's (day of) hard work it is pleasant to have (some) music. Who shall say that (er) after this cruel war there won't be a long spell (tijdperk, o) of peace in these parts (streek, v).

EXERCISE XCII.

NOTE.—“To put” is translated by “leggen,” “zetten,” “steken,” “doen,” “plaatsen.”

Use “leggen” whenever an object is to be placed on its broad side :

Ik heb dat boek op de tafel gelegd, I have put that book on the table.

Use “zetten” whenever an object is to be placed on end :

Ik heb het boek op de plank gezet, I have put the book on the shelf.

Use “steken” whenever an object is passed through a close-fitting opening :

Steek uwen zakdoek in uwen zak, put your handkerchief into your pocket.

Steek den draad door de naald, thread the needle.

Use “doen” for “putting into,” “passing through”:

Hij deed de brieven in een zak, he put the letters into a bag.

Compare: Ik steek het geld in mijnen zak, I put the money into my pocket; to: Ik doe het geld in mijne beurs, I put the money into my purse.

Hij doet zijn boord, zijne das, zijnen mantel aan, he puts on his collar, his neck-tie, his cloak.

Hij deed zijne manchetten, zijne kappen af, he took off his cuffs, his leggings.

But when there is such passing, “aantrekken” and “wittrekken” are used:

Trek uwe jas, uwe schoenen aan, put on your coat, your boots.

Hij trekt zijne handschoenen, zijne kousen uit, he takes off his gloves, his stockings.

Of hats, “opzetten” and “afzetten” are used.

“Plaatsen,” English “to place,” is used for Dutch “zetten” in more formal expressions.

For the many other and varied meanings of “to put,” a translation of the synonym which applies best to the action, is advisable.

He put (wrote) it down in the book, hij schreef het in het boek op.

I put (said) it straight to him, ik zei het hem rechtuit.

I shall put (lay) that money by (away) for you, ik zal dat geld voor u wegbergen.

Will you put the inkpot on the table for me? I have put the inkpot there, and I have also put the paper on your desk. They put a bucket under the spout to catch up the rain-water. Let us put our clothes into our boxes. Put a chair ready for your uncle: he will be here just now. The man put the horse into the stable, and put the cart into the waggon-house. Have you put sugar in my tea? Yes, and I have also put in (it) milk. The boy had a number of marbles which he quickly put into his pocket. Put on (om) a shawl, it is cold. Must I put on a veil too? No, you need not put on a veil, as long as (als . . . maar) you put on gloves. Don't put sheep and oxen into one fold. Take off your hat and your boots too. Shall I put on my slippers? Yes, and take off that heavy coat; I shall (er) bring you a light one. Put away your books, the teacher is coming. Jane had a bird which she had put in a cage. I have put the cups on the table in the kitchen. And where have you put the meat? I have put the meat into the sideboard.

EXERCISE XCIII.

What is your salary? I get three hundred pounds sterling per annum, which makes exactly twenty-five pounds per month. Is the salary paid out monthly? We can get it by the month, or at the end of every three months, just as we like it best. Every other day (om den anderen dag) we drive down to yonder farm; it is so very pleasant to be there. At 7 p.m. (n.m. = in den namiddag) the train starts for (naar) Edinburgh, where it is due (hij aankomt) at 5 a.m. (v.m. = in den roormiddag). We do not intend being (trans., to be) out all (the) morning; before noon (trans., at 12 o'clock) we shall be back. He came just in time to see the balloon rise. What a grand sight it was! I think I should like to go up some time (eens); it must be glorious to be drifting about in the air, and to see the beautiful earth at such a distance. Last night somebody called (trans., has called) on me; I am so sorry that I was not at home. Next week we have to part, and next month, just about this time, we shall be in different parts of the globe. Will you be back in a fortnight? I can not tell (it) you at present. About a week ago I met my uncle and three of my cousins (fem.) at a railway station near Dartmouth.

CHAPTER XI.

THE PREPOSITION.

(Het Voorzetsel.)

I. PREPOSITIONS, Voorzetsels, are real particles, i.e. indeclinable words. They may have different meanings according to the various relations between actions, persons, and objects which they are made use of to express. One of the two nouns between which a preposition takes its place in a sentence, is the name of the person or thing to which attention is chiefly drawn, whereas the other noun merely serves to indicate in what relation or position that principal person or thing is placed. In the sentence for instance: de hond is in zijn hok, the dog is in its kennel, the dog is the principal thing spoken about, whereas kennel is used to define the place the dog occupies. Any such defining noun is under the direct influence of the preposition that precedes it, by which preposition it is said to be governed.

II. The usual place of prepositions is before the nouns they govern: Wij speelden op de plaats, we played in the yard; De vogels zaten in de kooi, the birds sat in the cage.

NOTE.—“Halve” and “wegen” are placed after the noun or pronoun with which they stand, forming one word with them: mijnentwege, for my sake; uwentwege, for your sake; zijnentwege, for his sake; veiligheidshalve, for the sake of safety.

III. Formerly Prepositions and words used as such, governed different cases, i.e., required either the Genitive, Dative, or Accusative case of the noun after them.

Now, however, one common rule applies to every Preposition, viz., that it governs the Accusative case—and the obsolete use of the Genitive and Dative cases is only discernible in some expressions, few in number, yet sufficient to remind us of what once has been.

EXAMPLES.—Feminine Dative: uitermate (uit der mate), exceedingly; bij der hand, close at hand; mettertijd, in time; uitter ooge, uitter herte, out of sight, out of mind; ter oore komen, to come to one's notice; ter feest gaan, to go to a feast.

Neuter Dative: in den beginne, in the beginning; van goeden huize, ten top stijgen, to reach the highest point; met dien verstande, with this understanding; bij levenden lijve, alive.

Neuter Genitive: binnenshuis, inside (the house); buitenslands, outside of the country; tusschendeks, between deck.

Masculine Genitive: buitenstijds, out of season; binnensmonds, mutteringly.

IV. The relations pointed out by Prepositions may be :

1. A relation of place $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} a. \text{ Rest in a place.} \\ b. \text{ Motion to or from a place.} \end{array} \right.$
2. A relation of time.
3. An abstract relation expressing a cause, an object in view, etc.
4. A positive or negative connection.

1. Rest in a place is indicated by: boven, above; onder, under; buiten, outside; binnen, inside; nabij, near; naast, next to; aan, at; te, at; in, in; op, on; tusschen, between; tegen, against, etc.

Motion to or from a place is indicated by: over, over; van, from; naar, towards; tot aan, as far as; langs, along; rond, round; rondom, round about; voorbij, past, etc.

Obs.—Notice the following sentences :

Hij loopt in de school, he walks about in the school (in = Prep.).

Hij loopt de school in, he walks into the school (in = Adverb).

De koeien grazen op de weide, the cows are grazing in the meadow (op = Prep.).

Zij klimmen den berg op, they climb the mountain (op = Adverb).

Ik lees uit Homerus, I read from Homer (uit = Prep.).

Ik las het geheele boek dien avond uit, I read through the whole of the book that night (uit = Adverb).

2. A relation of time is indicated by : in, in ; binnen, within ; omstreeks, about ; bij, near by ; om, at ; over, past, in ; aan, on ; tegen, towards ; voor, for ; tusschen, between ; tot, to ; sedert, since ; gedurende, during.

3. An abstract relation of cause, etc., is expressed by : door, by ; voor, for ; uit kracht van, by virtue of ; ten spijt van, in spite of ; naar gelang van, according to ; in weerwil van, in spite of ; aangaande, touching ; wegens, on account of ; betreffende, touching ; aangezien, for as much ; ter oorzaak van, on account of ; ten gevolge van, in consequence of ; in tegenstelling van, in opposition to ; in vergelijking van, in comparison to ; ter wille van, for the sake of ; institute van, instead of ; ten behoeve van, on behalf of ; overeenkomstig met, conformably to.

4. A positive connection is expressed by : met, with ; benevens, together with ; a negative connection by : zonder, without ; uitgenomen, except ; behalve, except.

NOTE.—Seeing that the same word may occur as an adverb and a preposition, or as a preposition and a conjunction, the student should notice that every preposition must necessarily be followed by a noun or pronoun in the accusative (objective) case.

VI. Prepositions used for indicating different relations.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES.—Vertaalooefeningen.

EXERCISE XCIV.

We wish to take a little preserve instead of cheese. Before the day dawned we were all up and ready. At what time (Hoe laat) do you wish to be called? My ink is done, I shall have to buy a new bottle. Among yonder trees there is one which looks particularly pretty. During (the) dinner people were continually knocking at our door to [the] annoyance of our guests as well as of ourselves. We met the travellers on their way to Berlin, and spent a couple of hours with them. Not every heart requires a large number of friends to be happy. I have known persons who had very few true friends, and yet were happy and contented. Three of the pupils have failed in the examination, on account of many mistakes (that) they made in the translation from German into (the) English. Forasmuch as the news has reached you, you will be obliged to go at once. All the people ran to the market-house for (to) shelter, on account of the unexpected shower. The bird flew into the church, and went right through it. He came to me about a quarter of an hour after my brother had left me, and stayed for some (a) twenty-five minutes.

EXERCISE XCV.

Once upon a time a fox saw a pretty wood-pigeon sitting on one of the lowest branches of an oak-tree in a large wood. "Pretty dove," said the fox, "I have been running (I have run) about all (the) morning (for) to find somebody to have a chat with; do come down and sit in the brushwood, and we shall have a pleasant talk." The silly pigeon actually came down and sat in the brushwood, close to the ground. Then the fox said: "Why do you think (that) it is, that birds are so much prettier than four-footed animals?" "Oh," said the pigeon, "I do not consider (that) they are (that), but this I know, that our feathery coat is of much more use to (voor) us than your hairy skin is to you." The fox seemed to get interested, and replied: "Little creature, where do you get such wisdom (vandaan)? Did I ever hear (have I heard) a wood-pigeon speak (such) intelligent words [like those]? Surely, if foxes are called cunning, pigeons might (zouden kunnen) be called wise. But now explain your statement." The poor dove, which perhaps had never been flattered before, was almost beside (buiten) herself with (of) joy and pride when she gave the following explanation: "₂You ₁see, the first and most important duty of every living creature, whether in the wood or elsewhere, is to protect his head against every injury from outside. Now that is just (of) what (waartoe) you, hairy animals, are not capable [of]. With us it is different. From whatever side the wind blows, we are always able to shield our head and keep it warm." -

EXERCISE XCVI.

"Suppose for instance (that) the wind should come (came) from the south, and I should be sitting (sat) just like at present. I would simply lift my right wing and (er) cover my head with (mede) it. If the wind blew from the north, I should only require to lift my left wing and do the same." "That's well explained," said the fox, "but now just (eens) show (it) me." The pigeon then (toen) lifted first her right wing, and then her left [one], and with either (both) covered her head entirely, so that the fox seemed quite satisfied. "But now," he added (to it), "that's all right (dat is goed en wel) for southerly and northerly winds, but what would you do if the breeze should come (came) from the west, while you were sitting (sat) like that (zoo)? You see, now I have caught you, that's a thing that you do not know, my little dove!" "What!" said the pigeon, "do not know? Pigeons know everything about (of) that matter. Shall I show you how we do?" "I should be so glad if you would (did it)" replied the fox, "I do like to (zoo graag) learn things from wiser people than myself (I am)." This answer again stung the poor dove's pride. She ventured (it) to come down from her twig in the brush-wood, and sat (went to sit) down on the ground right in front of (recht vóór) the fox. "Now mind," (let nu op) she went on (voort), "this is what we do" (so do we). Saying this, she buried her pretty head in the soft down of her neck. That was (it) what (waar) the fox had been looking for (op gewacht had) with all the desire of his cruel heart. The very (same) minute (that) the head turned round, he seized the poor pigeon with his strong claws, ate it (op) and went away.

EXERCISE XCVII.

I dare not go out, for fear (that) I might (zou kunnen) catch cold. Let him do it, if he likes (wil). How delightful! I shall have you all (geheel) to (voor) myself; we shall have a happy fortnight. Evil communications corrupt good manners. You won't go out, will you? I would not be able to act against your desire. May I leave the work [undone]? What is it that puts you up to (dat er u toe brengt) neglecting (neglect) your duties? He is so anxious (desirous) to become acquainted with you. What will (er) have become of my poor boy? The last news (plur.) from him was disheartening. All the people (whom) you see assembled in that spacious hall are descendants of the late Duke of A., a man of great physical strength, great activity and zeal, and true nobility of heart. What a pity (hoe jammer) (that) you have not been able to (kunnen) travel more! To spend a couple of years in (met) (the) visiting (of) countries, (the) seeing (of) strange nations, (the) observing (of) their manners and customs, and (the) inquiring into (of) their religion, affords more real development than double the time spent in study or in an office.

CHAPTER XII.

THE CONJUNCTION.

(Het Voegwoord.)

I. As Prepositions express relations between objects, or between an object and an action, so CONJUNCTIONS establish relations between thoughts. CONJUNCTIONS are indeclinable words (particles), and have no meaning in themselves. They are used for expressing the connection between sentences, or different parts of the same sentence. Consequently they are connective words. To distinguish them from Adverbs, which may be connectives as well, it must be observed that Adverbs do not derive their meaning from the place they take in the sentence, and though used as connectives, must always qualify some other word. Adverbs, moreover, when used as connectives, are not necessarily placed between two sentences; they may be included in one of the sentences, which is not the case with Conjunctions.

NOTE.—The difficulty of distinguishing between adverbs and conjunctions is most apparent where the same word is used in both qualities: Reken er op, nu zal het geschieden, be sure of it, now it will happen (nu is adv.); Al mijne vreugde is weg nu mijne ouders dood zijn, all my joy is gone now that my parents are dead (nu is conj.)

II. Conjunctions may be divided into two principal classes, viz. A., those which connect two independent sentences, CO-ORDINATIVE CONJUNCTIONS, Nevenschikkende Voegwoorden, and B., those which connect sentences of which the one is dependent upon the other, SUBORDINATIVE CONJUNCTIONS, Ondergeschikte Voegwoorden.

Note.—Subordinate Conjunctions remove the verb to the end of a clause. Of the Co-ordinate Conjunctions, those that are adverbial place the subject after the verb.

A. Co-ordinative Conjunctions are subdivided into :

1. those which unite or couple together, Verbindende or Aaneenschakelende Voegwoorden.
2. those which oppose, Tegenstellende Voegwoorden.
3. those which limit or separate, Scheidende Voegwoorden.
4. those which express a reason, Redengevende Voegwoorden.

EXAMPLES OF 1.—en, and, ook, also, niet alleen or niet slechts or niet enkel maar ook, not only but also, benevens, and also, alsmede, and also, zowel als ook, as well as, noch noch, neither nor, and the adverbial conjunctions daarenboven, besides, daarna, after that, bovendien, besides, ja zelfs, even.

Laat mij u zeggen, hoe wij den dag hebben doorgebracht : niet alleen hebben we eene lange wandeling gemaakt, maar we zijn ook wat gaan lezen, en hebben toen gedineerd, vervolgens zijn we te paard uit geweest, eindelijk hebben we ons huiswerk voor morgen gemaakt. Let me tell you how we spent the day : not only did we take a long walk, but we also read a little, and then had dinner, then again we went out on horseback, and finally we did our homework for to-morrow.

EXAMPLES OF 2.—maar, but, doch, but, nu, now that, dan, then, and the adverbial conjunctions integendeel, on the contrary, echter, however, desniettegenstaande, notwithstanding, evenwel, however, intusschen, in the meantime.

Ik zou het u gaarne geven, doch het is onmogelijk, I should like to give it to you, but it is impossible : op die wijze zult gij mij niet van u vervreemden, integendeel gij zult mij u meer doen achten en liefhebben, in that way you will not estrange me from you, on the contrary you will cause me to esteem and love you more; Ik heb hem dikwijls gewaarschuwd, echter heeft hij er geene acht op geslagen, I have often warned him, but he has not heeded it.

EXAMPLES OF 3.—of, or, of of, either or, hetzij hetzij, either or, hetzij of, whether or.

Hetzij wij werken of spelen, ons hoofd moet er bij zijn, whether we work or play, our mind must be in it; Of de brief is reeds verzonden, of hij zal van morgen op de post gaan, either the letter has been sent already, or it will be posted this morning.

EXAMPLES OF 4.—want, for, bijgevolg, consequently, dus, so, alzo, so, daarom, so, therefore, hierom, on this account, derhalve, for that reason, dan, then, so, toch (see sentence), immers (see sentence), all of which may be called adverbial conjunctions.

Wij zullen moeten ophouden, want het begint te regenen, we shall have to stop, for it begins to rain; Verklaar u nader, mij toch komt toe, alles te weten, or immers komt mij toe, enz., explain yourself further, it is meet for me to know all, or, is it not meet for me, etc. ?

B. Subordinative Conjunctions are subdivided into :

1. those that express a comparison, Vergelijkende Voegwoorden.
2. those that express a proportion, Verhoudingaanwijzende Voegwoorden.
3. those that define a time, Tijdbepalende Voegwoorden.
4. those that define a place, Plaatsbepalende Voegwoorden.
5. those that express a condition, Voorwaardelijke Voegwoorden.
6. those that indicate a concession, Toegevende Voegwoorden.

7. those that express a purpose, Doelaanwijzende Voegwoorden.
8. those that express the reason of an action, Redengevende Voegwoorden.
9. those that join noun-sentences to principal sentences, Verklarende Voegwoorden.

EXAMPLES OF 1.—gelijk, as; evenals, just as; als, as; dan, than; zooals, as; dat, so that; alsof, as if.

Hij is grooter geworden, dan ik verwacht had, he has grown taller than I had expected; Doe alsof gij thuis waart, make yourself at home.

EXAMPLES OF 2.—hoe . . . hoe . . ., the . . . the; hoe . . . des te, the . . . so much the; naarmate or naar gelang, according as; naar, naardat, according as, in proportion to.

Hoe minder hoe liever, als ge maar gezond zijt, the less the better as long as you are healthy; Hoe meer ik hem aanzette tot zijn werk, des te meer vertraagde hij, the more I put him up to his work, the more he became lazy; Naardat gij werkt, zullen uwe vorderingen zijn, your progress will be according to your work.

EXAMPLES OF 3.—als, if; toen, when; wanneer, when; zoodra als, as soon as; zoo dikwijls als, as often as; vóórdát, before; nu, now that; terwijl, whereas. These conjunctions are for the greater part adverbs and prepositions changed into conjunctions by the addition of “als” or “dat.”

De haan begon te kraaien, zoodra als wij buiten kwamen, the cock began to crow as soon as we came outside; Het vuur ging dadelijk uit, toen de blaasbalg ophield met blazen, the fire went out immediately, when the bellows ceased blowing.

EXAMPLES OF 4.—waar, where; alwaar, where; waarheen, whither; werwaarts, whither; van waar, from where.

Wijs mij de plaats, waar ik gezaaid heb, show me the place where I have sown ; Ik reis naar hetzelfde onbekende land, verwaarts mijn vader twee jaren geleden vertrokken is, I am travelling to the same unknown country, whither my father went two years ago ; Ik herinner mij nog duidelijk de hoogte, vanwaar wij u het laatst vaarwel toewuifden, I distinctly remember the height from where we beckoned a last farewell to you.

EXAMPLES OF 5.—indien, if ; in geval dat, in case that ; zoo, if ; tenzij, unless ; mits, provided ; wanneer, if.

Ik wil het niet doen, tenzij gij uwe volle toestemming geeft, I don't want to do it, unless you give your full consent ; Gij kunt op mijne hulp rekenen, mits gij zelf al uwe krachten inspant, you may be sure of my assistance, provided you yourself do everything in your power.

EXAMPLES OF 6.—schoon, hoewel, alhoewel, ofschoon, al, though ; niettegenstaande, although.

Ofschoon dit woord verouderd mag heeten, wordt het toch door verschillende schrijvers nog gebruikt, though this word may be called obsolete, it is still being used by several authors ; Hij waagt zich gedurig nog 's avonds in de lucht, niettegenstaande hij gewaarschuwd is, although he has been warned, he still often goes out at night ; al is de leugen nog zoo snel, de waarheid achterhaalt haar wel, though falsehood be ever so swift, truth is sure to overtake it.

EXAMPLES OF 7.—opdat, in order that ; dat, that ; teneinde, for the purpose of.

De vader werkte wat hij kan, opdat de zoon de vruchten van zijnen arbeid zou plukken, the father worked with all his might, in order that the son should gather the fruits of his labour ; Eert uwen vader en uwe moeder, opdat uwe dagen verlengd worden, honour thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long ; Hij spoort zijn paard aan, ten einde nog vóór zonsondergang thuis te zijn, he spurs on his horse, for the purpose of being home before sunset.

NOTE.—Mark that adverbial sentences of purpose are not usually formed with the words opdat and ten einde. In fact, in colloquial language, those two conjunctions are rarely used. The common expression for the thoughts contained in the first and last of the sentences under 7 would be: De vader werkt wat hij kan, om den zoon de vruchten van zijnen arbeid te laten plukken, the father works with all his might, to let the son gather, etc.; Hij spoort zijn paard aan om nog vóór zonsondergang thuis te zijn, he spurs on his horse to be home before sunset. Foreigners should try to accustom themselves to the constant use of the preposition om for the sake of fluency.

EXAMPLES OF 8.—omdat, dewijl, naardien, doordien, aangezien, wijl, because; daar, vermits, since; om reden (dat), for the reason (that); op grond (dat), on the ground (that); nademaal, for as much.

De verkooping kon niet doorgaan, omdat het regende, the sale could not come off, because it was raining. Ik zal u in rechten moeten vervolgen, aangezien gij mijnen naam hebt trachten te benadeelen, I shall have to take legal steps against you, for as much as you have tried to injure my reputation.

EXAMPLES OF 9.—dat, that; of, whether, if. These conjunctions occur after verbs which express an assertion, an assurance, a question, etc.

Hij verzekert mij, dat hij er geene schuld aan heeft, he assures me that it is not his fault; Gij verlangdet te weten, of ik u helpen zou? you wished to know whether I would help you? Zeg mij of alles in orde is, tell me if all is right.

OBSERVATIONS.

1. Dat, that, may mean omdat, because, opdat, in order that, and zoodat, so that: a) ik ben heel dankbaar, dat ge gekomen zijt, I am very thankful that (because) you have come; b) Ik span alle krachten in, dat ik slagen moge, I do my very best that (in order that) I may succeed; c) het regent, dat het giet, (literal trans.) it rains so that it pours.
2. Wijl ought to be taken for dewijl, because, and not for terwijl, while.

3. Zonder, in plaats van, behalve, when they are conjunctions, can never be used without the conjunction "dat:" a) Hij zegt zulke dingen, zonder dat hij er bij denkt, he says such things without thinking what he says; b) In plaats van dat hij onmiddellijk naar hem toeging, kwam hij eerst bij mij, instead of going to him straight, he first came to me; c) Alles bevalt mij, behalve dat ge hem zijn verzoek geweigerd hebt, I am pleased with everything but that you have refused his request.
4. After real conjunctions the connective "dat" may not be used.
5. "Now that" may be translated "nu dat," but "nu" only is more common.
6. "Maar" and "doch" both mean "but." "Maar," however, opposes the thoughts, expressed in the sentences it connects, in a stronger way than "doch." Hij is rijk, maar blind; wat baat hem zijn rijkdom? he is rich but blind; of what good are his riches to him? Hij zegt nooit veel, doch als hij spreekt, verraadt ieder woord de helderheid zijner gedachte, he never says much, but if he does speak, each word betrays the clearness of his thoughts. In common speaking, however, "doch" is uncommon.
7. "Good-hearted though he was, many people shunned him" may be translated, Goedhartig als hij was, werd hij toch door velen gemijd—yet a better translation is, Hoewel hij goedhartig was, werd hij, enz.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES.—Vertaal oefeningen.

EXERCISE XCVIII.

A thrush, a linnnet, and a thistle-finch were once caught by a fowler in one day and under the same (een en hetzelfde) net. Since they were all equally pretty, he did not like (wilde hij niet graag) to kill [any] one of the three; so he put them together into one large cage. At first they were all on very good terms (op zeer goeden voet), most (heel) likely because none of them liked the fate (to none of them was the fate agreeable) (to which) they were condemned [to]; but when₂ after a while₁ they had got accustomed to the small room, (to which) they were confined [to], the thistle-finch began to be very disagreeable. He scolded his two companions either for singing (because they sang) too high or too low, or for not keeping time (maat, v), when they were trying to sing together. At last his temper grew (became) so bad, that the other two birds could not bear his company any longer. In fact, the little linnet got so nervous from being (to be) scolded all day long (the whole day), that it (hun) soon became impossible for him (om) to sing. So (on) one morning, when the fowler—who on the whole was very good to (voor) them—took them out (brought them outside) into the sun, the linnet spoke to him on this wise (hem aldus aan): Good man, I am perfectly aware (of it) that I am doing a hazardous thing by openly complaining about the thistle-finch here present; but yet I must speak out. His temper has grown bad beyond measure (uitermate), so much so (zoozeer), that I have given up (the) singing for fear of being scolded incessantly, and I am even beginning to hate (the) life. I frankly ask you, for my own sake and that (ter wille van mijzelven en van) of my good companion, the thrush, to relieve us of the company of this miserable thistle-finch, and to do it soon, lest (opdat . . . niet) he kill me.

EXERCISE XCIX.

A certain man had three sons. When he had grown (become) old, and was about to die (soon would die) he called his sons to (bij) him (zich), telling them (and told them) that he wanted to divide his goods. After the necessary arrangements had been made, he thus spoke to (aanspreken) them: "My sons, besides what I have now assigned to you, there is in my possession a large diamond of great value, which I received from my father on the day of his death. This jewel I cannot divide, and may (I) not sell. I have therefore made up my mind (resolved), that I shall give it to that one of my three sons who within three months will give me proof that he possesses a better character than his brothers." Upon this (Hierop) the sons took leave of their father, and separated (uit elkaar gaan) on the promise of reassembling at the old man's sick-bed after a lapse of (na verloop van) three months. When the time had arrived (komen), they all met (samenkomen) once again in their old home. And this is what they had to report. "Father," said the eldest, "in the course of these three months a friend of mine (see p. 134) wished to undertake a journey into a far-off land. He brought me a large amount (sum) of gold, which I undertook (op zich nemen) to keep for him, but for which he refused to (would not) take a written acknowledgment. When he came back, I returned all the money to him without (er) keeping any of (something) [it] back, though there was nothing to show how large the sum had been (which) he had entrusted to me. What does my father think of such a character?"—"My son," replied the old man, "this was only ordinary honesty; I should not have expected anything (nothing) less of my son!"

EXERCISE C.

Thereupon the second son stepped (came) forward, and spoke: "My father, in the course of these three months I came to the shore(s) of a lake, just at (op) the moment when (dat) a little child, playing on the bank (kant, m), happened to (accidentally) fall into the water. The poor mother, who stood by (erbij), screamed for (om) help, and wildly threw up (in de hoogte gooien) her arms in despair. I hurried to the spot, sprang (er) in, dived after (naar) the sinking child, caught it, brought it up (naar boven). swam with it (ermede) to the shore, and handed it to the distressed mother. Far gone (heen) though (hoe . . . ook) it was, (the) life was not extinct (er . . . uit) and our combined efforts brought the poor child back to (tot het) life. The mother found (could find) no words with which (om) to thank me; but drawing a purse filled with gold from her pocket, she spoke [to] me thus (aan): 'Stranger, take this. Though the reward be little in comparison to the noble deed, do not despise what I offer you from (uit) a heart overflowing with (van) gratitude. Take it, and if you will make no personal use of it, let it (then) be the price for buying something which will remind you of this happy day, and this glorious deed!'—But I refused the money, saying that to see the boy breathe was sufficient reward for me. What does my father think of such a character?"—The old man replied, "My son, this is nothing but ordinary love of man (menschenliefde), and just what I should have expected of my son."

EXERCISE CI.

Then the youngest son came to tell his tale, and this is what he said: "Father, in the course of these three months I was travelling in the mountains. On a certain day, when darkness had set in (de avond gevallen was) and the road was but faintly lit up by the glimmer of the stars, my attention was attracted by (doordat) my dog sniffing (sniffed) at something lying off the roadside (aan den kant van den weg). The spot being [a] dangerous [one], I dismounted, and went to see what my dog had found. It was a man who was lying fast asleep on the very (uiterst) edge of a fearful chasm. I scanned his face, and knew it to be (that it was) that of my worst enemy. Now I knew that (if) should I leave (I left) him there, he would undoubtedly move about (zich bewegen) in his sleep, and (er) no more of him would be heard; yea, and (that) even if I should try to rouse him, he might (zou kunnen) move and drop down, so near he lay to (bij) the outermost edge. I therefore seized his arm (him by the arm), dragged him away a few yards, and then woke him up. He startled when he recognised my voice, but I spoke reassuringly [to] him (toe), and asked him to tell me what had made (bewogen) him lie down in such a horrible place. He then told me that he had lost his way (verdwalen), and that (he), being overwhelmed with (uitgeput van) fatigue at the approach of (the) night, [he] had dropped down, not knowing where. I then showed him his way (naar) home, and let him go. What does my father think of such a character?"—The eyes of the dying man brightened up as the question was put (gedaan), and he exclaimed, "Oh my son, that was indeed more than common honesty, more also than common love of man—that was magnanimity! You have shown to possess the best character, and gladly (volgaarne) do I bequeath the jewel to you!"

CHAPTER XIII.

THE INTERJECTION.

(Het Tusschenwerpsel.)

1. INTERJECTIONS, Tusschenwerpsels, are sounds without a definite meaning, which serve to give utterance to some momentary emotion of the mind. They are indeclinable, and may be placed in a sentence anywhere without ever effecting any change in its construction. Some grammarians object to their being called words, on the ground of their having no definite meaning. A good many Interjections are imitations of sounds. A few nouns, verbs in the imperative mood, and adverbs, are used as Interjections. The name 'interjection,' as will be easily seen from the Dutch equivalent, means "cast in between."

The following are the most common Interjections :

1. For the expression of grief: ach! = ah! helaas! = alas! wee! = woe! wee mij! = woe to me! o Hemel! = good Heavens!
2. For the expression of pain: ai! au! = oh!
3. For the expression of wonder: hé! = oh! aha! = I say!
4. For the expression of excitement and joy: heisa! hoezee! hoera! = hurrah!
5. For the expression of a wish: och! = oh!
6. For the expression of dislike: ba! aba! = bah! foci! = fy!
7. For the expression of encouragement: bravo! = well done! welaan! = go on! komaan! = come on.

8. For the expression of any emotion whatever: o! = oh!
9. For the imitation of sounds: bom, bam (of a tolling bell), bim, bam (of a striking clock), tik, tak (of any timepiece in motion), pief, paf (of a gun), krik, krak (of breaking wood), kukeleku (of a crowing cock), tok, tok, tok (of a cackling hen), miauw (of a mewling cat), boe, boe (of a lowing cow), klingeling (of a common door-bell), flap (of any unexpected clap), bons (of a heavy object falling).

CHAPTER XIV.

ETYMOLOGY.

(Woordvorming.)

I. ETYMOLOGY treats of the formation of words. Words are of three kinds—PRIMITIVE, COMPOUND, and DERIVATIVE

PRIMITIVE words (stamwoorden) are not derived from other words.

COMPOUND (samengestelde) words are made up of two other words.

DERIVATIVE (afgeleide) words are derived from primitive words, or roots.

OBS.—Derivation is brought about partly by changes in the radical vowels of words, with or without modifications of their consonants; and partly by means of prefixes and suffixes. In determining the different changes by which words have received their present form, we are led through the successive stages of the history of the language, a field of study and research beyond the limits of a concise grammar. As an example, however, of the way in which a great number of words have come into existence, the following may be given :

Words derived from the same roots.

To revenge,	wreken,	wraak,	wrok.
To smell,	ruiken,	reuk,	ruiker—rieken.
To split,	splijten,	spleet,	split.
To grip,	grijpen,	greep,	begrip.
To break,	breken,	breuk,	brok—bres—bros.
To dig,	graven,	graaf,	graf—groef—gracht— greppel.
To drink,	drinken,	drank,	dronk—drenken.
To give,	geven,	gave,	gift.

To wade,	waden,	wed,	wadde.
To spring,	springen,	sprong,	sprank.
To ride,	rijden,	rit,	ridder.
To fly,	vliegen,	vlucht,	vleugel—vlok.
To lock,	sluiten,	sloot,	slot—sleutel.
To bend,	buigen,	boog,	bocht—beugel.
To swell,	dijgen (dijen),	duig,	deeg—dik.
To lie,	liegen,	leugen,	logen—loochenen.
To draw,	tiegen,	teugel,	tocht—teug.
To bind,	binden,	band,	bundel—bond.
To bite,	bijten,	bit,	bete—bijt.

II. FORMATION OF NOUNS.

(a) By means of prefixes (Voorvoegsels):

Aarts (meaning eerste, first): aartsvader, patriarch; aartsengel, archangel.

On (meaning geen, no): onmensch, brute; onkunde, ignorance; ongeloof, unbelief.

Mis (meaning verkeerd, wrong): misdaad, crime; misdruk, paper wasted in printing.

Wan (meaning slecht, bad): wanorde, disorder; wantrouwen, distrust.

Oor (meaning uit, out of): oorsprong, origin; oorlog, war.

Et (meaning opnieuw, again): etmaal, period of 24 hours; etgroen, second crop of grass after it has been mown.

Ant (meaning tegen, against): antwoord, answer.

Ge (before nouns "belonging to"): gebroeders, brethren; gemaal, consort.

(In connection with suffix te—a collection): geboomte, collection of trees; gebladerte, foliage.

(b) By means of suffixes (Achtervoegsels):

Masculine names of persons are formed by the help of the suffixes aar (er, ier, enaar, enier), aard (erd), ik and and.

Aar, er, ier form substantives from verbs, and names of persons from the proper names of countries and towns.

Er stands for aar, when the preceding syllable has the accent; ier is rarely used; enaar and enier form names of persons from other substantives.

EXAMPLES: leeraar, professor; dienaar, servant; schrijver, author; gever, donor; tuinier, gardener; kunstenaar, artist; kruidenier, grocer; hovenier, gardener; Hollander, Hollander; Haarlemmer, inhabitant of Haarlem.

Aard, erd, ik, and erik, indicate a fulness of the (mostly bad) quality expressed by the original verb or adjective: grijnzaard, one who grins; veinzaard, dissembler; blufferd, boaster; luijaard, idler; gauwerd, one who has a quick hand; slimmerd, cunning person; vuilik, filthy person; stommerik, dunce.

And is the old form for end, the ending of every present participle, and consequently indicates that the individual whose appellation it helps to form, is the doer of the action expressed by the verb which forms the first part of the word: heiland (de heilende, de heelende, de geneesmeester), Saviour; vijand (de vijende, de hatende), enemy (foe); vriend (vrijand, de vrijende, de beminrende), friend.

III. Feminine names of persons and animals are formed by the suffixes ster, in, es. Ster is placed after the stems of verbs: bakster, female baker; schoonmaakster, charwoman, etc.

If the stem is dissyllabic and has no accent on the last syllable, the feminine substantive is derived from the masculine by adding ster to the latter: bedelaarster, female beggar; toovenaarster, witch.

Es and in form feminine substantives from masculine ones: dienares, female servant; voogdes, female guardian; dichteres, poetess; zangeres, professional lady singer; godin, goddess; koningin, queen; boerin, farmer's wife.

NOTE.—Zangster means muse, songstress.

With 'in' names of female animals are likewise derived from masculine forms: berin, she-bear; leeuwin, lioness; tijgerin, tigress; wolvin, she-wolf.

IV. Er (aar), el (eel, sel) are used for the formation of names of instruments or tools with modifications of the root-vowel before el: stoffer, broom; klopper, knocker; tuumelaar, tumbler (kind of pigeon); hevel, siphon; troffel, trowel; beugel (fr. buigen, to bend), iron hoop; teugel (fr. tiegen, trekken, to pull), bridle; sleutel (fr. sluiten, to close), key; vleugel (fr. vliegen, to fly), wing; tooneel (fr. toonen, to show), stage; houweel (fr. houwen, to hew), pick-axe; stijfsel, starch; schoeisel, shoes; voedsel, food.

NOTE.—The ending sel is, however, principally used for indicating the product of an action: baksel, anything produced by baking; kooksel (product of koken, to boil); zaagsel (product of zagen, to saw).

V. Je (tje, etje), ke (kijn), elijn, ing, and el form diminutives. Je is the most common diminutive ending, of which tje, etje, pje, and kje are only modified forms required in special instances.

Je occurs whenever a word ends in one of the sharp consonants ('t kofschip) or in d or g: kopje, small head; vischje, small fish; lesje, small lesson; kuijje, small tuft; haakje, small hook; matje, small mat. Exc. meid (contracted form of maagd) has meisje, girl.

NOTE.—The Cape Dutch meidje means a little servant-girl.

Tje occurs after words ending in a vowel or diphthong: knietje, little knee; zeetje, small sea.

Tje also occurs when the word ends in l, n, r, or w, preceded either by a full vowel or diphthong, or sometimes by a mute vowel: kooltje, small cabbage; nageltje, small nail; deuntje, ditty; dekentje, coverlet; boortje, small gimlet; kamertje, little room; pauwtje, young peacock; zwaluwje, young swallow.

Words ending in m preceded by a long or by a mute vowel, or by either of the consonants l and r, take je for their diminutive ending, inserting p between it and the word: boompje, small tree; bezempje, small broom; halmpje, little stalk; wormpje, little worm.

Etje occurs when a final b, ng, l, m, n, or r is preceded by a modified vowel: tobbetje, small tub; dingetje, small thing; rolletje, small roll; kommetje, small cup; zonnetje, little sun; karretje, small cart. Nouns in g preceded by a modified vowel may take either je or etje: mugje, little gnat; ruggetje, little back.

Some nouns in ng take je while sharpening g into k, in consequence of their last syllable being unaccented, which would render the addition of mute etje impossible: rottinkje, small cane; koninkje, little king.

Ke and ken were much more frequently used in former times than they are now. They render the language sweet and tender, as may be felt on reading Jan van Beers' poem: "Het broerken."

Kijn and lijn belong almost exclusively to poetry. For examples read Jan van Beers': "De bloem op het graf."

Words with final e generally drop that letter before a diminutive ending: einde, end, makes eindje; koelte, breeze, makes koeltje. Sometimes, however, the e is retained: dieptetje, little hollow; diktetje, small swelling.

Ing serves less to derive real diminutives from existing words than rather to indicate small objects: krakeling, cracknell; hokkeling, calf less than a year old; nesteling, nestling.

El is an obsolete diminutive ending, only to be found in a small number of words, in which it has so entirely lost its original meaning, that a new ending is now added, whenever an actual diminutive is required: kruimel (from kruim, crumb), kruimeltje; eikel, acorn (fr. eik, oak-tree), eikeltje; bundel, bundle, bundeltje.

OBS.—It may here be observed both that the Dutch are fond of using diminutives, and that these forms have lost much of their original signification, in consequence of which, if a thing is actually small, the use of the adjective klein together with the diminutive ending, is not infrequent; e.g. Daar zit een klein muisje, a tiny little mouse sits there.

VI. Collective nouns are formed by means of the suffixes: age, dom, heid, schap, te and ij; e.g. plantage, plantation; pakke, collection of packages; menschdom, mankind; christenheid, christianity; gereedschap, tools; gevogelte, all the birds; ruigte, shrubbery; ruiterij, cavalry.

VII. ABSTRACT NOUNS are derived :

1. From concrete nouns by means of the suffixes schap, dom, ij. Ex.: koningschap, kingship; priesterdom, priesthood; slavernij, slavery.

2. From adjectives by the suffixes schap, dom, nis, e, and te, representing qualities as substantives: blijdschap, gladness; adeldom, nobility; droefenis, sadness; koude, cold; diepte, depth.

3. From verbs by the suffixes: schap, dom, nis, ij, age, st. Ex.: rekenschap, account; wasdom, growth; ergernis, annoyance; razernij, madness; lekkage, leakage; kunst, art.

VIII. FORMATION OF ADJECTIVES.

(a) By means of prefixes (Voorvoegsels):

Aarts (in a high degree, with words having an unfavourable meaning): aartsdom, very stupid; aartslui, very lazy.

On (not): onnut, useless; onwetend, ignorant.

Wan (bad): wanschapen, misshapen; wanstaltig, deformed.

Be and ge form adjectives from nouns and stems of verbs; behendig, dexterous (from hand); bekommerd, anxious (from kommer); bewust, conscious (from weten); gewoon, accustomed (from wennen).

(b) By means of suffixes (Achtervoegsels):

Achtig: one suffix "achtig" is accented, another with a different meaning is unaccented. The first, which we also meet with under the German form haftig (haft), expresses full possession of what the word to which it is affixed indicates: waarachtig, true; twijfelachtig, doubtful; krijghaftig, soldier-like; manhaftig, manly.

Achtig, not accented, has the meaning of the English y, ish, and indicates a similarity with the meaning of the principal word: zwartachtig, blackish; houtachtig, wood-like; winterachtig, wintry.

Baar (derived from beren, to bear), means a bringing forth, a producing, or a possibility of the action: wonderbaar, wonderful; vruchtbaar, fertile; leesbaar, legible.

En and sch form adjectives which indicate a material: zilveren, koperen, houten (unaltered by any inflexion of gender, number, or case), duffelsch, lakensch.

Ig (Engl. y) indicates possession, or, with stems of verbs, a repetition of the action: krachtig, kundig, begeerig, levendig.

NOTE.—Eenig is formed of a num. adj.; innig, overig, and nietig are formed of particles.

Zaam signifies “fitness” or “desire”: buigzaam, leerzaam, werkzaam.

Lijk means similitude, belonging to, being of the nature of: koninklijk, vorstelijk, zedelijk, armelijk, liefelijk, vroolijk; —after verbs, a possibility of the action: sterfelijk, schadelijk.

Loos means “destitute of”: eerloos, naamloos, broodeloos; —after verbs, impossibility of the action: reddeloos, stoorloos.

Isch and sch are used to derive adjectives from proper nouns: Aziatisch, Perzisch, Egyptisch, Zweedsch, Deensch, Poolsch. It is also found in a good many adjectives of foreign origin, and then stands for the English ic: grammatisch, alfabetisch.

In afgodisch and wettisch it has the meaning of lijk.

Sch likewise forms adjectives from nouns and adverbs: wereldsch, buitenlandsch, dagelijksch, achterwaartsch.

IX. FORMATION OF VERBS.

(a) By direct derivation:

1. CAUSATIVES (Causatieven), through changes in the radical vowel: vellen (from vallen), to fell; zetten (from zitten), to put down; leiden (from lijden), to lead.

2. INTENSIVES (Intensieven), through changes in the radical vowel and final consonant: bukken (from buigen), to stoop; vluchten (from vliegen), to flee; slachten (from slagen, slaan), to kill; knippen (from knippen), to nip.

3. DENOMINATIVES (Denominatieven), through suffixing the verbal infinitive ending 'en' to Nouns: ademen, to breathe; lijmen, to glue; regenen, to rain; schaven, to plane.

Adjectives, witten, to whitewash; drogen, to dry; dooden, to kill; stijven, to starch.

Num. adjectives: vereenen, to unite; verdubbelen, to double.

Particles: innen, to collect; uiten, to utter.

(b) By means of Prefixes (Voorvoegsels):

Be (by) has the meaning of "all round;" it signifies that the action is extended to every part of the object in bezien, bedekken, bespreken, beschieten, behandelen, bevoelen;—its meaning is that of the Dutch preposition "bij" in bereiken, behooren, bespringen, besparen, bekomen.

NOTE.—On account of this meaning be has the power of changing any intransitive verb into a transitive one, and of forming verbs of substantives which otherwise could not (as in English) be used as such: sterven—het vleesch besterft een nacht; bemannen, to man; beschijnen, to shine upon; berruchten, to fertilize.

Er originally has the meaning of "obtaining by means of the action": erlangen, erkennen, ervaren, erbarmen. The prefix is little used. Its meaning is expressed by be, and ver.

Ge does not materially change the meaning of a verb: winnen or gewinnen, lukken or gelukken, etc., are alike in signification.

In some cases ge takes the place of a preposition following the verb: gelijken for lijken op, genaken for naken tot.

Of some verbs the original form is no longer in use: genezen, geschieden, genieten.

Of a few verbs this prefix changes the meaning: beuren, to lift, and gebeuren, to happen; raken, to touch, and geraken, to get to.

Wan expresses a negation of the meaning of the stem-word: wantrouwen, to distrust; wanhopen, to despair.

Her means again, anew: herdenken, herkauwen, hercenigen.

Ont originally meant ant, i.e., back, against, away from: ontraden, ontmoeten, onthouden, ontloopen, ontzien. But it may also mean a change either from an old condition, or into a new one: ontsluiten, ontdekken, onttronen, ontaarden, ontbinden, ontslapen, ontdooien, ontspringen, ontspruiten.

Ver, an important prefix, has several distinct meanings:

1. When prefixed to a verb it expresses the contrary of the original meaning of that verb: verachten, verleeren, veroordeelen, verleiden.

2. It expresses a continuation of the action, until a complete change is brought about: verdrogen, to die by drought; verteren, to consume; vreten = vereten, to devour; verspelen, to game away; verdrinken, to be drowned; verouderen, to pine away through age; verpletten, to crush.

3. It signifies "away from": verplaatsen, verjagen, verwerpen.

4. It expresses transition or change: verbedden, verharen, vertalen, vervellen.

5. It has the meaning of covering or closing: vermommen, vergulden, verzilveren, verglazen, vernagelen, verhelen.

6. It forms verbs from nouns and adjectives, once more indicating a change: verbroederen, vergoden, verzwageren, vernieuwen, verouderen, verfijnen.

7. In a few cases it merely stands for the preposition "over": vernachten and overnachten; vermannen and overmannen.

(c) By means of Suffixes (achtervoegsels):

Elen and eren (with or without change in radical vowel) form frequentative verbs (Frequentatieven), those that express a repetition of the action, from existing ones:

kakelen (from kekken), to cackle; spreukelen (from springen), to sprinkle; bedelen (from bidden), to beg; bibberen (from beven), to shiver; stotteren (from stooten), to stammer.

X. Adverbs may have the following suffixes: e, s, lijk (lijks), ling (lings), waart (waarts), wijs (wijze, gewijs, gewijze), jes (pjes, tjes, etjes).

E changes adjectives into adverbs. It is little used: dicht(e)-bij, verre, noode, alreede.

S changes nouns, adjectives, and present participles into adverbs, apocopating final d in the latter: daags, dikwijls, ondanks, rechts, slechts, willens, wetens.

Lijk (lijks) are suffixes to nouns and adjectives: maandelijks, schriftelijk, herhaaldelijk, gewisselijk.

Ling (lings) converts nouns into adverbs of manner: zijdelings, mondelings, blindelings.

Waart (waarts), with the meaning "in the direction of," occurs after nouns, pronouns and prepositions: hemelwaarts, landwaarts, te mijwaart, te uwaart, voorwaarts, herwaarts.

Wijs (wijze gewijs, gewijze), meaning "on this wise," occurs after nouns in the genitive case, or after verbs with inserted s: trapsgewijze, steelsgewijze, kwanswijs.

Jes (pjes, tjes, etjes) makes of adjectives adverbial diminutives: zoetjes, liefjes, zachtjes, kalmpjes, eventjes. These are all used as adverbs of manner.

XI. FORMATION OF COMPOUND WORDS.

(a) Compound Nouns are formed :

1. By writing the two parts together, so as to make them appear one word: huisdeur, vuurhaard, reisgenoot, uitgaaf. In this way by far the greater part of the compound nouns are formed in Dutch.

2. By inserting an s between the two parts of the compound, as a mark of the genitive case, a plural form, or for the sake of euphony: jagerstasch, handelsbank; meisjesschool, jongensboek; leidsman, scheidsrechter.

3. By inserting e or en between the two parts (see the rules, p. 21).

4. In uncommon compositions, geographical names or compounds derived from foreign languages, the hyphen is used: vergeet-mij-niet, forget-me-not (the flower); kruidje-roer-mij-niet, touch-me-not (the sensitive plant); Zuid-Afrika, Oost-Londen, Mokka-koffie, Procureur-Generaal, Luitenant-Admiraal.

(b) Compound Adjectives are formed—

1. By writing the two parts together so as to make them appear one word: lichtgroen, blauwgrijs, driedubbel, doodarm.

2. When the first part is a verb, by the insertion of s between the parts: noemenswaard, werkensmoe.

(c) Compound Verbs are formed—

1. By the composition of infinitives with nouns, adjectives, adverbs, and prepositions, when the two parts are written as one word without undergoing any change; schijfschieten, huishouden, doodslaan, wegnemen, ophouden, loslaten.

2. By the composition of two infinitives, the first of which loses its final n, or sometimes the entire infinitive-ending en: ginnegappen, harrewarren, trekkebekken;—staroogen, reikhalzen, vrijwaren.

(d) Compound Adverbs are formed—

1. Without changing either part of the composition bergop, tweemaal, driewerf, achteruit.

2. By the insertion of a genitive-ending between the parts; blootshoofds, goedsmoeds, geenszins;—langzamerhand, middelertwyl.

3. By the insertion of a dative-ending between the parts, strengthened by a t: zijnentwege, om uwentwille, harenthalve.

XII. LIST OF WORDS which require some explanation on account of the altered or obsolete meaning of one of their component parts, or on account of the difference between their original and present meanings, and alterations in their spelling.

- Adelaar, adel aar*, noble bird, (now) eagle.
Adelborst, noble breast, noble youth, (now) navy-cadet.

Nachtvorst, nachtvrost (metathesis of r), night-frost.

Nameloos, innumerable; naamloos, without a name.

Nooddruft, nooddurft (metathesis of r), groote behoefte, great want, need, from durven (derven), behoeven.

Ooievaar, oede baar (from beren, to bear), schatdrager, treasure-bearer, (now) stork.

Ooglid, oogdeksel, eyelid (the Dutch lid for deksel is sometimes heard).

Orde, order (arrangement), rank; order, bestelling, order (commercial term).

Overlijden, overgaan, to pass over, (now) to die.

Paarlemoer, parelmoeder, mother-of-pearl.

Practijk, practice, application of rules; praktijk, practice of a physician.

Ruiken, to smell; rieken, to scent.

Schauw (in poetry) schaduw, shadow; schouw, chimney, or hut.

Spin, spinnekobbe, spinnekop, spider.

Tachtig, (t)achtig, (t)achtig, eighty.

Twaalf, tweelif, overblijvende twee, two over, twelve.

Veertien, viertien, fourteen.

Veertig, viertig, forty.

Vierschaar, vier scharen, vier banken, four seats (in an ancient court), (now) tribunal.

Vorst, voorste, eerste, gebieders, prince (monarch).

Wieroo, kwijrook, gewijde or heilige rook, consecrated smoke, incense.

Wissel, wisselbrief, bill of exchange.

Wijwater, gewijd water, holy water.

Zinloos, meaningless; zinneloos, senseless, foolish.

Zinnelijk, sensual; zindelijk, clean, neat.

XIII. WHERE TO PLACE THE ACCENT:—Generally speaking the accent lies on the first syllable of a word.

The following detailed rules may prove useful to students:

(a) Of the prefixes of Ch. XIV, § II, (a), aarts, on, mis, wan, oor, et, and ant have the accent: aártsvader, óngeloof, mísbaksel, wántrouwen, óórsprong, étmaal, ántwoord.

(b) Of the suffixes of § II, (b), only iér is accented: tuiniér (whereas kúnstenaar, schrijver, etc.).

(c) Of the suffixes of § III, es and in have the accent: zangerés, tijgerín.

(f) Except a few enumerated under (b) to (e) no one suffix—whether in nouns, adjectives, adverbs, or verbs, has the accent, except “achtig,” as explained under § VIII, (b).

(g) Of the prefixes of § VIII, (a), aarts, on, and wan are accented.

(h) Of the prefixes of § IX, (b), wan is the only one which has the accent. The other verbal prefixes, be, ge, er, her, ont, and ver, by means of which a great many verbs, and nouns derived from them, are made, have no accent, but the accent lies on the first syllable after them.

(j) Separably compounded verbs, however (see p. 188), have the accent on the noun, adjective, adverb, or preposition with which they are compounded.

(l) Non-Dutch words, as a rule, have the accent on their last syllable: accént, présént, absént, muzíek, physíek, concért, talént, corsét, kanáal, harpóen, kantóor, muskét, seizóen, schavót—or if they are of more than two syllables, on the second last one: kanárie, monopólie, kalénder, operátie, tradítie, piáno.

(m) When such foreign words of three or more syllables end in aaf, gram, fie, ment, ut, ist, ant, aan, iek, ier, or aat, they take the accent on their final syllable: telegráaf, monográm, photografíe, firmamént, institúut, telegrafíst, foliánt, oceaán, republiék, formulíer, potentáat.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES.—Vertaalooefeningen.

EXERCISE CII.

Very long ago, about the year 550 B.C. (V.C.), Asia had two mighty kings, viz., Cyrus, King of Persia, a man renowned for his courage and military skill, and Croesus, whose riches surpassed all comprehension. The latter once happened to meet (met by chance) the Greek philosopher Solon, whom he treated with the greatest distinction and to whom he showed all his riches and treasures. Then he said: "Solon, I know (that) you have seen much of the world—tell me whom you consider (as) the happiest of men." Of course the proud king could himself have given the answer (that) he expected; he merely used the philosopher as an instrument for flattering (to flatter) his vanity. How disappointed he must have been, when he heard the following reply from the mouth of the sage:—"He whom I consider (the) happiest among mortals is Tellus, a burgher of Athens, a man upright and good, esteemed by all his fellow-citizens, a man who spent his life in promoting the good of the city of his fathers; a man who had a happy home, healthy, beautiful, strong children, whom he saw grow up as dutiful youths, esteemed by (the) society as the father was himself; a man who, when his beard had become grey and the hair of his head snow-white, when his eyes were getting dim and his knees feeble, went to war for the rescue of his country, and died on the battle-field, to seal with his blood the glorious victory of the day." "Him," Solon repeated, "I certainly consider (as) the happiest of all men."

EXERCISE CIII.

"And after him," hastily replied the king, who had grown (become) indignant at the philosopher's boldness of preferring (to prefer) a common citizen of Athens to the richest of kings—"after that, tell us, who do you think is happiest?" "Two Greek youths," was the disappointing answer, "Cleobis and Biton, both of whom were handsome and strong, and they even once gained laurels in the Olympian games. Their mother was a priestess, and when one day the hour of service in the temple was drawing near (approached), and the mother sat ready in her cart, waiting in vain for the oxen, which were to pull the vehicle, the two sons, lest she should be (too) late, harnessed themselves to the chariot, and conveyed their mother to the place of worship. The people looked on (it) in amazement, and began to praise the happy priestess on account of her worthy sons. The mother, moved at heart, straightway entered the temple, knelt down before the images of her gods, and entreated them to reward her sons and (to) do to them what they might think best (wat hun het best mocht dunken). Then she called her sons into the temple and made them lie down for a while, because she saw (that) they were tired. Both fell asleep and neither of them ever woke again. The gods had granted the mother's request, and translated the youths to the world of undisturbed happiness."

EXERCISE CIV.

After having listened impatiently to Solon's second reply, Croesus exclaimed: "Stranger from Athens, tell me why I, whom everyone acknowledges to be the richest of men, should be inferior in happiness to common citizens of your native country!" "O Croesus," was the answer, "do not be offended at my words. I know you are happy at present; but I, who have seen much of life, can only call him happy, who continues to be so (het) until the day of his death. You are young and may have fifty more (nog) years to live (may perhaps live, etc.); who knows what may happen in the course of your days!"—Croesus failed to see (inzien) (could not see) the sound wisdom of the philosopher's reply, and declined speaking to him (any) more. But let us see what happened: Crœsus, stung by pride, sent messengers to the celebrated oracle of Delphi, in Greece, for the sake of ascertaining what would be the result if he should make war with Cyrus of Persia. The messengers came back in (on the) due time with the following message from the gods—for which they had paid a sum as only a man like Crœsus could offer:—"If Crœsus passes the Halys—the eastern border of his dominion—a great empire will be destroyed."

EXERCISE CV.

A man (somebody) of common sense would have noticed the apparent ambiguity of this answer—every answer from the priests at Delphi was ambiguous—but Crœsus felt sure that the empire whose doom had been announced, must be the Persian one. He therefore raised a mighty army, crossed the border into Persia, and attacked his great opponent. From the very (first) beginning the tide of war seemed to turn against him, and very soon after (daarna), we find (the) poor Crœsus fettered to a stake in the market-place of his own capital, just on the point of being burned. Suddenly, however, he exclaims: "Solon, Solon, Solon!"—and goes on repeating that foreign name until the attention of King Cyrus is drawn to it, and he sends an interpreter to his enemy to inquire what he wants. Crœsus tells about Solon's visit to Sardes, and what remarkable words he had spoken to him. Cyrus, to whom every syllable of the conversation is translated, is deeply moved. He feels himself a human being, weak in himself, great only through circumstances. He fancies how an equal fate might befall him some day (de eene of andere), and commands the Lydian king to be loosed (commands that be loosed) from his bonds on the spot. Not only (the) life was granted unto Crœsus, but he became Cyrus's friend and counsellor.

CHAPTER XV.

CONSTRUCTION.

(Woordschikking.)

The Principal Sentence.

(De Hoofdzin.)

I. THE common order of the Assertive sentence, whose verb is in a simple tense, is the same in Dutch as in English :

Subject—Predicate—Object—Extension.

He saw a house in the wood, hij zag een huis in het bosch.

II. A. When the Predicate consists of more than one word, i.e., when it is made up of a verb and its auxiliary, or a verb in conjunction with an adverb, noun, or any other part of speech, the verb (whichever comes first) takes the place of the English verb, whereas the other parts of the predicate must be removed to the end of the sentence :

He has seen a house in the wood, hij heeft een huis in het bosch gezien.

He seems to have called the child, hij schijnt het kind geroepen te hebben.

My brother wants a book, mijn broeder heeft een boek noodig.

You must have used the knife, gij moet het mes gebruikt hebben, or hebben gebruikt.

He has been obliged to give it, hij heeft het moeten geven, not geven moeten.

OBS.—Notice that in the last two sentences the Aux. of time, hebben, can either precede or follow the principal verb, whereas the Aux. of mood, moeten, cannot follow it. Whenever an Aux. of mood, used as a Past Part., takes the form of the Infinitive, i.e., when it is used with another infinitive verb—it must precede the principal verb :

He has not been allowed to say it, hij heeft het niet mogen zeggen.

OBS. 2.—The only case in which the rule of § II may be broken, is when various extensions, or a sub-ordinate sentence intervening, the distance between the two parts of the verb is rendered greater than is consistent with clearness :

He did it this morning, as soon as he was up, hij heeft het van morgen, zoodra hij op was, gedaan, or hij heeft het van morgen gedaan, zoodra hij op was.

B. Separably compounded verbs in their simple tenses follow this rule :

He travels through the Free State to go to Pretoria, hij reist den Vrijstaat door, om

The anxiety about his sister keeps him down, de zorg over zijne zuster houdt hem onder.

III. When there are two Objects, one in the Dative case (indirect), and the other in the Objective case (direct), the indirect object representing a person, and the direct object a thing, the person must precede the thing :

He gave the scholar a book, hij gaf den scholier een boek.

IV. When two objects (as under III) are represented by personal pronouns, the direct object goes first :

He has given it to him, hij heeft het hem gegeven.

V. Generally speaking, the place of the adverbial extension is in Dutch where it is in English, viz., after the object at the end of the sentence. This position is taken to emphasize the idea expressed by the adverb :

He has told him distinctly, yesterday, often, for the last time, here, etc., hij heeft het hem duidelijk, gisteren dikwijls, voor het laatst, hier, enz. gezegd.

VI. When the object itself requires more emphasis than the adverb, the latter (in Dutch) is placed before the object, whereas its place in English is between Subject and Verb :

I plainly see the house, but not the window, ik zie duidelijk het huis, maar niet het raam.

VII. When the object is a noun in the singular, preceded by the article een (a, an) or a plural noun without any distinguishing word, all adverbs except those of manner must precede such an object :

Compare { I wrote a letter yesterday, ik heb gisteren eenen brief geschreven.
I wrote that letter yesterday, ik heb dien brief gisteren geschreven.

Compare again { I wrote some letters yesterday, ik heb gisteren brieven geschreven.
He treats children well, hij behandelt kinderen goed.

VIII. When the object is a personal pronoun, the adverbs cannot precede it ;

I shall see him often, ik zal hem dikwijls zien.

I have heard her very well, ik heb haar heel goed gehoord.

IX. Adverbs must precede the preposition-object :

He always relies on his memory, hij vertrouwt altijd op zijn geheugen.

Compare { He relied on his memory foolishly, hij vertrouwde op eene dwaaze manier op zijn geheugen.
He foolishly-relied on his memory, hij was dwaas genoeg op zijn geheugen te vertrouwen.

X. True adverbs must precede adverbial phrases :

He saw my brother here in the wood, hij heeft mijnen broeder hier in het bosch gezien.

He will see him for the last time to-morrow, hij zal hem morgen voor het laatst zien.

He will start at seven to-morrow, hij zal morgen om zeven uur vertrekken.

XI. Adverbs of time usually precede the other adverbs :

The man has been looking for the child everywhere to-day, de man heeft het kind vandaag overal gezocht.

XII. The adverb of negation (niet, not) stands :

1. After the verb in a single tense :

The child does not eat, het kind eet niet.

2. Before the principal verb in compound tenses :

The child has taken no food to-day, het kind heeft vandaag niet gegeten.

3. After the object (direct or indirect, or both) of a verb :

I did not pick those flowers, ik heb die bloemen niet geplukt.

Did he not tell it to you? heeft hij het u niet verteld?

4. If intended to negative the meaning of any other word but the verb, its place is immediately before such word :

The child would not eat at once, het kind heeft niet dadelijk willen eten.

My brother, not I, has read the book, niet ik, maar mijn broeder, heeft het boek gelezen.

The Sub-ordinate Sentence.

(De Ondergeschikte Zin.)

XIII. The great characteristic of the Dutch sub-ordinate sentence is, that the whole of the Predicate is placed at the end of the sentence :

He said, he would have called me at once, hij zei, dat hij mij dadelijk zou laten roepen.

The woman who lives opposite my uncle's house is very ill, de vrouw, die tegenover het huis van mijnen oom woont, is erg ziek.

OBS.—When a sub-ordinate sentence has a lengthy extension, the verb may be made to precede it, but may never be in front of the Direct Object :

I knew you would never be able to do it, ik wist, dat gij het nooit zoudt kunnen doen.

Do you think I shall see your brother before six o'clock this evening? denkt gij, dat ik uwen broeder zal zien vóór van avond zes uur?

NOTE.—An infinitive phrase forming part of a sub-ordinate sentence, is not counted an extension, but is (see p. 323) analysed as a separate sentence; hence the verb of the sub-ordinate sentence precedes such phrase :

He said he did it to tease you, hij zei, dat hij het deed om u te plagen.

He called to me to stop calling his brother names, hij riep, dat ik het laten moest, zijnen broeder uit te schelden.

XIV, A. When the verb of the sub-ordinate sentence is used in a compound tense, or in conjunction with an auxiliary of mood, the principal verb and the auxiliaries may change places at the end of the sentence :

The book I must have read,	{	Het boek, dat ik gelezen moet hebben.* Het boek, dat ik gelezen hebben moet. Het boek, dat ik moet hebben gelezen. Het boek, dat ik moet gelezen hebben.
----------------------------	---	---

B. But when the auxiliaries of mood, kunnen, mogen, moeten, willen and durven, are joined to the principal verb in their infinitive form (see p. 171, obs.), they must always precede the principal verb :

* The second of these four ways is least used.

He wanted me to let him do it, hij wilde, dat ik het hem zou laten doen, not doen laten.

XV. There are a few cases in which it is preferable to keep to one form of construction :

1. When the subject of a sub-ordinate sentence is a RELATIVE PRONOUN, the auxiliary should come after the principal verb :

The lecturer who is expected, de spreker die verwacht wordt, rather than wordt verwacht.

2. The verbs, doen, gaan, helpen, hooren, komen, leeren, voelen, zien, take their places in front of their principal verb :

If the boy hears me coming, he will run away, als de jongen mij hoort komen, zal hij wegloopen.

I felt it as soon as I sat down, ik voelde het, zoodra ik ging zitten.

Inversion in the Principal Sentence.

XVI. The inversion of Subject and Predicate occurs in Dutch as also sometimes in English :

In Interrogative and Exclamatory sentences :

Do you see that child playing? ziet u dat kind spelen?

Have you heard that man? heeft u dien man gehoord?

If I could only see him! kon ik hem toch maar zien!

Would that my brother were here! ware mijn broeder maar hier!

XVII. If, for the sake of emphasis, any other part of the sentence but the subject is placed at the beginning of the sentence, the subject in Dutch is always placed after the verb, if such verb be in a simple tense, and after the first auxiliary, if the verb be in a compound tense :

There you see him, daar ziet gij hem.

Yesterday I saw him, gisteren heb ik hem gezien.

I do not like the book at all, mij bevalt het boek in het geheel niet.

His letter I have not read, zijn brief heb ik niet gelezen.

Hate him I do not, haten doe ik hem niet.

XVIII. In sentences in which "it"—het, is the Subject, and a personal pronoun forms part of the Predicate, such personal pronoun takes the place of the subject :

It is he, hij is het. It is we, wij zijn het.

XIX. When the first word of a principal sentence is one of the adverbial conjunctions, toch, yet, niettemin, nevertheless, desniettegenstaande, notwithstanding, evenwel, yet, intusschen, meanwhile, integendeel, on the contrary, daarentegen, on the other hand, ook, likewise, daarenboven, besides, dus, derhalve, consequently, vandaar, that is why, daarom, for this reason, bijgevolg, consequently, daardoor, that is why, voorts, further, etc., the Subject and Predicate change places :

It should not be forgotten in the meantime, intusschen moet men niet vergeten.

Further I have to say, voorts moet ik zeggen.

OBS.—The above sentence also appears in the following form : Intusschen, moet men niet vergeten, etc. It should be noticed that the inserted comma does away with the need of inversion. This comma, however, is not used after ook, vandaar, daardoor, voorts.

XX. The adverbial conjunctions nu, now, and echter, however, are usually placed in the body of the sentence, in which case they do not influence the construction :

My parents, however, have decided for me, mijne ouders hebben echter voor mij besloten.

Now the judge was of opinion, de rechter nu meende.

Now to-morrow there would be a holiday, morgen nu zou er vacantie zijn.

Toch, yet, is sometimes used in the same way :

Yet he is not ashamed of his ignorance, zijner onwetendheid toch schaamt hij zich niet.

XXI. When a sub-ordinate sentence precedes a principal one, the order of the latter is inverted :

I have told him all, answered the man, ik heb hem alles gezegd, antwoordde de man.

After having spoken to him a long time, I left him alone, nadat ik lang met hem gesproken had, liet ik hem alleen.

OBS.—After sub-ordinate sentences with wie ook, whoever, wat ook, whatever, hoe ook, however, and hoe het zij, however it be, the order of the principal verb is not inverted.

Whoever may tell you, I shall not believe it, wie het u ook zegt, ik zal het niet gelooven.

However that may be, I shall rest satisfied, hoe dat ook zij, ik zal tevreden zijn.

XXII. When verbs like zeggen, to say, antwoorden, to answer, hernemen, to go on (speaking), voortgaan, to continue (speaking), denken, to think, etc., occur with their subject between the two parts of a quotation, such subject must be placed after its verb :—

“Those books,” said he, “I shall give you anyway.”
“Die boeken,” zei hij, “zal ik u in elk geval geven.”

Inversion in the Sub-ordinate Sentence.

XXIII. In conditional sentences, when the conjunction als = if, is omitted, the sub-ordinate sentence takes the form of the inverted principal sentence, instead of having the whole of its predicate at the end (see XIII).

Could I but see him, I should ask him, kon ik hem maar zien, ik zou het hem vragen.

Were I but ten years younger, I should go, was ik maar tien jaar jonger, ik zou gaan.

OBS.—The conditional sentence without the conjunction als =

if, has no influence on the construction of the principal sentence (see XXI); whereas when als = if, is expressed, it has :

Compare { Could I but see him, I should ask him, kon ik hem maar zien, ik zou het hem vragen.
 { If I could but see him, I should ask him, als ik hem maar zien kon, zou ik het hem vragen.

XXIV. Sub-ordinate sentences, introduced by als = as if, and al = although, take the inverted construction of the principal sentence :—

He speaks as if he knew all about it, hij spreekt, als wist hij er alles van (for : alsof hij er alles van wist).

I shall not understand it, though I read it ten times, ik zal het toch niet verstaan, al lees ik het tienmaal over (for : ofschoon ik het tienmaal overlees).

Obs.—In the sentence, Al hoorde hij u, hij zou toch niet komen, even if he heard you, he would not come, the sub-ordinate sentence, not having its regular construction form, cannot influence the construction of the principal sentence (see XXIII, Obs.).

XXV. In statements and indirect questions beginning with who, which, what, or with how and an adjective, in English a Noun-subject may follow the verb to be, whereas in Dutch these sentences follow the regular construction of the sub-ordinate sentence (see XIII) :—

He asked what was my opinion of the matter, hij vroeg, wat mijn oordeel over de zaak was.

I know how delicate are her feelings, ik weet, hoe teer hare gevoelens zijn.

TRANSLATION EXERCISES.—Vertaal oefeningen.

EXERCISE CVI.

One of the greatest men of (the) old Hellas was the son of a sculptor, Socrates by name. When (he was) yet a boy, his lofty spirit made him (already) a wonder to (for) his parents and friends. (The) Tradition says that his father had received a message from (the) heaven, instructing him to let the boy have (transl., go) his own way in everything, and never to oblige him to do anything against his own will and conviction, because the gods had granted to the young man a sure guide that would unfailingly lead him in (op) the right path. (The) young Socrates at first seemed to show some inclination to become [a] sculptor like his father; yet he soon found out that this occupation did not suit him. No lifeless material would he work: he would try his hand at himself and his fellow-men. From that time Socrates, who had now grown to manhood, became a philosopher, a teacher of profound wisdom, a blessing to his native country, and a model to the world at large. After [the] lapse of many ages we still find Socrates (transl., Socrates is still) beloved, admired; though generations on generations have appeared, lived, and acted, yet the people of the present day think it an honour to imitate the great sculptor's son on account of his purity, his modesty, his love of truth, his impartial distribution of justice, his unshaken calmness at the approach of (the) death.

EXERCISE CVII.

There can be no doubt (Er valt niet aan te twijfelen), that the study of Socrates' character must be profitable to every right-minded youth. The beginning of all virtue to (for) him was soberness. His doctrine was not, to make food and drink as pleasant [as] possible, and take them in the greatest quantity possible—he took food to sustain (the) life, and never for any other purpose. Even the most exquisite dainties could not induce him to take any more than he considered necessary. He likewise never drank but (behalve) when he was thirsty, and never more than was necessary to quench his thirst. The gods, he used to say, know no wants, so (met) the (hoe) less we are contented [with] the (des te) more we resemble them. Naturally quick-tempered, he managed to bring his temper under full subjection to his will, and thereby acquired an amount of equanimity, as is seldom seen (gelijk men . . . aantreft) in (a) man. The inward peace and calm which he enjoyed, became manifest in every deed he performed, in every word he said; his inward joy, sprung from an (the) uninterrupted practice of (the) virtue, seasoned his speech and shone from his eyes.

EXERCISE CVIII.

(Even) Calm and self-possessed as he was in his life, [so] Socrates was in his death. At the age of seventy (years) he was accused as one (somebody), whose existence was dangerous to the state, seeing that he did not believe in the gods of his country and corrupted the manners of the rising generation by perverted doctrines. He begged the judges to take into consideration his public life, and how he had devoted himself to the general happiness of his fellow-citizens both young and old. The frankness with which he defended himself, embittered the judges, and he was condemned to drink the poisoned cup. When (he was) in (the) prison, one of his followers brought him an elaborate defence, fit to be read in (the) public. Socrates took the document from (uit) his hands, perused it, and handed it back with the reply: “Lysias, if you brought me a pair of soft sandals, you would know that I could not accept them, because I should think it unmanly. Take back your speech and pardon me for refusing (transl., that I refuse) to make use of it." (On) Another day, one of Socrates' dearest friends entered his cell and tried to induce him to flee, saying that he had bribed the jailer, and that no ill would befall him in (op) the flight. This time (ditmaal), however, his answer was decisive and firm. "What," he said, "would a true friend induce me to disobey the laws of my city? Many years have I enjoyed the just laws of the city of my fathers, and do you think that now [that] I am become a martyr by (the) misapplication of those laws, I would rebel against them?"

EXERCISE CIX.

On the morning of the day of the execution some officials entered the prison [and] telling (transl., told) Socrates that his last day had come, (and) loosed him from his shackles. Shortly after (daarna) his dearest friends, to the number of fifteen (vijftien in getal), came in to spend the last hours with him. One of these said to him: "Master, what will do you leave us, and what can we do for you when you are gone?" "I charge you all," was the grave reply, "to live as you have seen me live—more you cannot do for me. Moreover, do not speak at my grave, here we lay Socrates to rest; for surely Socrates will then have long since departed to the land of eternal bliss." Hereupon he began to speak some parting words, first to his friends and then to his wife and children. This (being) done, he received the fatal draught (transl., drink) from an official (who was) present, drank it [off] with a smile, and, after having paced the room for some time, laid himself down to die. When about (toen hij op het punt was) to breathe his last, he suddenly opened his eyes, looked at his friends with a last smile and whispered: "I am cured; sacrifice (bring) a thank-offering to Esculapius on my behalf."

PARSING AND ANALYSIS.

Parsing.—(Woordontleding.)

DUTCH parsing differs in form materially from English parsing. The student should endeavour to make himself familiar with the points of dissimilarity.

Dutch names for the different parts of speech :—

Zelfstandig-naamwoord, Noun; Lidwoord, Article; Bijvoegelijk-naamwoord, Adjective; Telwoord, Numeral Adjective; Voornaamwoord, Pronoun; Werkwoord, Verb; Bijwoord, Adverb; Voegwoord, Conjunction; Voorzetsel, Preposition; Tusschenwerpsel, Interjection.

Abbreviations used in Dutch Parsing :

Zelfstnw.	Zelfstandig-naamwoord.	Noun.
Lidw.	Lidwoord.	Article.
Bijvow.	Bijvoegelijk-naamwoord.	Adjective.
Telw.	Telwoord.	Num. Adject.
Vnw.	Voornaamwoord.	Pronoun.
Ww.	Werkwoord.	Verb.
Bijw.	Bijwoord.	Adverb.
Voegw.	Voegwoord.	Conjunction.
Voorz.	Voorzetsel.	Preposition.
Tusschenw.	Tusschenwerpsel.	Interjection.
Overg.	Overgankelijk.	Transitive.
Onoverg.	Onovergankelijk.	Intransitive.

Onv. teg. t.	Onvolmaakt tegenwoordige tijd.	Present Tense.
Volm. verl. t.	Volmaakt verleden tijd.	Pluperfect Tense.
Onv. toek. t.	Onvolmaakt toekomstige tijd.	Future Tense.

OBS. 1.—In Dutch, such terms as Nominative to, Objective after, Qualifying, Modifying, Limiting, etc., are not in use. The relations between verbs and their Subjects and Objects, and between Nouns and their Articles and Adjectives are differently expressed, as will be seen from the examples.

OBS. 2.—In Dutch parsing each Verb is treated as a separate one, except the Auxiliaries of Tense, hebben, zijn, and zullen, and the Auxiliary of Voice, worden, which form an inseparable part of the Verbs which they help to conjugate.

ANALYSIS.—(Zinsontleding).

The Dutch way of Analysing Sentences is a perfect parallel of English analysis, and, as far as principal features are concerned, differs from it only in its terms.

The translation of those terms is as follows :

Sentence	Zin.
Simple Sentence	Enkelvoudige Zin.
Complex Sentence	} Samengestelde Zin.
Compound Sentence
Simple Sentence with composite parts	Enkelvoudige Zin met veelvoudige deelen.
Principal Sentence	Hoofdzin.
Co-ordinate Sentence	Nevengeschikte Zin.
Sub-ordinate Sentence	Afhankelijke Zin.
Complete Sentence	Volledige Zin.
Incomplete Sentence	Onvolledige Zin.
Elliptic Sentence	Elliptische Zin.
Noun Sentence	Zelfstandig Afhankelijke Zin.
Adjective Sentence	Bijvoegelijk Afhankelijke Zin.
Adverbial Sentence	Bijwoordelijk Afhankelijke Zin.
Of Time	Van Tijd.
Of Place	Van Plaats.

Of Manner	Van Wijze.
Of Cause	Redengevende.
Of Purpose	Doelaanwijzende.
Of Comparison	Van Vergelijking.
Concessive	Toegevende.
Copulative	Aaneenschakelende.
Disjunctive	Scheidende.
Adversative	Tegenstellende.
Illative	Besluitende.
Subject	Onderwerp.
Enlargement of the Subject	Uitbreiding van het Onderwerp.
Understood Subject.	Verzwegen Onderwerp.
Connective	Verbinding.
Predicate	Gezegde.
Object	Voorwerp.
Direct Object	Lijdend (Direct) Voorwerp.
Indirect Object	Oneigenlijk (Indirect) Voorwerp.
Preposition Object	Voorwerp met een Voorzetsel.
Extension	Bepaling.
Extension of Time	Bepaling van Tijd.
Extension of Place	Bepaling van Plaats.
Extension of Manner	Bepaling van Wijze.
Extension of Cause	Bepaling van Oorzaak.

The following peculiarities should be noted :

1. Dutch analysis favours the embodiment in separate sentences of phrases, which in English are treated as belonging to the main sentence. For example : “Seeing his brother, he began to cry,” would in Dutch be analysed as, “As (he) saw his brother, he began to cry.”

This custom allows of no exception when an infinitive verb is concerned. For example, “I told you to go” should be analysed, “I told you (that you should) go.” Likewise : “I shot the cat (in order that I should) get rid of it.”

2. No distinction in name is made between the Complex and the Compound Sentences, both going by the name of “Samengestelde Zin.”

The Compound Sentence, however, is sometimes called “Veelvoudige Zin.”

The following example will illustrate the similarity of Dutch and English analysis :

EXAMPLE OF ANALYSIS.

“ Zoo is het genoeg,” zeide hij, en keerde zich om, om te zien, wie het was, die achter hem dat vreemde geluid maakte. Nooit had hij kunnen denken, dat zijn eigen zoon, wien hij jaren geleden wagens schandelijk wangedrag de deur gewezen had, op 't onverwachtst was teruggekeerd, om wraak te oefenen, en in volle wapenrusting nu achter hem stond, gereed, hem het leven te benemen.

CHAPTER XVII.

CORRESPONDENCE.—Correspondentie.

THE difficulties of corresponding in the Dutch language lie in the forms of address, which in Dutch are more elaborate than in English; in the phrases preceding the correspondent's signature, which are less varied in Dutch than in English; and in the use of certain set terms, of which every language has its own stock, and which cannot always be literal translations of those used in another language.

The necessary indications for the removal of these difficulties will here be given.

Mijnheer,

Verblijfje,
De Uwe,

C. D.

NOTES.—1. In writing to a gentleman of like social standing with the correspondent, and in respect of whom he is allowed to make use of terms of intimacy, "Waarde Heer" may be substituted for either "Mijnheer," or "Wedele Heer."

2. The wife of a man addressed as "Mijnheer" (see No. 24) is addressed as "Mejuffrouw."

3. The wife of a gentleman is addressed as "Mevrouw."

4. An unmarried lady is addressed as "Mejuffrouw." N.B. "Jongejuffrouw," used extensively in the Cape Dutch, only applies to girls under the age of sixteen.

5. A widow is addressed either as "Mejuffrouw de Weduwe," or, "Mevrouw de Weduwe."

6. Ladies do not have the title of their husbands added to any form of address: "Mrs. Professor Dummy," is simply "Mevrouw Dummy."

7. Surnames are not excluded in terms of address: "Dear Mr. Hancock," should be rendered "Mijnheer," or, "Waarde Heer," but not "Waarde Mijnheer Hancock."

8. The English "My" before the name of a person in terms of address, is not translated: "My dear sister," therefore, becomes "Lieve Zuster."

9. The adjective "dear" is, in correspondence, only translated by "lieve" when friendship or familiarity are intended to be indicated. This should be noticed well, since a word-for-word translation of, for example, "My dear Mr. Goodson," would be an absurdity, when that gentleman is not a special friend of the correspondent.

The term "dear," therefore, commonly remains untranslated, or is (and at the Cape frequently so) rendered by "waarde," the use of which term, however, should neither be encouraged, seeing it finds no place in strict correspondence style.
